The Kings barely lost out in a great three-team sprint in the regular season, but then took out both the teams that finished ahead of them by identical 14-10 scores in the semis and finals.

"G" Division - Sofa Kings (12+-12)
The Sofa Kings take the G Mugs in the most "Sofa King way" possible, with their hearts in their throats. After only passing 15 points three times all season, 13-11 was their tournament blowout.

"H" Division - The Neighborhood Dart Knights (13-9)
At first glance, the Dart Knights look like this season's huge upset winners (taking the Mugs from 5th place) - but the top five in H were so incredibly even that this win honestly isn't a big surprise.

A couple of teams sent me a team photo after they won this week, which I thought was pretty cool. So I asked the other winners if they had one too, and I got a couple more. Which brings us to a sort of new item here that would be cool to keep going in the future - a team photo gallery! (No player name legends this time, but I'm sure the people in the photo know who they are. Plus, it's really about 'team' happiness anyway.)

FALL 2019 PENALTY SUMMARY

The new world of the RDL continues to be a beautiful place. We are 4 seasons into the removal of the call-in requirement, so that penalty source no longer exists. And despite the addition of other penalties (earlier sheet return deadline, mandatory 1001 names, new penalty for lack of blocker names), the league as a whole barely gets any penalties at all anymore. There have been 6 for 4 seasons in a row now!

And this season, aside from the removal of a team due to 3 forfeits (is that even considered a "penalty"?), we had only THREE total penalties (and one of those went to the team that forfeited out). 2 teams missed the preseason captains' meeting (5 pts each), and there was 1 scoresheet that had an incomplete 1001 listing (16 pts). So that's 3 penalties for a total of 26 points. No team, and even no division, had more than one penalty. And the teams that lost the points? They didn't drop even one spot in the standings because of their point loss. Kind of awesome.

HOLIDAY BREAK BLIND DRAWS

UPPER DECK

As in many previous years, throughout the holiday break the Upper Deck will be adding a weekly Wednesday blind draw for all those who just want to keep their regular dart night out rolling through the break. The Wednesday draw will be run just like the Friday and Sunday draws at the Deck - and this year, there will be a Wednesday-specific double-shot pot, starting at $100.

SHARKY'S PLACE

Or maybe you live closer to Glenwood and/or just prefer Sharky's! Well, they've added a Wednesday blind draw to go with their Saturday one until the RDL fire backs up. [The group that runs the Sharky's draw also runs the normal Pickled Onion draw, but the Pickled Onion draw has been suspended during the break.]

OR MAYBE YOU WANT TO ADD ANOTHER LEAGUE?

Looking to add a second league this coming season? None of the other local leagues will be starting up at exactly the right time to fit during the winter break, but it won't be too long until they start up again. Can always just use the break to get a team ready.

Triangle Dart League (TDL - Chapel Hill & Durham)

Check www.ibiblio.org/ncdarts/tdl/ for information updates soon. The teams in TDL consist of 6-10 players per team, and dues are $20/player per season. Recent seasons have used bars in both Chapel Hill and Durham, but I suspect that might vary a bit from season to season based on team preferences and signups. Registration for the next season will be closing during the 2nd week of January.

Bull City Dart League (BCDL - Durham)

The league website is www.thebcdl.org and the league plays Tuesday nights throughout Durham and RTP, and uses a rolling handicap system to level the playing field quite a bit. Teams are 4-8 players (about 6 is the norm), and the dues are $25/player per season. Registration for the next season will end in early Feb.

OR POSSIBLY PICK UP SOME TOURNAMENT ACTION?

The QCDA down in Charlotte will have their annual full weekend event on the weekend of January 3rd-5th. I've heard for many years that one is a lot of fun. Check out the flier on page 21 for specifics. Or maybe you're more interested in a trip to the NC mountains… Asheville is hosting the Fire on the Mountain tournament on the weekend of January 10th-12th. That flier is also on page 21. Orrrr… maybe you really just want to get in a couple of days of really intensive, long-format practice against some solid competition. If just getting that chance to throw a crapload of 501 games sounds good to you, check out the Carolina Open. I don't have a flier in this issue (just didn't have room this time), but you can find that tournament at the Myrtle Beach Moose Lodge on Burcale Road, on the weekend of Jan. 17th-19th. You can also reach tournament director Patrick Ellis at 843-997-8141, or at patrickellis77@yahoo.com .

"HOT DARTS" LISTING GUIDELINES

Here are the guidelines that will be used for the minimum number of all-star points each week for the "hot darts" page.
"A" Div. = 4.5 or more ASPs; "B" Div. = 4.0 or more ASPs

Extra note: it's also ok to call in "fast games" in each set, even if they don't necessarily meet the maximum dart counts above.

QUICK STAT TIDBITS

-The Quadruple Double Award winners (double-digit wins in all 4 sections): With only three divisions playing 14-week schedules (and with one division really only playing about an 11-week schedule due to a team forfeiting out), this could have again been a nearly empty club this season. But, that certainly wasn't the case! The five smaller-schedule divisions produced nothing more than two guys with three 9-win sets (John Heath of Treble Yell in E, and Dave Finney of Wayne Gretzky in G), but the three full-schedule divisions actually produced five true winners of this category: Robbie Phillips of Unstable Elements in A division, Joel Dickenson of Darty Minds and Keith Gibbs and Randy Massengill of Atonsamongus in B division, and Mike Cole of Why So Serious? in D division.

-The Iron Man/Woman Award: Well, with only three divisions having a full 8 teams, it was pretty clear that somebody from A, B or D was likely to take this title. And that's exactly what happened, as those three divisions claimed the top three overall slots. Fon Denton of Dartistic Side of the Moon snagged the top spot with a respectable 63 games. And the honorable mentions for the leaders of the other divisions: B = 57, Keith Gibbs and Ronnie Knott; C = 52, Joe Gaglione; D = 62, Pete Borgia; E = 55, Angela Jeffcoat; F = 50, Mark Powell and Jeromie Raper; G = 49, Dave Finney and John White; and H = 45, Somchai Samaluk (wow, 45 games led a division - you can tell which division experienced some forfeit action and a team falling out of the schedule).

-The Team Attendance Award winners: Some seasons a bunch of teams are all "sort of" in the running for this award. But this season, there were only two even close, and neither of them really made it like the old winners of this item. Not Dead Ducks Yet in H kinda sorta used mostly the same guys, while Treble Yell in E division actually came the closest. Treble only had seven players on the roster, and the lion's share of the games was split by just the lead six of them.

MY PRESEASON, WEEKLY, & TOURNEY PREDICTION RESULTS

As usual, I'm left with the option of trying to bluff my way through this part, or just telling the truth. And since I know that some of you squirrel away every last thing I've ever written about your team, I guess I better give real results… dang.

In my preseason picks (usually the toughest every season given the imminent roster changes/additions), I came really close to crushing it. I had a habit of just flipping the eventual top two in my picks (in A, B and E, for example), and I hit some facts really well (such as the awesomely even group at the top of H). But I also really missed a few things: I thought C would be a lot closer; I really under-sold the Sharks in E; Sanchez in G was better than I expected; and I super-duper ultra-way-missed Dr.unks in F, as I thought they might even finish as low as last).

My weekly prediction results you can peruse pick-for-pick on the other side of this sheet of paper. I absolutely kicked butt this time around (nailing nearly 75% of the picks on the season). And considering the near-crushing number of matches I lost by a single dart (12-12 and 13-11 match score losers), I almost had a monster number this time around. Imagine how well I would have done if the dang ol' Banging The Wire team in G division hadn't signed up this season…

Last but not least were my tournament predictions… And in these, I outdid pretty good job again. In in the quarterfinals, I summoned up a giant 23-3, with no more than one wrong in any division. I jumped ahead to a strong 12-4 in the semifinals, with half of those incorrect picks coming in F division. And then I was to bring in 4 of the 8 tournament champion teams, which is pretty decent given that I have to get them right all the way up to that spot. Probably the most remarkable fact among my picks is that in the four divisions where I predicted the correct champ, I actually hit every match of every week in all four of those divisions (A, C, D and E divisions). I also got both of my Surest Things right. What I didn't get right though, was F division - my picks there were… a bit sad.

JK'S TEAM-BY-TEAM, WEEK-BY-WEEK MATCH PREDICTION RESULTS

(I introduced this page thirty-two seasons ago, and it has become almost expected as a newsletter staple. Feast your eyes on the success...)

For several years, many of you have taken no greater pleasure in your weekly darting endeavors than to email or text me and point out to me just how wrong I was in my prediction of your match result. On a related note, I have noticed that many of you seem to have relatively selective memories saving only the weeks when I was wrong. Further, many others of you regularly embellish your statistics of how often you fool me. It's not so easy to get away with those rambles anymore, however, as you can see below. Each W is a week when I picked your match correctly, and each L is one I picked incorrectly. Division totals are to the right of the team totals, weekly totals are at the bottom, and in the space between the 14 weeks and the team totals, the six 'o' symbols indicate the teams for which I was only 0.500, and the four 'x' symbols indicate the teams that fooled me more often than not. [Was kind of a rough start to the season in a few divisions, but by the end there was only one team (Banging The Wire) that fooled me more often than not. With three other teams I finished even, but an overall pick rate of nearly 75% was pretty hot. - JK]

THIS SEASON'S TRIVIA QUESTIONS… REVISITED

I now run this column during seasons in which I've included trivia questions all season. Each question is listed exactly as it was during the season, so there is potential for a question to now be out of date, but it's usually not too much of a problem. Each question is listed under the week number when it ran, and the answers follow the questions. No peeking…

Week 8 question: Ok, turns out we're going to start with one that involves lots of RDL throwers, but isn't directly about the RDL. What is the NC state record for number of events won at the state championships in a single year (one answer each for men and for women)? [Two notes: youth and youth/adult events do not count; and just so you know, people can enter up to 7 events per year (although in 1997 and 1999, you could actually enter 8).]

Week 9 question: How many times has a player been deemed ineligible for individual awards because that player dropped to join a team more than two divisions below where they had just ranked in the top half in either win/loss percentage or all-star point average? (for example, player in top half of B dropping down to E, etc.)

Week 10 question: Since I started writing the newsletter (this season makes 48 seasons), have there been more undefeated or more winless teams? I suppose we'll dump the teams that folded in the first half of the season for this particular question.

Week 11 question: Ok, digging out the answer to this last question led me to another that I found pretty interesting (and in light of this week's top story, it's pretty timely, I think). In the 48 seasons that I've been statistician, how many teams have been removed from the schedule prior to the end of the season?

Week 12 question(s): B division presently has 6 of 8 teams sitting with losing records (yes, after 11 weeks!). In light of that somewhat amazing statistical anomaly, what is the worst record (in my previous 47 seasons as statistician) to finish as high as 3rd place in an 8-team division? In a 7-team division?

Week 13 question: (by request from an ex-RDL-er who had a pretty cool idea for a question) Over the past 10 years, when a team sweeps 501 to force 1001, has the team that was ahead won more tiebreakers, or has the team that trailed and caught up?

Week 14 question(s): How many times in my 48 seasons as a statistician (this week finishes that 48th season anyway) have teams finished the regular season completely tied (match wins, season points, head-to-wins match wins AND points) for any finishing position (not just first place)? (note: in those 48 seasons, we've had 357 total divisions)

Week 8 answer: Honestly, I asked this question thinking that we would have full results from the state tournament two weekends ago in hand. But now I remember that the event was run by "not the awesome team in this area", so things don't match our normal level of expectation. Thus, this question only includes the first 29 NC state tournaments (1990-2018) instead of all 30. And in those first 29 years, 14 times somebody hauled in as many as 4 state shirts in a single year. Interestingly, those 14 times are 7 times by a male and 7 times by a female. And in those 14 times, 5 of those are actually when somebody won more than 4 shirts in a single year. First, let's acknowledge the 9 times that 4 shirts were won: Don Carrico (1992), Phillip Todd/Eastmead (1993), Philip Maxwell (1997, one of the two years with an extra event), and Bob Gargan (2007); Carol Riddle (1995), Debra Parker (2003), Amy Newman (2004), Lisa Shpritz (2008), and Charlie Daniel (2014). Which leaves us with the real answers to this question… On the ladies' side, Julia Mack (1991) and Charlie Daniels (again!, 2013) both had 5-shirt years. And over on the men's side, we've had two 5-shirt years and one 6-shirt year, and all of those are by the same person! Brian Blake won 5 shirts in both 2008 and 2015, and he pulled in a near-perfect 6 shirts in 2007! The only event he didn't win in 2007 was singles 501 [which was won by Wil Tan].

Week 9 answer: In all the years since this rule was put into effect (I think it was around 2007?), it has only been enacted in 3 seasons, with 7 players tagged as ineligible for awards. In the Fall 2009 season, Keith Gibbs dropped to D, and Shane Murray dropped to F. In the Spring 2010 season, Randy Wilcox dropped to E, and both Tom Winters and Jim Lewis dropped to H. And finally, in the Fall 2011 season, Vicente Martinez dropped to F, and Shane Nelson dropped to G. Which means that we haven't had a player ruled ineligible for an individual award in any of the last 16 seasons.

Week 10 answer: In the 47 seasons prior to this season, we've had a grand total of 38 undefeated teams and 53 winless teams. And of those winless teams, 5 of them crapped out before the midway point of the season. Thus, even with those teams removed, the winless team count wins out by a 48-38 score (with the winless count actually just barely surpassing an average of one per season). Interestingly, A division is the only division that has reached double-digits in undefeated teams or winless teams, and has actually reached double-digits in both categories. [Answer update for the banquet Tons: We added two more undefeated teams, with one of those in A, extending that division's lead in that category. We also added two winless teams, again with one of them in A, extending that record as well.]

Week 11 answer: Alright, this answer makes me a little sad, in one respect. In my 48 seasons as statistician, we've had 2713 teams register for play. And of those teams, only 16 have been removed from the schedule (for multiple forfeits, simply folding, banning.). That's not even 0.6% of the teams you say… and you would be right. And it has only happened in 12 of the 48 seasons, so three quarters of the time no division faces that dilemma you say… and you would be right again. But here's where the sad part comes in: 6 of the 12 seasons that had teams removed, and 8 of the 16 teams that have been removed, have happened in the LAST SEVEN seasons!! Yep, that's right, in the 41-season string from Spring 1996 through Spring 2016, a total of 8 teams spread over 6 seasons were removed from play. And in just the most recent 7 seasons, we've lost the same number of teams spread across the same number of seasons. What the hell? Seriously, what the hell?

Week 12 answer: In the 47 seasons before this one, we've had a total of 349 divisions. And in those divisions, we've had 40 3rd place teams finish at 0.500 - 23 '6-6 teams' in 7-team divisions, and 17 '7-7 teams' in 8-team divisions. But in all that time, only two 3rd place teams have finished below 0.500, and both of those were in 7-team divisions. In the Fall 1996 season, Neighbors finished 5-7 in E division, and in the Fall 2001 season, Pig Darts finished 5-7 in C division. Will B div. this season produce our first ever 6-8 #3? [Answer update for the banquet Tons: B division came within one close result of being our first ever sub-0.500 eight-team division, but alas it did not happen this time around.]

Week 13 answer: Well, first let's note what I didn't say in the question last week - this answer is for regular season matches only, as we don't require teams to turn in tournament scoresheets (and thus, I could never accurately have this info from the brackets). That said, the results over the past 20 season (ok, 19.93 seasons, since we don't have tonight's results yet) are quite even. Neither the team that is hot (winning all the 501s to force the tiebreaker) or the team that got the lead mostly through winning cricket games (which has often reflected the more "winning" teams in the entirety of my 24 years as statistician) has displayed much of an advantage. We've had 95 matches sent to 1001 by a 501 sweep, and the team that had just swept is 46-49 in those matches. It should probably be noted though, that two of those 46 come-from-behind winners were four-player teams who had likely been winning much more than a third of the slots up to that point to get their chance in the 1001 (so, really maybe that record should be listed as 44-49). Our current season had quite an effect on those numbers, as it has the largest split (in either direction!) in any of the most recent twenty seasons: teams that lost all three 501s are a monstrous 7-1 in the subsequent tiebreakers. [Answer update for the banquet Tons : we did not add any more of these 1001-forcing 501 comebacks in week 14 this season.]

Week 14 answer : There have been lots and lots of instances in which two teams tied in wins and points, but VERY few times when those teams also were dead even in head-to-head match results. In fact, it has only happened THREE times in my 48 seasons here (and two of those were in the same season!). In the Spring 2005 season, Get Over It and Stunn 'Em tied for 7th/8th in F division (which was actually dead last in the RDL). Those two teams came to the conclusion that they couldn't agree on any time to play, so they asked me to pick a criterion for them. So I picked team overall win percentage, and Get Over It was slotted 7th by virtue of their 0.443-0.438 advantage. Then, in the Spring 2014 season, there were two ties, with one deciding a division championship! (I had forgotten that awesome part.) I Got Nothing defeated Liquor Posse in an extra match, 14-10, to claim the E division crown; and Whynot! forfeited to Double Tap in a tie for 7th/8th in G division (because both teams liked the tournament locations better with that outcome :o). So, one pair played the extra match, one was forfeited, and one was settled by a criterion from a third party. [Side note: when I looked this up this answer, I got a correction to a memory that I though I had that is relevant to this. I was thinking that two teams had tied like this, and then broken the tie by going bowling. But it turns out the bowling match was actually held in place of a regular tournament match!]

[Like the last many seasons, we used three-song groups each week and also included a theme each and every week. Added a layer to the game for everybody and has been quite popular. Here are the themes for each week , including the week 14 fourteen-song set that brought two pretty incredible sets of guesses… This was a pretty tough last set - with nobody getting more than about a third of them.

Week 2 theme: Well, this one was pretty clear… Dealing with a terrible loss, paying tribute to your lost loved one, and then getting up the energy to keep going. Clearly inspired by our recent loss of Dave Surber, along with exactly what he would tell you to do after he's gone. Live your lives, people… every damn day. Week 3 theme: Pretty obviously, this one was about talking (or not talking), and was inspired by last week's story about the soon-to-be-chalker who was talking to the thrower before assuming full 'chalker' position/status (or not :o). Week 4 theme: Ok, this one very unintentionally looked an awful lot like these songs fit the prior week's theme (inspired by chalkers talking). I completely blanked out on the fact that that particular set preceded this, and I ended up with something similar. The reality is that this set was inspired by the number of scoresheets that have not been checked / were sent in incomplete or incorrect. So it was "supposed to be": not written, not telling me, need more than you've written, etc. But whatever. Week 5 theme: Of course this one was directly about longtime RDL legend Felipe Wilkie knocking cancer back and reaching full remission. Hell, I would've re-used past songs if I had to in order to make a logical set (and you longtime lyric players know I only do that on pretty specific occasions). Week 6 theme: Pretty obviously from the song titles, it was just days… yesterday/today/tomorrow. Week 7 theme: The screaming, yelling and whatever else that prompted the story last week about the mini-parade of teams coming forward with complaints. How could the lyric game have been about anything else when something so juicy is right in front of us? Week 8 theme: This one wasn't about any current news item or league item like I sometimes do. Rather, this one was just about shade/shadows. I heard the Benatar super jam, and decided to make a set that could include. And here we are. Week 9 theme: It's really just the simplicity of a kiss. I simply heard the Sixpence song, and I love that one so much that I decided to build a trio on that basis alone. Week 10 theme: Privilege, getting stuff you didn't really have to earn, or being treated in a better way than others. And this question wasn't inspired in any way by any particular NFL quarterback and his team (except that it so totally was). Week 11 theme: Well, the publicly recognizable theme is a marathon runner. But the reality is that my wife runs long distances (only half-marathons, not marathons), and I was actually thinking of her when I made this set. Thus, I would have accepted either a runner or my wife as a completely acceptable theme. :o) Week 12 theme: Well, if it wasn't already painfully obvious from the song titles (once you see them all typed out, at least), the theme last week was Tennessee. It was pretty much in honor of the fact that I spent five days last week in Nashville with my wife at a scientific conference she was attending. We certainly found some time to go out and blow it out on Broadway though… yikes, I'm a little tired and that's the reason this Tons is a little bit later than usual. Week 13 theme: Well, you can drop all of your near-curses because you didn't get the full lyrics set that you want… or maybe you'll just be yelling out of surprise at the songs I chose… but none of that will change the fact that this week's songs were indeed by… Jesus, Mary and Joseph. Week 14 theme: Songs that spell out words in them, with the songs were listed alphabetically by the band's/artist's name

RDL RECORDS TIED (and also set new in one case)

TERRY TIES ALL-TIME 301 RECORD!!

Still nobody has ever thrown a perfect game here in the RDL, but for the 8th time, one of our league members has come within one dart. In the tournament quarterfinals this season, Bob Terry of Lunatic Fringe became the league's 7th thrower to toss a 7-dart game of 301 (and yes, 8 games, 7 people, because Tom Brown has done it twice). Dart #4 slid over into the 5 for Terry, but the other six were perfect.

PHILLIPS TIES / SETS ALL-TIME "A" SINGLES RECORDS!!

How many times have I typed stuff to the effect of "Phillips breaks league record"? Well, this time the sentence is still true, but it's a whole different Phillips! Stevie Phillips (younger brother of league legend Robbie Phillips) jumped into his first RDL season in a fashion most of us can never even dream to match. Phillips tied the all-time RDL A division singles record with a stellar 27-1 record, and he set the record for longest run toward a perfect season, reaching 27-0 before losing the final singles game of the season. And yeah, for those wondering, Phillips really did straight up choke in that last game - as long as by "choking" you mean "hit 6.5 ASPs including a 9-mark, and lost to a past national champ (Dan Naylor) who hit 8.0 ASPs." Yeah, life can be pretty rough in A some days… yikes.

RDL MEMBERS GRAB CITY LEAGUE TITLE

Some pretty big congratulations go out to 12 of our RDL brothers (including the entirety of my 10-man group of goofball friends on Element), as they are all members of the Durham NCCDL (North Carolina City Dart League) team. Durham just ended Wilmington's four-year tournament win streak, taking the 2019 state title this past weekend (see full results on pages 18 and 19). Mike Seward (of North Raleigh Alliance) and Kenny Persson (of Atonsamongus) joined three non-RDL members on the Durham roster, along with the ten members of Unstable Elements - Robb Beeson, Tom Brown, John Carroll, Paul Jacobi, Jason Kilts, Chad Massengill, Robbie Phillips, Stevie Phillips, Allen Smith, and Wil Tan. This is Durham's 10th state title in the last 20 years, and means that Durham will host the 2020 tournament next December. (obviously, not all 15 of those guys were present at the tournament for the winning photo below)

AND AN RDL-ER GRABS ANOTHER LADIES' CUP TITLE

Because RDL throwers have a hand in all good wins (RDL rocks)… Additional congratulations go out to Brenda Whitley of Kiss Our Inconsistency. Whitley is a member of the Wilmington Ladies' Cup, who defended their state title last week (and will host in 2020).

I already had page 4 completed and printed up when this last team photo arrived. So, they aren't included on the same page as the others, but the guys below are no less of a winning team. Added here to keep things as inclusive as possible.

G division regular season and tournament champions - Sofa Kings!!

CAN YOU FEEL THE TEAM LOVE?

Dean Cusher, captain of The Neighborhood Bullies in A division, had a little factoid to share with us… The Bullies, this season's top team, defeated the last place A team by scores of 23-1, 23-1, and 13-1 in the tournament. Yep, they dropped exactly one point in each of their three matchups. And by "they", we mean "Kevin Foushee". Oh man, how could it be the same guy all three times?! Does their team have a 'sole-loser-buys-a-round' rule? Ouch.

THIS SEASON'S TIEBREAKERS

We had five divisions with a bye every week, and one of those divisions actually dropped to only six teams by the midway point of the season. And those divisions produced a grand total of 40 tiebreakers (34 during the regular season, 6 in the tournaments).

D and G divisions led the way with 7 tiebreakers each, followed by B with 6, E and H with 5 each, A and C with 4 each (with half of the C ones coming in their tournament). Then came F with only 2.

There were 9 teams that each played 3 or more 1001 games, with two of those playing 4 or more. In the end, the title of Cardiac Kids (for most tiebreakers played) was shared by Menace 2 Sobriety in D division and Sofa Kings in G division, with 4 each.

This season's Heartbreak Award officially goes to Show Me Your Tips in C division. Show Me only lost two 1001s (though that tied for the most in the league), but they get this award because both of their losses were to their top rival, with one of them coming in the C tournament final. Oh, painful. (Interestingly, Show Me's only 1001 win in their 1-2 record was actually their semifinal match, so their tournament was pretty heavy on the late-match drama.)

SOME TEAMS HAVE T-SHIRTS…

… but I have my very own custom-made Element jersey, complete with captain patch, a custom team logo on the front, and my last name and the number '50' (the age I turn next week) on the back. My teammate John Carroll had it made for me for my birthday. Check this bad boy out (or just see me at the banquet, as I'm wearing it while running stuff). 33 seasons of at-first-unexpected (and truly unparalleled) success. I love my team. I love my jersey. Bad. Ass.

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK

Nowadays, it's a fact… this column has become a banquet Tons staple. I have no idea why so many are so keen on taking a peek into the oddness that is my head, but you are. So without further ado, let's open up my head again and see what falls out. Some of these observations are dart-related, and some of them clearly are not. As always, this is just about the last thing that I'm writing and this season is certainly no exception… soooo, also as always not even I know what's about to hit the page…

-- Alright, we're going to start right here… I always write this the last day before the banquet, and here I am on Friday the 13th. (side note: you shouldn't pick fights with people named Jason on Friday the 13th… just ask horror movie fans) Anyway, most of you should probably assume that I like Dan Butterworth more than I like you today. Turns out today (Friday) in the new Firehouse Subs "name of the day" promo included my name, and Dan shot me a quick message to hook me up with a free lunch! I wonder if it's too late to switch one of the Boom Baby guys' Mugs over to a Bulls Up one… Hmmm.. (to be fair, my teammate Robbie Phillips also sent me a notice about it too, but Dan was first…)

-- Yeah, I know, I usually start this column with an item about Survivor (because Survivor is awesome, and if you think otherwise, you are wrong). But this fall, my son with whom I always watch this amazing show went off to school in Savannah (the College of Art and Design). Thus, my DVR is chock full of this season's episodes and the binge-watching starts tomorrow since he is now back from school for break! So, I'll still be thinking all the cool Survivor stuff, but it just won't be in time to be here.

-- On a related note, my wife and I had three kids start college this fall (yes, three all at the same - we have four kids in a twelve-month span - and no, not triplets, three are adopted). People talk about how much life changes (and how much expenses change) when they have a kid leave the house for college. Well, we did three at damn once… I guess we really don't do anything in a small way. Yikes. Feels like our house actually changed size.

-- Anybody (everybody?) know somebody who uses the phrase "feelin' some kinda way" to describe people with a whole range of demeanors, mostly because they aren't literate enough to actually tell you how somebody is acting? Yeah, next time they do it, slap them and yell at all of their English teachers. That phrase is pathetic and lazy, and it needs to die.

-- Have you ever driven next to an early model Dodge Stealth? I did recently, and I actually changed lanes to get behind it so I could see what kind of car it was. It looked kind of like it was built from mismatched parts from different cars. It was all the same color and the parts seemed to align well, so I think it really was the design. But I did kinda check to see if it was a Frankencar. Since it apparently wasn't, I have to wonder… who the heck was it that bought those monstrosities? And how did they sell enough to convince the company to keep making them (and thankfully morphing them into the later models that actually look like cars)?

-- Ever wonder what you would/should do if you spend an entire match yelling at your opponents, kissing your biceps, screaming that "it's all over", telling them to "come bite your dk" (which, by the way, seems like a REALLY stupid thing to tell someone to do), and constantly repeating that your opponents "ain't nothin' "… but then you lose the match? Well, evidently what you do is make sure you haul your ass out the door before a single guy can even find you to offer a post-match handshake. [Well, ok, what you should do is make a mental note to never ever ever ever ever be that guy in the first place. But if you are that guy, then I think taking your trash-talking ass out the door before having to face anybody seems like a logical next choice.]

-- There is a whole new facet to being a sports show studio host who brings you current stories from the news desk. A stupidly high percentage of sports "news" now involves social media quotes. Sadly, a disturbing percentage of players posting the messages that become news basically either can't form an actual sentence, or simply don't care to do so. I now find it interesting to see how the sports studio hosts handle those - paraphrase them? Read them verbatim? Read them as though the grammar was an even a fourth cousin of anything written well? Probably not an easy call. Sad that it's even a call that has to be made.

-- As noted earlier in this column, my family has a near-horde of college freshmen this year. That means I'm now well-versed in the FAFSA (yes, the F is before the S in the middle of that acronym - stop calling it the 'fasfa') forms. And in the middle of the form in the ID login check section is this question: "what city were you born in?" Seriously? The form for helping people get education funds includes a question that ends in a preposition? That fact has me feelin' some kinda way…

-- Anybody here play fantasy football? (or are randomly fans of the Jacksonville Jaguars?) If so, can you hear D.J. Chark's name and not hear it in the tune of Baby Shark? Nope, not me, I can't. Deeee Jay Chark do-do-de-do-de-dooo… (If you hadn't thought of that, and from now on you can never hear his name again without hearing that… you're welcome.)

-- Speaking of football (and other sports, but mostly football), I can't tell you how much I'm done with the "keep feeding me" hand roll sign every single time a guy does something even remotely decent. Oh, you're a running back and you ran the ball four whole yards? Because it's, ya know, your job to run the ball… and you did it moderately ok for a play? That requires a dumb ass feed-me hand roll celebration? You're an idiot and I want you to go away. (I'm looking at a lot of you, but especially you, Ezekiel Elliott. Your team has a losing record that matches that of the Cleveland Browns - everybody's favorite butt of jokes. Keep feeding you below-average success? No problem.)

-- Just went to a meeting in Orlando… got a room at a hotel that is also evidently part of a time-share villa complex. Beautiful place. Or at least it will be as soon as the view isn't basically comprised of a lake and a pool behind half a dozen salespeople dragging around groups of folks trying to figure out how to get the hell out of the tour that they were tricked into accepting. Oh my gosh, they are endless - never really gave much thought to a timeshare (just not me), but I've thought about it now. And it's even WAY more not me now that I've thought about it.

-- Are you one of those guys who has installed tail pipes that are extra loud, on either your motorcycle or your redneck muscle car (or maybe your jacked-up truck, I guess)? Well, I will go ahead and confirm it for you: yes, the rest of us do immediately think less of you every single time you rev your engine for no damn reason other than to be the ignorant, self-important center of attention. And yes, we think less and less of you with every single extraneous press of the gas. It turns out that "loud tail pipe" doesn't equate to "cool" or "sexy" or "interesting"; rather it equates to "trashy" or "juvenile" or "annoying" (and likely all three). So, congrats on that.

-- Happy holidays, everyone. Be safe, be happy, see you in 2020.

53 SEASONS OF "A" DIVISION-WINNING HISTORY

Listed below are all of the people that played on an A division-winning team (only players that actually threw a dart are listed), people that won an A division singles title, and people that led A division in overall win/loss percentage. All records starting from the Fall 1993 season are included -- I attempted to include earlier stuff, but the records of who was/wasn't on any given roster, and often who had what win %-ages, weren't included prior to Fall 1993. And many of the statistics and/or roster listings from Fall 1993 through Fall 1995 seem partial at best.

My most sincere congratulations to all listed below. These players have climbed the entire mountain here in RDL. (And a note here: the players listed on winning rosters are from regular season-winning teams. Anybody who has read my newsletters in the past knows what I think when comparing the several-month commitment needed for a regular season vs. the few-hour randomness of tournament victories.)

STATE MEETING RESULTS - SPECIFICS FOR 2020 SEASON

For 2020, the captains did indeed decide to keep going with our standard switch back to an East/West season. There will be the same 13 teams in the NCCDL, and there will be either 11 or 12 teams in the NCLC (depending on whether the Asheville and Boone ladies do or do not come together to re-form as a single team rather than both sitting out). The NCCDL West division will have Asheville, Boone, Pineville, Charlotte, Lake Norman, and Piedmont. The NCCDL East division will have Chapel Hill, Durham, Raleigh, Capital Area, Jacksonville, Wilmington, and Chapel Hill. Teams will play a single round-robin within the division, and will also face two inter-division opponents (with two East teams playing each other again in place of one inter-division match). The NCLC will have similar divisions & match counts, just with Fuquay-Varina flipped to the West to balance team numbers.

HISTORY OF THE NCCDL…

It was back in 1995 that Tim Lane (now of the Raleigh NCCDL team) first introduced the idea of the statewide year-long season style of play to replace the old "one team holds the cup against a string of challengers" sytem. It's still possibly the most popular and successful idea ever for anything larger than a local league. Here are the 24 tournament final results so far:

1996: Raleigh over Charlotte	2004: Wilmington over Durham	2012: Durham over Wilmington
1997: Piedmont over Durham	2005: Durham over Wilmington	2013: Wilmington over Lake Norman
1998: Piedmont over Raleigh/Charlotte(?)	2006: Durham over Charlotte	2014: Durham over Wilmington
1999: Wilmington over Raleigh/Charlotte(?)	2007: Durham over Charlotte	2015: Wilmington over Piedmont
2000: Durham over Charlotte	2008: Durham over Charlotte	2016: Wilmington over Durham
2001: Durham over Wilmington	2009: Wilmington over Charlotte	2017: Wilmington over Durham
2002: Wilmington over Durham	2010: Wilmington over Durham	2018: Wilmington over Durham
2003: Wilmington over Durham	2011: Durham over Lake Norman	2019: Durham over Wilmington

My annual request to the NCLC Ladies: if any of you have a history of the results like the one above for the NCCDL, I would love to have a copy of those so I can periodically run an NCLC history as well. Drop me a line please if you're willing to share.

The "This Only Happened Fourteen Months Later Than Was Originally Planned… Damn Covid" Edition

A SEASON/YEAR/MINI-ETERNITY UNLIKE ANY OTHER…

Ladies and gentlemen, today, Saturday, July 17th, we are celebrating the banquet for the Spring 2020 RDL season. The last league matches were contested 493 days ago. More than a year and four months ago. March 11th, 2020 feels a little bit foreign, as though it wasn't really part of this life, as if it's a false memory placed in my mind by a book or a movie. But I know it was real. And I know that today is real. What feels more unreal is that 492-day span in between then and now.

Intellectually, I've always known that a terrible situation like the ongoing pandemic is completely possible (and maybe even likely within my lifetime). I've been a basic scientist who branches out into clinical care research for nearly three decades, so I am well aware of the potential for something like this at any time. But still, you just never expect all those old photos of similar disasters to re-occur right in front of you. Too comfortable in my first-world existence, I guess.

And while it has been a little soul-crushing not being able to do most of my favorite things (the racquetball courts where I play still don't open until September… geez), the reality is that I personally have had it easy compared to so many others. My wife and I remained employed (yes, there were some changes for both of us - especially for my wife - but no unemployment), none of my family contracted the Covid virus, and we were both lucky enough to be right near the front of the line for the vaccine (hospital jobs for both of us and all that). So I personally can't complain. I can, however, still hate the past 16 months just a little bit - but I won't, because a lot of good things still happened, not the least among them being that I have yet another reminder of all the things and all the people that I appreciate. And I'm still here to enjoy/re-enjoy them as the world recovers and reopens.

I have missed you guys (well, maybe not all of you). I have missed the nights out together. I've missed the stories (yes, even the one you're re-telling for the eighth time). I've missed the laughter. I've simply missed the ability to spend my time in your presence, just sharing in your fun. Welcome back. I'm so very glad you're here.

FINAL!! DIVISIONAL TEAM STANDINGS FOR THE SPRING 2020 RDL SEASON

IMPORTANT NOTE: THESE STANDINGS INCLUDE ALL MATCHES PLAYED THIS SEASON, INCLUDING WEEK 8. THE TOURNAMENT BRACKETS (HAD THEY BEEN PLAYED) WOULD HAVE BEEN BASED ON THE WEEK 7 STANDINGS, SO THAT THE SEEDINGS ARE BASED ON A SCHEDULE PORTION IN WHICH ALL TEAMS FACED THE ALL TEAMS FACED THE SAME OPPOSITION THE SAME NUMBER OF TIMES.

THE SAME IS TRUE FOR DIVISION WINNERS, AS THOSE ALSO WERE BASED ON WEEK 7 STANDINGS.

Teams whose names are underlined in the standings are ones whose standings position does NOT match their week 7 standing. Not everyone should get TOO worked up about being "robbed" of a move up though, as many of these are simply results of pairings that occurred in week 8. These facts will assuredly be considered when seedings for the upcoming Fall 2021 season are selected - to this end, the 2-up/2-down thumbs here reference week 7 team positions.

FALL 2021 RDL SEASON INFORMATION

I put these dates in many locations (pages 1, 4, 6, 46) because they might be your most important thing in this newsletter.

Wed., July 21st - Fall season registration, The Upper Deck (online registration should be available in the days immediately prior to the 21st - Membership Director Heather Bohanan will likely be in charge of early registration, and she will likely hook it up through the website and accept payments through PayPal)
Wed., Aug. 4th - Preseason capts.' mtg./packet pickup, Upper Deck
Wednesday, August 11th - Start of Fall season match play
Monday, Sep. 13th - Fifth week captains' meeting, Upper Deck
Wed., Nov. 17, Dec. 1 & 8 - Fall season divisional tournaments
Saturday, December 11th - Fall season banquet, site TBD

THIS SEASON'S TIEBREAKERS

Look, we only played 8 weeks, so this total is way lower than usual. There were only 17 total tiebreakers, and no division had more than 3 (and five divisions had that). And thus, only 5 teams played in more than one 1001, and two of those went a boring 1-1. Leaving the Cardiac Kids award (most 1001s) for F division's Banging the Wire, the only team to play as many as 3 extra legs (going 2-1). And the Heartbreak Award goes to E division's Is It In?, as the only team to lose a pair of 1001s.

THE PLAYERS WHO BEAT THE SINGLES %-AGE WINNERS

Well… this is the weirdest set of items in this column we've ever had. We played 8 weeks, but for the very clear sake of competitive balance, the season-long awards were based on only the first 7 weeks (so that all teams faced an even schedule of opponents). And that means any wins or losses in singles in week 8 didn't affect these awards. And for quite a few of the folks below, that was critical. The 11 throwers who won or tied for these 7 division titles lost a total of 10 games in weeks 1-7. Then they combined for a stunning 7 losses in week 8 alone!! I went ahead and added the week 8 vanquishers for completeness…

Who beat Robbie Phillips of Birth of an Element in A division?
in 301: (none). in cricket: Joel Dickenson (wk.2).

Who beat Michael Turner of Boom Baby in B division? in 301: Darren Schmaus (wk.1). [then also Jonathan Munsell in wk.8]
in cricket: Joe Munroe (wk.2),

Who beat Jason Zelinack of Boom Baby in B division?
in 301: Tommy Beaird (wk.3).
in cricket: Joe Rigert, Sr. (wk.6),

Who beat Lincoln Havens of Why So Serious? in C division?
in 301: (none). in cricket: Brady Price (wk.6).

Who beat Mikey Hindle of Cheap Shots in C division?
in 301: (none) [other than Stephen Flanagan in wk.8]
in cricket: Mike Bumpass (wk.2).

Who beat J.J. Tant of Projectile Dysfunction in C division?
in 301: (none) [other than Mike Venable in wk.8].

SPRING 2020 PENALTY SUMMARY

Well, I keep saying that the RDL is a whole new world since the removal of the call-in requirement, but I've also noted the addition of newer penalty paths too (earlier sheet return deadline, mandatory 1001 names, new penalty for lack of blocker names). But regardless of which penalties are on the list, most captains have also just gotten better at this stuff. And now in this super-shortened season, the outcome was pretty predictable… we had exactly ONE penalty in the 8 weeks that were actually contested.

Thus, the Sofa Kings in F are obviously the penalty kings for the season. Their week 1 scoresheet return penalty for 16 points is the entirety of the losses for the whole league this season. And it cost them exactly nothing in the standings, soooo… yeah.

There were also two forfeits this season (by Nine Lives in C, and Game of Throws in D), but unless Game had won that match by at least a 20-4 score or more, those two forfeits didn't cost either of those teams anything in the standings either. Which is good news, I think.

Who beat Jimmy Bateman of Sharky's Machine in D division?
in 301: (none) [other than Kevin Olsen in wk.8].
in cricket: Pat Smelik (wk.5).

Who beat Scott Kirkpatrick of Red-eye Rangers in E division?
in 301: (none) [other than Anthony Fey in wk.8].
in cricket: Jay Dean (wk.5). [and then also Pat Ball in wk.8]

Who beat Somchai Samaluk of D.U.C.K.S. in F division?
in 301: (none). in cricket: (none).

Who beat Sebastian Dehnel of Active Shooters in F division?
in 301: (none). in cricket: (none).

Who beat P.J. Davis of The Neighborhood Dart Knights in G division? in 301: (none) [other than Lloyd Miller in wk.8]. in cricket: (none).

NEED ADDITIONAL SUMMER/FALL DART OPTIONS?

Leagues? Blind draws? Tournaments? We have 'em all!

Tuesdays - BCDL - Durham Handicapped Steel-Tip League

The Bull City Dart League returns to its year-round play, after being off for the same giant span as the RDL has. Registration closes this coming Tuesday, July 20th, at 7 pm at Bralie's Sports Bar & Grill in Durham. You can also register by emailing President Kevin Palma (rp3224@gmail.com) before Tuesday evening. The league website is www.thebcdl.org and the league plays Tuesday nights throughout Durham and RTP, and uses a rolling handicap system to level the playing field quite a bit. Teams are 4-8 players (about 6 is the norm), dues are $25/player per season. [Note: league members who were active/paid members in the canceled Sp20 season will have their dues waived this season.]

Thursdays - TDL - in Chapel Hill/Durham

The TDL actually just registered for the fall season, but it's certainly possible that a team will be looking for players (or maybe that the league would even take a full team if you were super fast (they registered just this past Thursday). Contact President Cliff Langston (clifflangston@triad.rr.com) or check the league website (www.ibiblio.org/ncdarts/tdl/) for information. I believe the teams in TDL consist of 6-10 players per team, and dues are $20 per player per season. Recent seasons have used bars in both Chapel Hill and Durham, but I suspect that might vary a bit from season to season based on team preferences and signups.

Or maybe a blind draw…

Page 6 lists the regular weekly blind draws offered by RDL host establishments, and there are a bunch. We have some of our regular host locations back on the lists, of course, including The Upper Deck, Sharky's Place, The Neighborhood, and Brown's Billiards (although it should be noted that not all days and times match the pre-pandemic specifics). And we also have a newcomer to the list, and though Bud's Tavern isn't up to full weekly yet, the draws they do have are making quite the splash.

And for those lookin' for a bigger tournament…

Check pages 27 and 28 for fliers for events in nearby (or at least somewhat nearby) locales, and also the calendar on page 8 for a couple more. Sure, some of these are a bit of a drive, but you've been waiting over a dang year for these to come back, so don't act like a couple extra hours of travel commitment is all of a sudden out of the question. Go. Enjoy. Win or lose, enjoy.

Robbie Phillips	Birth of an Elemer	Lost exactly one game in his six matches.
Stevie Phillips	Birth of an Elemer	Joe National Champ was an obvious pick.
Wil Tan	Birth of an Elemer	4 more wins than ANY other A player.

"B" Division

Tommy Beaird	DD214	Often put the whole team on his shoulders.
Rich Bialaszewski	Show Me Your Ti	With more games, coulda been top record.
Brad Bushman	Show Me Your Ti	Cricket beast and fast game machine.
Joey Gaglione	Boom Baby	Crushed SCkt and was fine in the rest.
Keith Gibbs	Double or nothin'	Most dangerous shot in the whole of B?
Julie Phillips	Double or nothin'	Super solid captain of season winners.
Joe Rigert, Sr.	Show Me Your Ti	Cricket machine was decent in '01 as well.
Jason Zelinack	Boom Baby	5 wins in every set, with 80% win rate.

"C" Division

Jim Butterworth	Bulls Up	Why exactly don't we play him in 501 too?
Tyler Cannizzaro	Why So Serious?	Got better throughout from set to set.
Mike Cole	Why So Serious?	In two-man race for most dangerous in C.
Lincoln Havens	Why So Serious?	Singles crusher who was doubles decent.
Mikey Hindle	Cheap Shots	Needs doubles partner or to drink slower.
Teddy Rice	Why So Serious?	When 5-2 is your worst set record…
Kevin Stewart	Big Bulls	Super singles, and was ok in doubles.
J.J. Tant	Projectile Dysfunc	3 set monster. Then we sit him in 501.

"D" Division

Randy Baldwin	Hump Day!	Clear team leader was way consistent.
Jimmy Bateman	Sharky's Machine	Superb singles tails a bit in doubles.
Barbara Cotton	We Still Don't Kn	Well, it all starts with a perfect '01 record.
Mike Gardner	Loaded Darts	Not a hot 301 starter, but then on fire.
Lonny Kruger	Sharky's Machine	Could use him in a few more matches.
Greg Svede	Shark Shooters	Most dominant season in any division.
Jim White	One Armed Bandi	Will have to teach him how to hit doubles.
Brian Whitley	Treble Yell	0.500 in '01 doesn't torpedo cricket wins.

"E" Division

Jay Dean	Is It In?	Singles was awesome, not so much in 501.
Shane Gouge	Dr.unks	Perfect record after 301 is a little bit nutso.
Chris Haire	Dr.unks	Nothing remarkable, just all really good.
Sean Johnson	OH' SHEETZ!	First three sets were super strong stuff.
Nick Murdock	Dr.unks	Really no idea what that DCkt number is.
Jeff Russell	Kings of the Boar	Ummm… 501 mess is a bit inexplicable.
John Suan	Kings of the Boar	Starts amazingly, then slowly tails off.
Hugh Vance	Is It In?	Seems like he is on this page every season.

Wow, only having 8 weeks of data, and no tournaments at all… this was one of the oddest all-star team selection efforts ever.

"F" Division

Andy Bowen	Banging the Wire	How many seasons >80% is this now?
Sebastian Dehnel	Active Shooters	Uh, yeah, perfect singles record makes it.
Steve Lalino	D.U.C.K.S.	Slight dip in SCkt doesn't sink a solid run.
Heath Perkins	Still F'd	Five weeks of play, 0 or 1 loss per set.
Mark Rossbach	Still F'd	This guy is setting up shop on this team.
Somchai Samaluk	D.U.C.K.S.	1 loss in 27 games. One. Total. Loss.
Brad Wernet	Darty Sanchez	If only he wasn't kind of a part-timer.
Wes Wissinger	My Darts R Bigge	Just another solid-across-the-sets guy.

"G" Division (aw, dang, this set was really difficult to pick…)

Jacob Britt	Coral Reefers	Solid wins, fast games, captained #2 team.
P.J. Davis	Neighborhood Da	3-set beast for team that spreads games.
Dave Finney	Wayne Gretzky	Friggin' ASP machine won a lot of cricket.
Dylan Musil	Is It Still In?	Always a monster, another big season.
Jason Patskoski	Coral Reefers	Simply another good-in-all-sets guy.
Tony Thomas	Neighborhood Da	Why exactly is he not also a DCkt winner?
Jon Thorne	Coral Reefers	Singles specialist needs few more doubles.
Matthew Wilson	Tips & Shafts	Heavyweight hammer led to season crown.

QUICK STAT TIDBITS

-The Quadruple Double Award winners (double-digit wins in all 4 sections): Well, it's pretty clear that we can't use the double-digit qualifier in an 8-week season. Ugh. So I had to pick a new bar, and I decided that for this truncated season, we are going to change this to The Quadruple Six-Pack Award! So it's a club of throwers who won at least 6 games in all sections in this 8-week season. There were 11 throwers who "almost" made it, picking up 6+ wins in three sets (2 in A, 3 in C, 1 in D, 3 in E, 1 in F, and 1 in G), but they didn't match up with the 3 throwers who nabbed 6+ in every set. Thus, the first (and only) members of the Quadruple Six-Pack Award are: Wil Tan of Birth of an Element in A division (who actually won 7 games in every set), Greg Svede of Shark Shooters in D division (who also won 7+ games in every set), and Somchai Samaluk of Darters.Under.Constant.Kilts.Scrutiny (D.U.C.K.S.) in F division.

-IronMan/Woman Award: No byes this season, although 2 teams did receive forfeit wins, so not a "perfectly" even match availability, but pretty dang close. And the Iron Man/Woman competition bore that out pretty accurately. 5 of the 7 divisions were led by folks who played the same 34 games, including: Patrick Merkle, Ross Minty and Sid Mitchell in A; Chris Peterson, Mike Steppe and J.J. Tant in C; Jimmy Bateman in D; John White in F; and Misty Wilson in G. And 1 division was led by two guys who played only one less at 33 games: Brad Bushman and Matt Ridgway in B. Which leaves us with our only player who tossed more than 34 games (actually throwing 36) and earning this season's Iron Woman Award: Angela Jeffcoat of Rock Out With Your Cork Out!

-The Team Attendance Award winners: Wasn't really sure what I would find in this category. Short enough season for a team to make it with the exact same six-player lineup all season? Or not enough weeks to really recognize the trend? Well, a handful of teams kinda sorta made a run at this one (Tips & Shafts in G being maybe the closest competitor), but in the end, it was clear that one team ran away with this crown. Wayne Gretzky in G division only had 6 throwers all season, and only one of them missed even one match. Tight-knit group! Nice.

MY PRESEASON, WEEKLY, & TOURNEY PREDICTION RESULTS

As usual, I'm left with the option of trying to bluff my way through this part, or just telling the truth. And since I know some of you squirrel away every last thing I've ever written about your team, I will again give real results… bummer. Sometimes these results can border on embarrassing…

But wow, this season is like no other. We only had a little over half a season. So the only fair way to assess my preseason picks (often the hardest of all the picks) is to use the 7-week even-schedule standings that were used for the season-long awards/division winners. And it turns out that I got roughly the same amount of really spot-on picks as usual, and also about the same number of crazy off-target demonstrations of stupidity. I didn't nail A from the top to the bottom, but I only had one team more than one spot from where they ended up. In B, I separated the top half and bottom half properly, but had jumbles within each of those four-team packs. Over in C, I way overestimated Cheap Shots and underestimated Projectile, but got most of the rest. As for D, do you see my terrible pick record on the next page? Yeah, my preseason picks weren't even that good. I did pretty well in E despite over-hyping Is It In? a bit. But then I really missed out on Still F'd and the Ducks in F - nowhere near enough respect. Finally, in G, I didn't see the Tips & Reefers hitting those top 2 spots.

My weekly prediction results you can peruse pick-for-pick on the other side of this sheet of paper. As noted on that page, I did pretty well (as long as you ignore Projectile Dysfunction in C and most of D division). I super-duper-tanked D. Yikes. I was over 70% in six divisions, and was ok in F, but I was 3 picks under 0.500 in D. That is just terrible. In spite of the D-bacle, I still ended up at over 70% right for the season. Not too bad considering that I didn't really get much time to develop a feel for the teams and do better in a second half.

Last but not least are generally the tournament predictions… Often when we ump to best-of-3, my picks get stronger, despite the fact that I'm picking semis and finals that I conceivably could have wrong before the matches are even set. But as we all know, I didn't get a chance to ever make these picks… sigh.

JK'S TEAM-BY-TEAM, WEEK-BY-WEEK MATCH PREDICTION RESULTS

(I introduced this page thirty-three seasons ago, and it has become almost expected as a newsletter staple. Feast your eyes on the success...)

For several years, many of you have taken no greater pleasure in your weekly darting endeavors than to email, text, or call me, and point out to me just how wrong I was in my prediction of your match result. On a related note, I have noticed that many of you seem to have relatively selective memories saving only the weeks when I was wrong. Further, many others of you regularly embellish your statistics of how often you fool me. It's not so easy to get away with those rambles anymore, however, as you can see below. Each W is a week when I picked your match correctly, and each L is one I picked incorrectly. Division totals are to the right of the team totals, weekly totals are at the bottom, and in the space between the 14 weeks and the team totals, the nine(!) 'o' symbols indicate the teams for which I was only 0.500, and the four(!) 'x' symbols indicate the teams that fooled me more often than not. [Obviously, things got cut off early this time around, so I didn't really have time to bounce back in the case of teams that threw me off right from the start. I really never understood Projectile Dysfunction in C, or most of D division… yikes. Awful there. - JK]

WEEKS 9-14 (AS WELL AS THE DIVISIONAL TOURNAMENTS) LOST TO THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC

YESTERDAY, THE TRIANGLE. -- TODAY, THE NATION. -- TOMORROW… THE WORLD !!!

2021 RDL World Domination Tour, part I

It seems like every few years, I get the absolute honor of writing up this type of amazing result for an RDL member. And while a pandemic has changed a whole lot about our world, one thing that it hasn't changed is that the RDL is still sending players out to kick ass nationwide (and beyond? read on…). Along those lines, please allow me to introduce you to the new World Darts Federation (WDF) Masters National Champion, Stephen Phillips (of Birth of an Element)!! And yes, we know Stephen as Stevie, but when you win a damn national title, you get to formalize your name in any damn way you want. In a room full of the nation's heavy hitters, Phillips posted a super stout 18-3 record in the opening round robin to easily advance to the final bracket of 12 throwers (from which the top four would advance to the World Masters). And when he got into that final dozen (which was chock full of past national champs), after a very brief slow start, Phillips began picking off competitor after competitor by 3-0 and 2-1 margins. The roll continued for so long that he compiled a stunning 25-8 record in that final round robin, and ended up not just making the top four and advancing, but also taking the overall top spot as the Masters National Champion!!! But beyond the (completely amazing) title as National Champ, what comes with that finish? An invite to the World Masters in The Netherlands!!!! The motha-fuin' Netherlands, people!! Now THAT is your hobby taking you somewhere. Phillips will be joined by Jason Brandon, Jules Van Dongen, and Joe Chaney, who rounded out the top four finishers. But wait… that's not the end of the "RDL taking over the world" idea here… Dan Naylor (of The Neighborhood Bullies) finished as the alternate and likely will get to go as well! And… it also looks like Stevie's brother Robbie (of Birth of an Element) might well get an alternate spot too!! (p.s. that first line above where I talk about getting to congratulate national champs? Naylor and the other Phillips are the others among that group!) And now you'll all know the origin day in history that first led to the "RDL Invades Netherlands" news headline that is seemingly imminent. [And as for the photos here, the one on the right is a stolen frame from a video of one brother getting the opportunity to be the first to tell the other brother that he just clinched his trip. Those who know the Phillipses can barely watch that video without choking up a bit. One of the best darting moments I've ever had the pleasure to witness. Congrats.]

2021 RDL World Domination Tour, part II

Ok… if you thought that story up above was cool, just wait until you hear THIS shit (yes, I can cuss here despite the story subject's age, because there are times when regular words just aren't strong enough). Over the past 25 years, I have written about some truly fantastic things (including the item above, of course). But the story I am about to share with you is absolutely a finalist in any debate over the single most impressive feat that I've ever included in the Tons. Let's approach the parts of this story one at a time, shall we? We begin with the left photo below… That is a recent photo of Peter Stewart, Jr. (who most of you know as P.J. Stewart, of The Neighborhood Bullies), after he took a quick trip down to the Cherry Bomb tournament in Coral Springs, FL, and came home as the 2021 United States Sports Dart Alliance (USSDA) Winmau Youth National Champion!!! And he didn't just win that title, he did it with a shutout in the best-of-9 finals!! (Holy crap, level 1.) Now, let's advance to the second photo from the left below. That particular photo is of Stewart in July at the Charlotte Open, where he claimed the 2021 ADO Youth National Championship!! (Holy crap, level 2.) But wait… he won that second title in Charlotte. Isn't that where Stevie Phillips clinched that trip to the Netherlands up above? Well, yet it is. And you know what? Stewart's title there earned him an invite to The mutha-fuin' Netherlands too!!!!!! The RDL invasion of northern Europe is now attacking from all sides (and ages!). (Holy crap, level 3.) But wait, we are sooooo not done here. Ladies and gentlemen, there are only two Youth National Title events per year, which means that Stewart is the ONLY youth national champ this year (well, on the boys' side, of course). Stewart alone brought the entirety of the Youth National events home to the RDL. But all that does is bring us to the photo on the right. That particular image is of Stewart claiming the ADO Youth National Masters Championship back in 2019 (when he was only 13, and took out all the 17&unders - look how young he looks compared to his 15-year-old self now)! That one sent him to the World Masters over in England that year, so he's already a seasoned traveler. (Holy crap, level 4.) And while I don't have a photo handy of it, Stewart ALSO won the 2019 USSDA Youth National Title that year too!!! (Holy crap, level 5.)

Now let's go with a little summary here for those who didn't quickly digest what they just read… Stewart won BOTH youth titles in 2019. And he won BOTH youth titles in 2021. People, Covid-19 canceled both events in 2020, so the upshot story here is that P.J. Stewart is the only youth boys' national champion since 2018. Let that sink in. No youth male, in a nation with 329 million people, has won a national title since a year and half before the seemingly endless pandemic. With these photos we have somehow captured images of domination incarnate. (Holy cow, level infinity.)

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK

Nowadays, it's a fact… this column has become a banquet Tons staple. I have no idea why so many are so keen on taking a peek into the oddness that is my head, but you are. So without further ado, let's open up my head again and see what falls out. Some of these observations are dart-related, and some of them clearly are not. I'm never sure what's about to hit the page, but anyway… whatever…

-- It's tradition to start this column with something about the awesome TV show Survivor. So, here it is… It's just a dang TV show, but here is yet another thing shoved into a box and stored in a back of the attic by Covid. I miss the big things, I miss the medium things, and I miss the little things. Like Survivor. Damn.

-- But you know what I found to fill the Survivor void in the show-watching portion of my life? Battlebots! Yeah, yeah, it's that geeky robot-fighting show from twenty years ago. Except that Discovery channel picked it up a few years ago, and the production is really intelligent and funny. And I'm a little stunned that something that initially felt like it would be so repetitive to watch is actually really really interesting. I guess maybe it's just a different competition focusing on outlasting the competition? Maybe that's just my speed, I suppose. (And before anybody says I should also watch The Bachelor/ette, please know that is the only show in my "never" file. Just, never. I find the whole thing vile. If you just want to watch super-entitled, arrogant and conceited fame whores act out soft-core porn, then just watch a bunch of MTV and actual soft-core porn. Don't try to pretty it up with that bullshit of a fake competition script. Vile. Puke.)

-- And one more very related TV note… an actual reason to watch MTV (since they don't do music videos anymore). I saw the ad for it while watching Battlebots on demand. It's a spinoff of Ridiculousness that is nothing but cure kid videos!! Seriously. It's called Adorableness, and it is going to be freaking awesome!! (Sadly, I also expect that it will be short-lived, as I seem to be in the strong minority in wanting to see everything little kid ever.)

-- Anybody else have a career where you interact with mental health workers and therapists on any regular basis? There are a lot of psychologists in my department, and we have a lot of Grand Rounds that focus on social issues close to the psychologists' hearts (note: I'm in the Department of Psychiatry). And you know what phrase they use to no end, that I really want to die a quick and fiery death? That people have to "be present." Be present in your marriage. Be present in your relationship with your parents. Be present in your child's education. Be present in… flippin' everything, it seems. On the surface, the first time or fifty that you hear that, it seems like a decent assessment. But a thousand uses later, it's just another nothing-phrase that people use when they don't what else to say in their advice.

-- You know the old debate of nature vs. nurture? Are traits and talents more heavily determined genetically or by your own life influences? Well, I've heard people make a lot of jokes about the kids of two darters being the future of the league, and how good they will be at the game. I'm guessing that would only be true if the parents start the kids throwing at a young age, and not because the parents have darting talent. On the prior page, I trumpeted the astonishing success of Stevie Phillips, and also noted that it is very similar to his brother Robbie's. Two of the best darters on the continent in the same family?! And while I'm going to tell you that you should definitely hang out with Stevie's/Robbie's parents, Richard and Lisa, I'm also definitely telling you that dart championship success is not genetically determined. Being very nice, very fun to be around, and very positive-minded? Now those look to be passed on genetically. But dart talent? Not so much. This data is clear. (Side note to Richard and Lisa: I love you both. You just won't be on Element any time soon.)

-- Ummm… I'm not sure that I can quite recommend ALL of the flavors of ice cream shakes at Cook Out. Chocolate, cherry, M&M, and Reese's all certainly sound good. And for the weird among us, I guess maybe the Butter one could draw in a few fans. But that last one on the board, I'll pass… (Spacing and grammar matter, people.)

-- Do any of you get those ridiculous click bait types of sports columns in their social media feeds? The ones where the writers just endlessly write about "this blockbuster trade would be huge for team X?" My friend (and ex-RDL member) Britt Whitley summed it up perfectly in a comment recently: "All these idiot writers with their proposed trades think they are playing Madden with the salary cap turned off." Perfect descriptor. Please don't click on those stories, so maybe they will eventually go away…

-- You know how a lot of people tell their significant other that "you're my hero" in response to basically everything a normal responsible adult should do (be faithful, help raise the kids, stay employed, etc.)? Yep, pretty common. And that's really sweet. But I gotta be honest that I got a whole new perspective on heroes in the past year. Everybody saw all the news stories, posters, and billboards thanking the front line healthcare workers, and we (mostly) all understood and agreed. But I got to see it up close. My wife is a respiratory therapist, and when a third of the people in her department quit when things got rough in 2020, she volunteered to switch to 12-hour night shifts in the direct Covid care clinics. Because those people needed her. Even the ones who previously thought the whole thing was a hoax or a political ploy. And while the number of cases here was nothing like the disaster zones that New York and Houston were, it was still an exhausting drain on her, physically, mentally, and emotionally. And then she would come home and try not to listen to coverage of people baselessly attacking the veracity of what she had to watch every night. Many people recovered, while many others did not. Families were torn apart in despair in front of her, and at the end of the day, she would come home, sleep, and then go do it again. And she didn't complain, because that's who she is. She of course wanted it all to end, but until that day, she knew that this was what she had signed up for (even though this was not even reality when she signed up). So nowadays, when I tell my wife that she is my Hero, that H is capitalized for a reason.

-- My workplace put up a bunch of posters in the walkways, thanking all the hospital employees for their commitment during the past year. I swear that at first I thought they had, for some reason, photoshopped a younger Tim Conway onto one of the doctors. You guys see it, right? (well, not the young folks…)

-- I'm super glad that the Tampa Bay Lightning took out the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup finals. Why? Because Montreal LOST 57% of their games this season. It's basically proof that regular season games are pointless, and there's no reason to pay the ever-growing ticket (and parking!) prices.

REMINDERS FOR FUTURE SEASONS - two that are especially highlighted in our half-season and the one set to follow it…

Two-Up / Two-Down is a guideline, not a guarantee We always track which teams finish in the top-two or the bottom-two of a division, because that is our general guideline for seeding the following season. But please do remember that this is NOT set in stone. If teams change composition, or teams fold, or new teams form, all of those factors can result in situations where the Membership Committee has to move up (or down) more or less teams. Heck, sometimes we don't even return the same number of divisions. Our league composition is "pretty static", so it's often no issue… but sometimes. Just know there aren't guarantees, and divisions are not determined until all rosters are actually submitted.

There are minimum games played requirements for awards It never ceases to amaze me how often people miss out on Mug awards by simply not paying attention to the minimum games requirements. They are in every newsletter of the entire season. Page 4, week after week.

[Like we have for many seasons, we used three-song groups each week (except for week 9 and the traditional long week 14 set) and also included a theme each and every week. Adds a layer to the game for everybody and has been hugely popular. Here are the themes for each week*, including the week 14 twenty-song set, which brought a few answer guess sets even though we weren't playing at the time…*

Week 2 theme: Secrets… doing things when you think nobody will see… and begging for honesty… If you got the songs and still didn't see that this one was about the ongoing impeachment trial (whether you agree or disagree with it), then you are in denial of what's in front of you and that probably says something about… well… a lot of facets of you. (unless of course you're dealing with your own personal losses at the moment, of course). Week 3 theme: Yep, this was about the start of the coronavirus outbreak. Week 4 theme: Just dreams, nothing bigger than that. Dreams, hopes, positive stuff. I figured that after a couple weeks of themes from crappy and sad headlines, we could use something a little happier. Week 5 theme: Well, I received a few guesses based around a combination of love/lust/desire, and those are probably pretty good ideas for a theme. But I will be honest that I simply pulled three songs with one-word feelings that ended in '-ation'. I think maybe you guys are all just smarter than me, and I can live with that. Week 6 theme: Bikers and biker life. No idea at all what might have put that in my head… No idea at all. [Note added for banquet Tons: this set of lyrics happened to be in the same issue as a team permanently leaving its home bar for some reason…] Week 7 theme: Yep, females who use their "assets" to get what they want. Not that any of us know any of those. Week 8 theme: Songs that are set in restaurants, of course. I guess maybe I was just hungry and wanting to go out to eat when I picked these? Week 9 theme: Clearly, it's Covid-19 and its shot at ending our lifestyle as we know it. I had to include two songs I used in past years (the ones by Prince and R.E.M.), but they were too perfect to not include. Week 10 theme: It was kind of an easy one to choose for the week after the Coronavirus set, but this one was pretty obviously social distancing. At least I got the sets in the correct order, right? Week 11 theme: I'll present this theme in the perfect words of lyrics game player Dawn Clement: "Duh, time passing by as we sit at home (hopefully) self-isolating." Yep, Clement nailed it. Week 12 theme: Few artists are "legend" enough that they warrant their own lyric set, even upon the unfortunate event of their death. But Bill Withers is, without a doubt, one of those. Such a loss. Week 13 theme: Pretty obviously, this was another nod to being stuck at home without a whole to do outside the house. Ugh. Week 14 theme: Song titles with avenue/boulevard/highway/lane/road/street in them, listed alphabetically by the type of road included in the name. The most amazing part to me here is that, with the super delays in interaction and communication from the pandemic, I never actually reported the songs/artists/theme from this week until now. It was so long before I sent out the week 60-ish issue, I guess I just forgot. Oh well, you have the answers now. Week 60-ish theme: Listen… if you just read through any part of the WEEK SIXTY issue of the Spring 2020 Tons, and you can't see the theme here, I'm not sure I can really help you…

THIS SEASON'S TRIVIA QUESTIONS… REVISITED

I now run this column during seasons in which I've included trivia questions all season. Each question is listed exactly as it was during the season, so there is potential for a question to now be out of date, but it's usually not too much of a problem. Each question is listed under the week number when it ran, and the answers follow the questions. No peeking…

[Note: as with most historical statistics questions that I can ask here in the Trivia column, the following questions includes only the most recent 48 (now 49) seasons, as that is the amount of time I have been statistician - records prior to that are largely incomplete and unavailable, and some things like doubles and overall records for individual weren't even tracked in many of the prior seasons. Pretty soon, I'm just going to start referring to my time here as 'the modern era', especially since my time now covers almost two-thirds of the time since the RDL even threw its first dart. - JK]

Week 7 question(s): This season's A division has 75(!) players registered on the division's 8 teams. Over my 49 seasons as the RDL statistician, what is the record number of players in one division for a season? And as a secondary question, what is the record number of players in a 7-team division?

Week 8 question(s): During my 49 seasons as statistician, how many times has a team eventually registered more than a full roster of 10 players (meaning they either replaced an active player before the 5th week meeting, or had some extraordinary situation that dropped them below 6 throwers later in the season)? And what is the single season record for number of players on one team?

Week 9 question(s): In my 49 seasons as the statistician, how many times before this week has the RDL Board enacted a mandatory postponement of matches? When was it / due to what events? (and as noted earlier in this issue of the week 9 issue of the Tons, there have been NO prior pure cancellations in my time here)

Week 12 question: While this season is clearly going to set the new record, before Covid-19 stole six weeks of darts, what was the record for the fewest matches actually "played" by a division winner (at least in my previous 48 seasons as the statistician)? [For those who are confused and immediately think "well, duh, 7 team divisions play 12 matches - note that some matches in any given season can be dumped to forfeits and are not actually "played".]

Week 13 question: It's pretty understandable that teams are more likely to "climb to A" more times than they are to other divisions, simply because there is nowhere to go beyond that, and the teams already there are generally pretty good. Thus, it's quite possible to climb up, fall back down, and climb up again. It's so common, in fact, that some teams (Things That Bounce, for example) name themselves after the phenomenon. But regardless of how much we joke about it, what actually is the record number of times for the same team to climb to A division (at least during my 24-year tenure as RDL statistician)?

Week 14 question: With the shorter regular season due to the pandemic this season, we certainly ended with fewer people tossing a regular season perfect throw. Including this season, which 10 people have the longest current string of regular seasons with at least one perfect throw? (Note: no, I haven't already looked up the answer, and I don't even know if as many as 10 people have even two seasons in a row now. :o)

Week 7 answer: Well, this season's A division was almost record-sized, but not quite. It turns out we have had 76 players in a division three times previously (although those three times were not created equally). Fall 2005's D division eventually reached 76 players, but that's because the Travelin' Beer Bellies replaced 2 of their 10 players at the fifth week meeting (meaning there were never more than 74 active players at the same time in that division). Similarly, Fall 2011's G division reached 76 because Tossers! made a replacement of a previously-active thrower after week 3. Which means that Fall 2005's F division was the only division to ever have 76 active throwers, with five 10-member teams, two 9-member teams and one 8-member team. And as far as 7-team divisions go, they have actually been "closer to full", with 67-player divisions hitting the list 4 times -- Spring 2008's D division, Spring 2010's I division, (the only I div. ever), Spring 2019's G division, and Fall 2019's G division (yep, that's G division throughout all of last year!).

Week 8 answer: Over the last 49 seasons, we've had probably a couple hundred teams that replaced somebody who had yet to play before the 5th week meeting roster deadline. And we've had quite a pile of teams unofficially "declare" that somebody was o their team and wouldn't play anymore. But it has been a much smaller number of teams that have paid for an 11th player to replace one who had already thrown and thus wasn't replaceable for free. In 49 seasons, we've had 2770 teams, and only 16 of those ended up having more than 10 players as part of thei rosters (with Fall 2005's Travelin' Beer Bellies in D division as the only team to reach 12 members who actually played one or more matches).

Week 9 answer: It is indeed true that these are the first cancelle matches during my 49 seasons here, but how many weeks have had a "mandatory" postponement sort of depends on how yo define that. You see, there has been only 1 week ever in which the league simply said "no matches are to be played and all must be postponed" - that was week 2 of the Spring 2000 season on January 26th, 2000, when the blizzard named the Carolina Crusher came through and dropped 15-30 inches of snow on the Triangle (And yes, that really is the name given to it - I honestly didn't know that until I just looked it back up recently though.) In addition, there have been 4 other weeks in which the RDL Board declared the default to be postponement for all matches (while acknowledging that some teams might choose to play, and that they would indeed accept those outcomes as legitimate). In all four of those cases, some matches were indeed played on match night. On January 29th, 2014 (Sp14 wk02), 28 of 31 matches were postponed due to a snowstorm; on February 12th, 2014 (Sp14 wk04), 29 of 31 matches were postponed due to the craziest icy road day ever; on February 18th, 2015 (Sp15 wk05), 18 of 27 matches were postponed due to an ice storm; and the very next week, on February 25th, 2015 (Sp15 wk06), 18 of 27 matches were again postponed due to icy roads. [Additionally, there have been three weeks that had no league postponement mandate, but carried a large number of postponements by mutual agreement of the teams involved: on August 26th, 1998 (Fa98 wk03), 13 of 25 matches were postponed due to the threat of Hurricane Daniell (on a night where it barely sprinkled here in the Triangle! Ha!); on September 15th, 1999 (Fa99 wk06), 18 of 22 matches were postponed due to Hurricane Floyd; and on January 28th, 2004 (Sp04 wk01), 7 of 24 matches were postponed, and 2 more were forfeited, due to icy road conditions.]

Week 12 answer: As noted, this season has produced an octet of division winners who only played… well, 7 matches? 8 matches Not even sure how to define that since the very even-handed decision was made to use the midway standings (meaning every team faced the exact same opponent lineup) as the final pre-Covid standings. But before all that went down, I was statistician for 24 whole years. And in those 48 seasons, there were 357 division-winning teams, and all but 14 of them actually had to "play" 12 or more weeks of the season. All 14 of those were, unsurprisingly, in

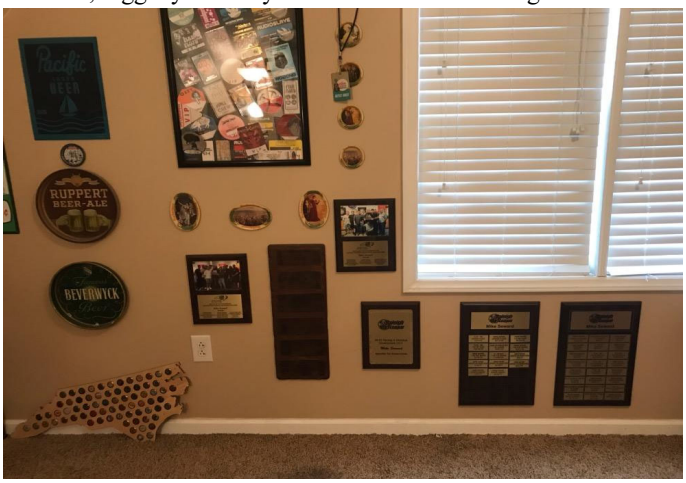
7-team divisions (meaning the schedule started with only 12 match nights). And among those 14 whose seasons were bit shortened bit shortened by an opponent's forfeit(s), 12 were cut short by only a single match, including: Fa99 - C - Horsemen; Fa99 - D - Get the Point; Sp00 - C - Get the Point (back-to-back seasons!); Fa01 - C - Excalibur; Sp10 - I - Mug Hunters (the only I division ever); Fa14 - F - One Armed Bandits; Fa15 - E - Them Handsome Devils; Fa15 - F - Missing Flights; Sp17 - G - Show Me Your Tips; Sp18 - H - Brown's Bombers; Fa18 - H - Dr.unks; and Fa19 - H - Not Dead Ducks Yet. Which leaves us with just the two division winners who played the fewest matches ever, each toeing the line only 10 times in the 14-week season: Fa08 - H - Coral Reefers, and Sp19 - H - Darty Sanchez. H division ended up leading this list with 5 of the 14 sub-12-match winners (including the 4 most recent).

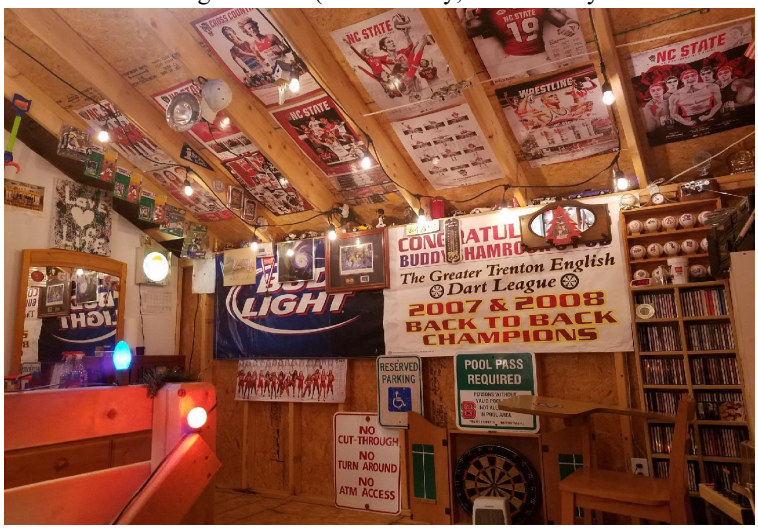


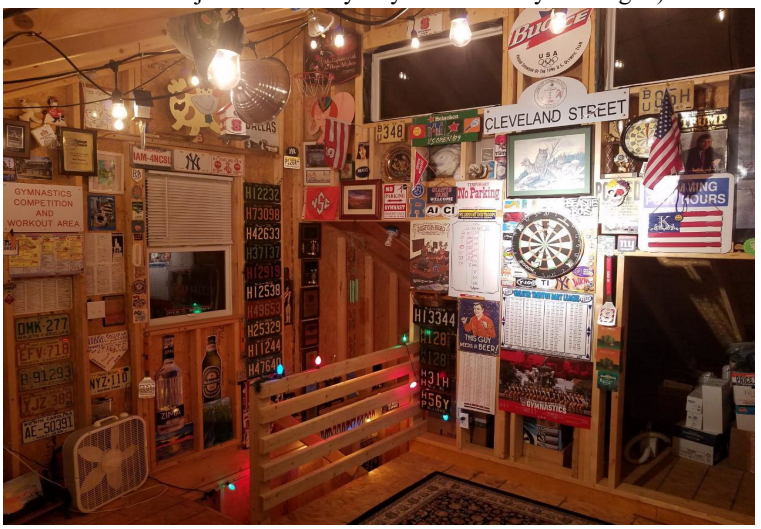
Week 13 answer: In the 49 seasons since I became statistician, the simplest guess would be that a maximum of 98 teams (2 per season) could climb into A. Technically, more than 2 "could" climb up in a single season, but that hasn't happened during my tenure. What has happened quite a few times though, is that fewer than 2 climb up in a season (13 times only one team has climbed, and 0 times have no teams climbed up to A). That means that 85 total climbs to A have been made, and those 85 have been spread among 49 different teams. [Note: teams almost never stay exactly the same, so I've just done my best to estimate when a team is/isn't safely considered to be the "same" team.] And since only 49 teams have climbed to A, that means that 36 of those 85 climbs were made by a team that had already done it at least once prior (and possibly more if it came before 1996). 29 teams have climbed to A 1 time, 13 teams have climbed to A 2 times, and 2 teams have climbed to A 3 times, leaving our top five all climbing to A at least 4 times. Tied for 4th with 4 climbs to A are the team lineages of Appetite for Destruction (who last played in 2018) and Dartistic Disturbance. And then tied for 2nd with 5 climbs to A are the team lineages of Cheap Shots and Liver Die! Leaving our #1 B-to-A bouncing squad to be the team lineage of Dazed & Confused / Drunksten / Pour Boys / Lager Heads (basically the Fuquay group captained by Scott Butters up through 2015) with a stunning SIX climbs up to A division.

Week 14 answer: Alright, due to the shortened season ending our perfect throw group at only 36 individuals, it turns out that we don't have 10 people with a regular season perfect throw in more than one season in a row now. Only 7 of this season's 36 have a string going now, but we are going to go ahead and give an honorable mention for 8th-10th on this list: all three of Randy Massengill, Tim Mozzetti, and Greg Svede failed to hit a regular season perfect throw in the Fa19 season, but they did each pitch one in the tournaments. So, they're going to be our 8th-10th guys. But onward to the 7 with an actual regular season string now! We have five guys with a 2-season string, including George Guenther, Lee Jeffreys, Stevie Phillips, Joe Rigert, and Wil Tan (and Tan actually almost made it 3 seasons with a Sp19 tournament 9m; which would have actually made it 4 seasons, as he had one in Fa18 too). And that brings us to the only two throwers with more than a 2-season string. Our runner-up is P.J. Stewart (of The Neighborhood Bullies), who is presently on a 4-season run. And the top dog is a complete stunner… Robbie Phillips (of Birth of an Element), who has a measly little 25-season(!) string. If we counted a season with just a tournament throw, that string would actually grow to 31 seasons (that dang Fall 2007 season was a tourney-only season). And those 31 seasons of course take us back to the last time Phillips hit zero perfect throws, in the Fall 2004 season. Ok, to be fair, Phillips lived in Pennsylvania that season, but he still didn't have a perfect throw in our league, soooo… (For those who are wondering what his perfect throw count is since he moved back from PA, he has 99 and 33 in the regular seasons and tournaments, respectively, during that span.)

OUR PANDEMIC-TIME HIGHLIGHTING OF SOME HOME DART SETUPS!! (this first submission from "week 11")

This past year, we spent a LOT more time at home than we normally do. But we are still all (ok, mostly all) darters at heart. And that means that instead of taking our games out to a couple dozen host establishments each week, we were likely throwing in (literally) hundreds of our homes! And I was betting some of us have some pretty awesome setups! Or some terrible, but funny or loveable, ones. Whatever. In any case, this pandemic we highlighted whatever the heck our brothers/sisters have in their setups!! Old stuff, new stuff, raggedy or fancy. Here were those willing to share.





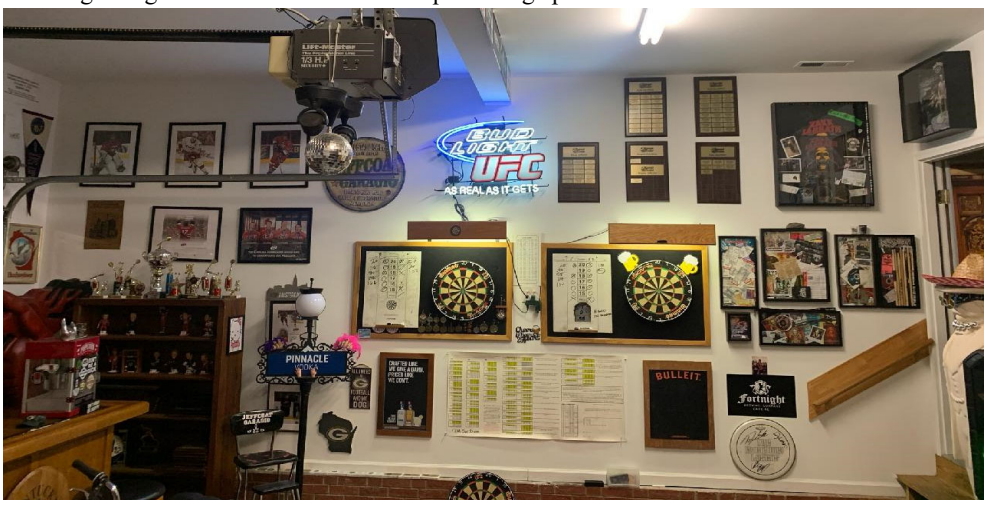
We started off the four weeks of this (as it turns out) crowd favorite item with an excellent set of offerings from Mike Seward of Deez Nuts. Clearly, Seward has a lot more high-end awards than most of us will ever earn (since mathematically we can't all be in the league's handful of most successful players ever), but not all of this is dart-winning stuff out of our reach. The photos to the right aren't dart stuff at all - instead, they're close-ups of some of his collections of backstage passes to an AMAZING array of concerts - Pearl Jam, Pink Floyd, Audioslave, Black Sabbath, Neil Young, etc. Sooo… I guess pretty much everything here IS out of our reach, just not in a dart-only sense. Anyway, please know that neither I nor anyone else expect anyone else's photos to include quite this much cool stuff (in fact, I kinda hoped they wouldn't, or I would feel worse about my own sad little life). But, some others' stuff is pretty dang crazy too (see the next four pages!) Also, no truth to the rumor that "all of the awards above were actually earned by Kenny Persson"… maybe just… "some"? "most"?

MORE HOME DART SETUPS!! (these submissions from "week 12")

Building off the initial set of photos from Mike Seward's home dart setup (previous page), we received quite a few additional excellent entries. Those start below, and I we kept adding people for a couple more weeks (as you can see on the next three pages). Here was the original descriptor from before the first of this type of column: "Ok, so we are all spending a LOT more time at home than we normally do. But we are still all (ok, mostly all) darters at heart. And that means that instead of taking our games out to a couple dozen host establishments each week, we are likely throwing in (literally) hundreds of our homes! And I'm betting some of us have some pretty awesome setups! Or some terrible, but funny or loveable, ones. Whatever. In any case, shoot me some photos and let's see where all of us play!! Laser-eye lines? Board from 1983? Special beer shelf? Let's see it all! Let's get to know each other, no?"

Alright, we started off week 12 with what can only be described as Bob Kuppler's (of the D.U.C.K.S.) incredible man-barn on steroids! (I call it a man-barn instead of a man-cave because this particular room is housed in a side building that isn't actually attached to Kuppler's house, and that structure sort of looks a little bit like a barn.) Anyway, the left photo of the treasure trove of memorabilia is at the top of the stairs that lead you up to the dart room, and the right photo is the view looking back toward the board/throwing area. This treasure trove has random signs, sports memorabilia, what looks to be a rack of DVDs, license plates, dart awards from more than one state, and probably even a couple kitchen sinks. What interested me the most personally though, is the "second" dartboard, apparently mounted to something at floor level near the top of the steps in the left photo. Is that one so people have something to throw at when the party has gone on so long that they can no longer stand? (Alternatively, I can already hear the "short teammate's board" jokes that many of you are already crafting…)

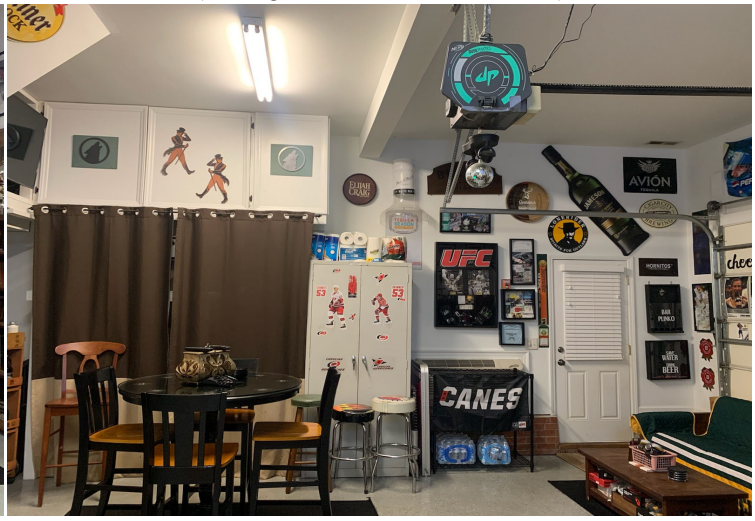
And now returning back to the land of the normal person's setups (kudos to Kuppler on his beast above, but there is no way we are classifying that as a normal amount of… anything). This one belongs to longtime reader (and longtime TDL/Chapel Hill, BCDL/Durham, and NCCDL/city league member) Matt Heimbach. Matt's photo comes with some pretty funny commentary: "Attached is my dart setup. Nothing special, but two interesting notes: 1) I mostly took this picture to help me remember the setup, because later this week I'm taking it all down. We had another son a few weeks ago, and I'm getting kicked out of my man cave to make room for him. In a few years we'll have both boys share a room and I'll reclaim it, but for now - adios, dartboard. 2) Up until the lockdown, I actually didn't throw on the board very much, and when I did, I didn't use the scoreboard. So if you look hard enough at the scoreboard, you'll see that it is a (very) handicapped game of doubles 01 between my wife and me against [multi-time state champions] Robbie and Julie [Phillips]. Probably only the 2nd or 3rd time my wife ever threw a dart. That was the only time Robbie and Julie have ever been to our house - back in the brief time that they lived in my neighborhood. So - 2013 or 2014, maybe? I can't remember. Anyway, obviously I don't use the scoreboard very often! -- -- With the lockdown, I finally broke down and signed up for Dartconnect and now I throw against the computer quite a bit. The computer can be an asshole, though. Lots of big finishing shots way over its head in both 01 and cricket. Cheater. [Oh, so it's still like you're playing Robbie at your place… nice. - JK]



Next up, we had a setup tinged with some strong Hurricanes additions, from Tom Winters of Repeat A-ffenders. This one, with an awesome summer-y wall color in my opinion, is just absolutely dripping in individual white Mugs - certainly not the standard by which most of us live… yikes! You go, Winters.

EVEN MORE HOME DART SETUPS!! (these submissions also from "week 12")

And now we come to what might be a bit of a historic setup in some parts of RDL-land… a modified room that is so developed and revered that it has taken on its own widely used nickname. Ladies and gentlemen, I present to you "The Garagio". What used to be a garage at the home of Angela Jeffcoat (of Rock Out With Your Cork Out!) and Doug Jeffcoat (of Consistently Inconsistent) has become many things… a hall of collectibles… a display of darting awards from nearly every level of play across at least five leagues… a hosting area for birthday celebrations… a late-night conversation spot… an impromptu blind draw site… and, for some of the Jeffcoats' closest friends, very much a home away from home. I obviously do not know how regularly each and every league member / group of league members gets together, or where they do it, but I fully expect that The Garagio (and yes, I think the "The" should start with a capital 'T' in this name) is the most darts-away-from-darts place of fun, happiness, and joy in our league's family. As you can see below, the space includes a pair of boards, the area's own bar, a refrigerator, central air, seating via both a couch and a high top, in addition to all the typical darting stuff and paraphernalia. And probably the best part, it's actually a very large space that can readily hold at least a dozen and a half people, even when people are throwing on both boards. Yep, I've spent a good number of very late nights hanging out with RDL-ers from roughly every division here. This place can basically only be described as legen…… (Barney says wait for it)… dary! [Note: this place is even so bad-ass that it survived a lightning-inflicted house fire that required huge portions of the rest of the house to be mostly rebuilt. The Garagio is cool AND tough.]



(looking forward toward the boards)

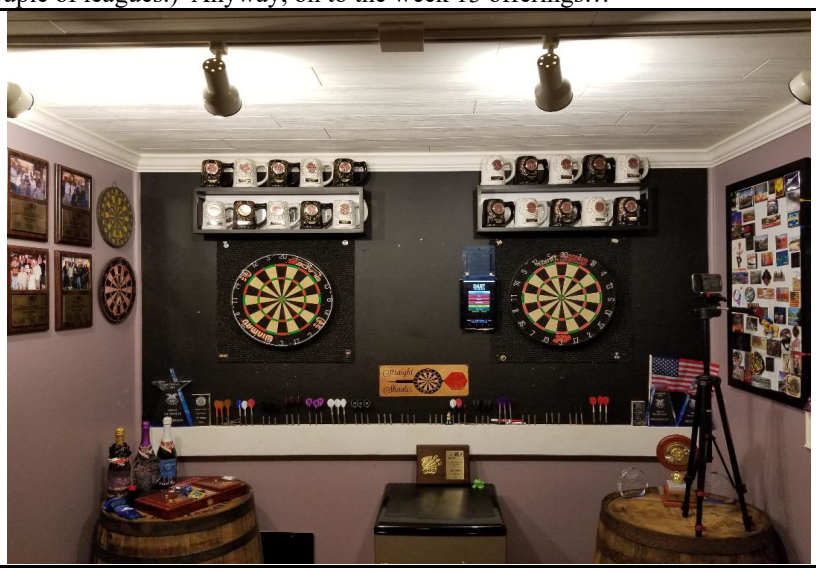
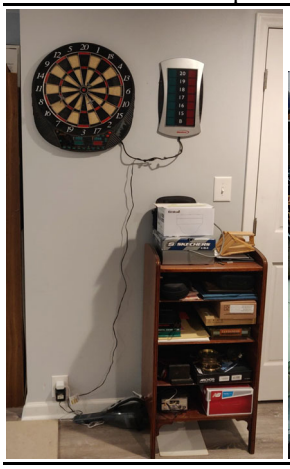
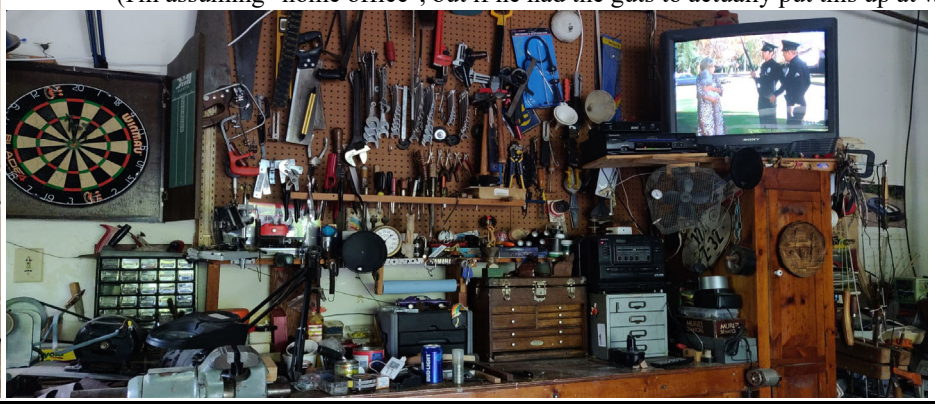
So how can we fairly follow-up a Mac Daddy setup like The Garagio? Well, with an anti -setup, of course!! Rather than a dart lane setup, Keith Gibbs (of Double or nothin') has… well… I'll let Gibbs himself tell you: "Yeah, I don't have a dart board at home. I think there may be one in the garage but I have not seen that wall in about 8 years. I have a box of plaques and mugs somewhere but I think I stripped most of the metal off the wood and boxed just that to save space. I just have, stuff…" [Yep, that sums this up -- Star Wars models, action figures, rare posters, Fisher Price Little People figures, and a massive comic book collection. Not a dart board in sight. And he wins more than 75% of his games in B division with a 0.976 ASP Average. Yep.]



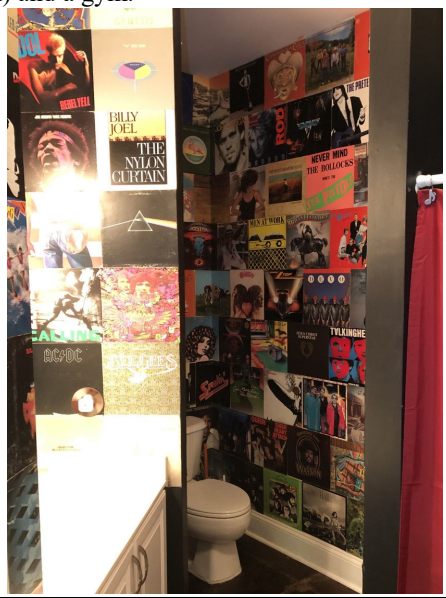




AND EVEN MORE HOME DART SETUPS!! (these submissions also from "week 13")

Alright! Building on the first two sets of home setups in prior issues (from Mike Seward, Bob Kuppler, Matt Heimbach, Tom Winters, Angela and Doug Jeffcoat, and Keith Gibbs), we quickly found several more folks willing to play along: The variety in the setups continued to amaze, ranging from the utilitarian to the nearly unbelievable. Some of those submitted (including one of those below) are so far beyond anything I can ever envision having the time or energy to assemble. (And another is a display that is so far beyond a level of success that I could even imagine myself having. And the most remarkable fact there is that I get to play right next to one of the owners, and I know that they have declined literally hundreds of awards in each of a couple of leagues.) Anyway, on to the week 13 offerings…

We start off this week with a straightforward double-lane setup that is stunningly balanced and even includes a web video setup to the right of the right board. Wow, right? Of course, it also has just about every kind of dart award that you can earn here in the RDL… or other local leagues… or state leagues… or a whole array of ADO tournaments… or, yes, National Championships! And the awards in pretty much all those categories actually come from both genders. Which means, of course, this is the setup of Robbie (of Birth of an Element) and Julie Phillips (of Double or nothin'). And it doesn't include the literally (yes, "literally," I know what that word means) hundreds of other awards not pictured, or not even made (they started saving the local leagues a lot of trophy cost long ago). Heck, they even added two more division titles (their teams were undefeated in A and B when we virus-paused), three more individual mugs, and a few perfect throws this season. Geez. I suppose that's par for the course for a couple that has FORTY (yes, four-zero) state championship event victories between them.

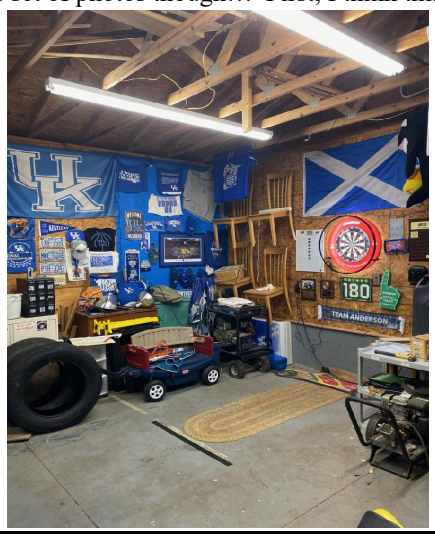


Next up, we get a pretty utilitarian two-fer from Jim Gallagher (of Repeat A-ffenders)! To the left, Jim's office setup (I'm assuming "home office", but if he had the guts to actually put this up at work, he gets double bonus points!) actually has what appears to be an electronic-scoring steel tip board! I've heard of those, but never played on one. Nice. It's Jim's home garage setup that really makes an impact though… Not only does it have every type of loose tool known to man in which bounceouts can get lost, the setup actually includes Police Academy on the nearby TV! (He had to have set that up, right?)

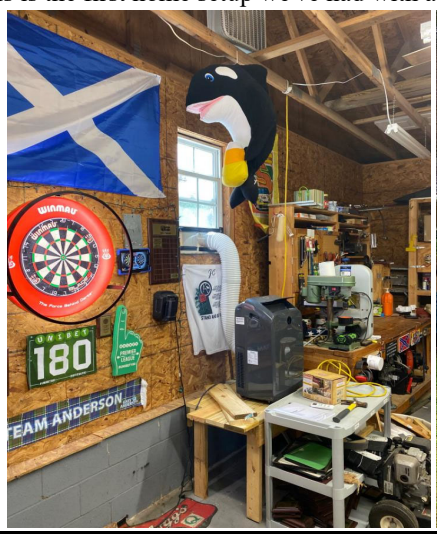
And in week 13 we wrapped up with an amazing setup submitted by Joe McCartney (also of Repeat A-ffenders). This one is kinda nuts, so I'm going to let Joe himself describe it to you: "Several of my teammates meet up here prior to matches (why we do not show up to the bar early), and of course, for non-dart get-togethers it's common for them to hang here. I call my basement bar Hurricane Joe's. It's a sports-themed bar centered on my favorite sport and team - Hurricanes and darts. There is a beer can collection around the entire main area (no joke, I collected cans as a kid), 2 dartboards, a bar, sleeper couch and an amazing bathroom - the wall paper is actual (yes, the actual) album covers. Also not pictured in this basement is a 15 x 30 Home theater (103 inch screen) and a gym."

AND OUR FINAL SET OF HOME DART SETUPS!! (Round 4 from "week 14")

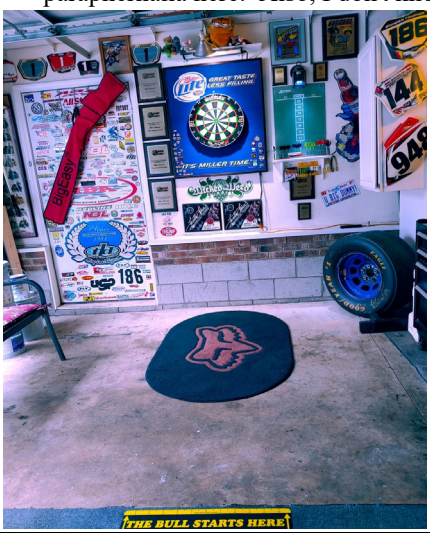
Our final panel of home setup participants before it became kind of clear that the pandemic was not going to be any short-term issue added three new locations and an update. These brought our tour of RDL home setups to an even dozen homes, and provided quite the slice of RDL life. A very sincere thank you to all those who were willing to let us all visit, at least in a virtual sense. Their willingness to share was actually pretty key for a whole bunch of us as we learned how to get used to having our normal daily life pretty much shoved in a corner.



As we had promised at the end of the original week 13 home setup column, we finished up the week 14 version of the column (this page) with a funny update on the "unique" submission from Keith Gibbs that had been featured in week 12 portion of this series…



We started off week 14 with a pretty hilarious entry from Kenn Gardner (longtime member, most recently with Irrelevant, but presently taking a season off). I'll let Gardner describe it for you: "I have enjoyed the home dart Mecca's of RDL members. I had a similar desire a few years ago. [But here] is what happens when you have an idea to create one - and your wife and grandkids have another. Please note that the compromise can be seen in the far corner....." Obviously, Gardner is talking about the little dart area segment beyond the loveseat in the left photo. My favorite part is the combination dart award/Beanie Baby shelf right next to where I think the throwing line is. Super huge kudos to Gardner for being an excellent sport, displaying one of the best trophies I've ever seen (between his two black Mugs). For those who don't remember, this was the trophy Gardner's family(!!) had made for him for the Spring 2016 season (and immortalized previously in the Fall 2016 wk07 Tons). The plate reads: KENN GARDNER -- RALEIGH DART LEAGUE -- PARTICIPANT. :o)



Ok, switching gears back to a more man-cave-ish setup, we have the detached workshop of my teammate John Carroll (and thus, obviously, of Birth of an Element). He describes his setup as "a lotta fun with a little work on the side… complete with outdoor pool." A few little extras are to be noted in this set of photos though… First, I think this is the first home setup we've had with a circular halo board light. And it's definitely the first with a stuffed beer-chugging orca(?!). But the coolest stuff here is below the dartboard - each of those is a Premier League crowd item collected during Carroll's amazing visit to a Premier League event in 2018 (highlighted with a full-page story in the wk12 Tons of the Spring 2018 season, complete with photos of Carroll and a whole bunch of the world's greatest darters.)

Next up, check out this heavily racing-centric setup submitted by Chris Fournier (not on a roster this current season, but a league member in most seasons). Somebody in the Fournier clan is seriously into motocross, and there appears to be quite a collection of actual competition paraphernalia here. Also, I don't know what it is about the color/lighting here, but it makes me feel kind of happy - something about the blue in it that I personally really love for some reason. I do have to say that I'm feeling a little called out though… right below the plaque stack is a pointy finger sticker that reads "You Are Fake News." Yeah, yeah, maybe it's a political sticker… or maybe it's a revealing of the truth behind the Tons… dangit!

Finally, remember two issues ago when we included Keith Gibbs's "setup", that was actually a many-shelved display of Star Wars models, action figures, rare posters, Fisher Price Little People figures, and a massive comic book collection? Well, he told us at the time that he knew he had a dart board and a box of plaques and mugs 'somewhere'… And here they are!! Jammed on a shelf with some tools and… a kids' play structure(?). Next time he beats you, remember his amazing practice facility.

SO WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED IF WE HAD PLAYED THE SPRING 2020 TOURNAMENTS? (originally in the "week 60-ish" Tons)

I've been around the RDL for a long time, and I can tell you with a high degree of certainty that the bracket pairings that should have taken place would have produced some of the craziest outcomes the league has ever seen. In fact, I've seen so much of the RDL's history that I'm going to go ahead and just give you guys the full outcomes of every quarterfinal, every subsequent semifinal, and every subsequent final. This is exactly how every match would have played out, so nobody has to feel like we missed out on the outcomes. This is really what would have happened… go ahead and book it… all of it… EXACTLY as written below… it's just fact.

I've listed the outcomes in order by week, so all the quarterfinals come before all the semifinals, etc. After the match writeups, I've also included a newly completed tournament bracket page that has all the scores/winners of these absolutely-completely-definite outcomes.

"A" Division quarterfinal #1: Darty Minds, averaging 8 points per match this season, jumped out to a raucous 8-0 lead over Birth of an Element. The match momentum swung greatly in the third SCkt set, however, when Wil Tan of Element skipped the 18 as he often does, and Sal Reitano of Darty followed suit. But nobody noticed that they never went back to close the 18s in ANY of their three games… until about 15 minutes after Tan won the set. Things got a little weird and uncomfortable, but everybody agreed it was too late to go back and continue. Chalk one up for messing with your opponent's head! Turned out that Tan's win started a 14-point run for Element and they moved on (even though Randy Massengill took out his son Chad in both singles… which likely made for a great Sunday family dinner).

"A" Division quarterfinal #2: The depth of Fringe is still among the most intimidating in the RDL. But somehow Dartistic just has that little extra something some nights, and they got a huge surprise boost in this one when Justin McCurry walked in minutes before the match. Asked what the heck he was doing back here, he logically said "what the hell else am I going to do with my free time while nearly nothing is open?" This match was super-tight all the way, but Will Bennett's quest to continue being the best RDL player that most people don't know rolled onward in his 4-0 night. In the end, Simon Healy got off his season-long schneid, checking out 87 and 118 in the final 501 to salt away the Dartistic win.

"A" Division quarterfinal #3: Did you guys see Joe McCartney's dart room back in the home setup issues? Well, the rest of the A-ffenders definitely know that place, and they played and drank there for about a four-hour pre-game before this quarterfinal. By the time their Uber drivers dropped them off for their battle with Deez Nuts, the A-ffenders pretty much didn't care how this match went. As a result, the Nuts rolled to a 14-4 win, with all 4 A-ffenders points claimed by Gary Snyder (who has now vowed to four-hour-pre-game from here on out - he might need his own key to McCartney's place).

"A" Division quarterfinal #4: This was so wrong… the Bullies all told Craig Elder this match was way up in Wake Forest, while it was actually all the way down in south Cary. When he finally walked in toward the end of singles cricket, Elder asked why they did it to him instead of to somebody else... like Kevin Foushee. To which the team replied with "how many 5-1 rounds have you bought?!" Not able to argue with that logic, Elder laughed and accepted that answer, then complained anew when he found out that Foushee got hung in 301 again but that he wasn't getting a beer because he wasn't there when the 301 set was played. Cold, man. Anyway, the Bullies rolled to a 13-5 win over Liver Die! despite Kyle Gaulthier tossing 31 ASPs.

"B" Division quarterfinal #1: How the heck is Rif Raf in last place despite averaging more than 10 points per match (just like Methodical in C division)? Well, how the heck is Double or nothin' undefeated with only 3 of 10 players above 0.500 in singles? I have answers for neither of those other than to say "welcome to B division." And because this was B, of course this match was close. Right up until the Raleigh Llama decided to channel his A division all-star self, averaging 86 per turn right through both doubles in his 501 set, closing out a 14-8 win for the nothin'.

"B" Division quarterfinal #2: In one of the best matches of the quarterfinals, neither DD214 nor Consistently Inconsistent ever led by more than one set. DD got the unexpected edge they needed, taking out B division heavyweight Tim McNamara three times. But Doug Jeffcoat and Ed Grubb rekindled some old Durham league Puppies magic, ripping through four straight doubles games to cover the gap for CI and build a 12-10 CI lead heading into the final 501. Then this match went the only way it ever really could… with Joe "Antique" Thomas winning two 501 legs and then also the 1001, checking out double-3 for the win all three times for DD214. Fly high, Double-3.

"B" Division quarterfinal #3: Ok, no disrespect to McGavin, but every dart drama fan reading these outcomes knows that there is zero chance this B story can be told without another round of the Tips-Boom Baby saga. And since McGavin was playing Boom in this quarters pairing, the fates were against them from the start here. Which is really too bad, because the Knott brothers were kind of on fire in this one, combining for five points, three Ton+ finishes, and a 4-bull/5-bull finish to close out DCkt. Boom Baby was chock full of recent A players though (well, not as recent as it would have been a damn year ago), and they rang up a 13-5 win.

"B" Division quarterfinal #4: I still have a very hard time calling Irrelevant by their name, as the roster feels like the core groups of about 3 or 4 other recent teams… but without the core of what I kinda remember Irrelevant being. Oh, well… whatever… maybe that's just me. But that's all immaterial, because (as you know from the previous match in this list) there's no chance Show Me wasn't going to advance to face Boom Baby. The highlight here was Samantha Franklin taking out Terry Blake in SCkt in two straight - an outcome of which she has now reminded him 231 times.

"C" Division quarterfinal #1: Holy cow, at the halfway point only 14 points separated the 2nd-8th teams in C. But one team was just miles ahead of the pack in terms of points, and that team was the Why So Serious? juggernaut. But absolutely nobody could see the quarterfinal absences of Mike Cole and Teddy Rice coming, and this David vs. Goliath pairing became super tight. Methodical trailed 11-7 heading into 501, but then the double demons started biting Serious and this one headed into a final set for the match. It of course went to three games, and the calm experience of John Wilson and Greg Neill was unfazed when they fell behind by more than 250 in the final frame. Six missed turns later, a s14/d7 from Neill punched the ticket for the #8 seed in the monster upset.

"C" Division quarterfinal #2: Two of the most regularly short-handed teams in recent RDL memory got together here in the only way they knew how… with very few players. Both teams started with only four players, with each team's two blockers winning when the teams put them in different games. Stunningly, at this point, both teams had a player need to leave for a night work shift, leaving each team with only three players!! (note: yes, this is legal since they had four during 301) Six consecutive successful blocks in SCkt left the score at a stunning 1-1 heading into doubles. In DCkt, each team went with a 2-man team, a 1-man team, and a double-block, and both of the double-block pairs defeated the opposing 2-man teams, meaning the win by Stewart/(blocker)Toolan in game two gave the Big Bulls a huge 2-1 lead heading to 501. At this point, Big Bulls changed strategy, putting one player in each game, while the Niners stayed with the 2-man/1-man/double-block alignment. The Niners dropped the double-block game, but won the other two, clinching the unprecedented (and very tiring!) 4-3 win in this classic.

"C" Division quarterfinal #3: This was not a good day for Mark Sellers to injure his hand yet again (this time while building a house for Habitat for Humanity). The Cheapies really needed him because a tough song lyric in the Tons quiz was completely pre-occupying Mikey Hindle (who almost never misses a song, and who could hear this damn one like an ear worm, without being able to place it). So, with both Sellers and Hindle a bit handicapped, the Cheapies just didn't have enough to hang with Projectile, dropping each set 4-2 until they just ran out of time.

"C" Division quarterfinal #4: Some nights, Dave Johnson and J.J. White just decide that things will simply go their way (leaving the rest of us to wonder what the heck happened in the other 60% of the season, and generally the first 60%). Well, this quarterfinal just happened to be one of those nights. Both Johnson and White rang up 4-0 records, each dropping only one leg on the night, bringing Menace all the way to 12 points on those sets alone. How critical the first 301 set (a third-game 18-turn double-1 battle win for Steve Polenz) would end up being, right?

"D" Division quarterfinal #1: Maybe darts is easier at a higher altitude. Or maybe just being able to lean over closer to the board is a big advantage. Or maybe Greg Svede is just a monster when his team resides in the middle levels of the league. A lot of teams just have no answer for him, and on this night, Treble Yell was one of them. Svede didn't drop a leg, driving the Sharks to a hefty edge. Rod Stacy popped the clincher, while wearing a 1991 Kamelot concert shirt from before they had even signed a major label deal.

"D" Division quarterfinal #2: Aw, crap, these unlucky folks… a truck ran into the power pole outside the bar at about 7:20 p.m., and the only power left in the bar was the emergency generator backing up the coolers. But you know what that means? The beer was still cold. And a couple of the guys in this match had extension cords and drop lights in their trucks, so there was no way this match wasn't happening. Two cords run back to the generator panel and two rigged up chair stacks next to the boards to hang the lights, and it was game on!! And it turns out that maybe Don't Know! has found their jam. A team with a 0.408 ASP average all season, Don't Know rang up 64.5 ASPs in the 37 legs, rolling the Humpers 13-5. (Note: the Board has already denied Don't Know's rule exception request that would have allowed them to play 90% in the dark for all future home matches.)

"D" Division quarterfinal #3: The Bandits have, for quite some time, been one of the RDL's slowest-starting teams. It often takes them a full dozen games before they start taking over (which is pretty much exactly the opposite of what happens to quite a few league teams throughout the night). Well, in the tournaments with their best-of-3 sets, a dozen games generally happen before 301 is even complete. And that was exactly the scenario here… the Bandits looked just awful in 301, falling behind the Machine in a 6-0 sweep. But the mid-match Bandits arrived earlier due to the longer format, with Ken Trefzger leading the way for them (while he personally desperately tried to keep his tenuous hold on his best-thrower-in-his-family title). The Bandits' 5-1, 4-2, 4-2 finish completed the comeback from 0-6.

"D" Division quarterfinal #4: Game of Throws remains one of the most dangerous middle-of-the-pack upset teams in any division, but Loaded Darts is one of the most appropriately named teams in any division -- they are fully loaded with A-C division experience. If any team in D knows how to climb the ladder and to advance through a tournament bracket, it's Loaded. And once these long-time winners hit the line in this one, it was just one of those nights. All the close games went Loaded's way, and all the blowouts went their way too. As we all know, sometimes it's just like that.

"E" Division quarterfinal #1: Oh, man, that was super cool when I heard Shane Gouge win a beach trip on the radio! Not so cool for the rest of undefeated Dr.unks when the DJ said it was going to be during the new dates of the Spring quarterfinals though. Gouge averages just under 4 wins per night (equating to 6 points per night) for a team that averages 15 per match. Cork came into this one with only one win, but the ladies leading their squad have tournament experience in spades, so this one was much more even than some might expect. It all came down to the final 501 with Dr.unks trying to force the extra leg, but Shannon Bass (playing her first set of the season after we dropped the minimum played requirement in the shortened season) stuck a double-2 in game 1 and a double-10 in game 3 to seal the deal for the Corkers.

"E" Division quarterfinal #2: Playing on the boards next to quarterfinal #1 above, Ma and Pa and Is It In? were clearly feeling the Girl Power vibes as well. The problem for Becky DePuy and Is It In? is that Ma and Pa has three times as many ladies on the roster, and those ladies were flat out rolling in this one! The Bathurst ladies combined for a 5-2 record, and Becky Whitehead closed out the match in the second 501 in a set in which she hit two Ton-17s, a double-8 and a double-18 for the win. Good thing too, because Ryan (Bathurst) and Adam (Barnes) kinda sucked in this one.

"E" Division quarterfinal #3: Uh oh, starting to see a trend here in E on the tournament opening night… You know how many ladies play for the Red-Eye Rangers? That would be none. A bit of a bummer for the Rangers when things are rolling like this. The Sheetzers, on the other hand, have two ladies, and one of them was fresh off a Vegas trip in which she cleaned up three nights straight, and that roll was only continuing. Breaking from her habit of sitting out more than most of her teammates, Inky Huffman was straight dealing in this one, and she was joined by pile-of-white-Mugs Jenny Beebe, who was back on past form. How, Sheetz had a 0.500 win/loss record, was second in E in ASPs, and was still in sixth place is beyond me. But Huffman and Beebe were not letting stuff slide out of their reach on this night. Bye bye, #3 Rangers.

"E" Division quarterfinal #4: So… bad news for the Kings of the Board, no? The other three E quarterfinals were all advancing as upsets against the seedings, and were also all being driven by the ladies of E. The Kings were not only the higher seed here, but they were also out-femaled 2-0. Plus, the Kings took out Death Throw by identical 15-9 scores in weeks 1 and 8, and we all know how hard it is to beat the same team three times in a season. In addition, both Tolson Willis and Sean Bosier were bringing it for DT, so it all looked to be going the same way. Except… for whatever reason, Death Throw still couldn't figure out DCkt and that 6-0 edge for the Kings was just enough to escape the double/triple/quadruple whammy of conditions that had been stacked against them.

"F" Division quarterfinal #1: Alright, before we get going too far here, I just have to wonder how neither of the top two teams in F got there without a winning SCkt record. That just doesn't happen very much around here. Wow. Anyway, one of those cricket-neutral leaders was here in the form of the Active Shooters. Good thing for Active that Coach was just having a rough season (and that Active has the beastly Sebastian Dehnel on their roster). This one actually ended so quickly that a few Active guys left after just one beer and forgot to pay their tiny tabs. A few phone calls the next day cleared things up. (I'm sure there weren't any 100% tips added to the cards….)

"F" Division quarterfinal #2: Remember up in the D division results when we noted that Ken Trefzger was trying to keep his family crown? Yeah, not so much on this night… Both Eric and Mike found big nights for Darty Sanchez. However, some locals at the bar heard their team name and decided that it was so gross that they spent the entire night heckling the Sanchez members endlessly. The Banging the Wire players tried to speak up on behalf of the Sanchez guys, but sometimes gross and insulting is just gross and insulting, and those "fans" were relentless. Turned out to make quite a difference when they were yelling "mmmmmmmmMISS IT!!" every time Sanchez was throwing at an out, and Wire came from behind with a 501 sweep.

"F" Division quarterfinal #3: Oh, come on, one of these teams has my name in it… no chance any of you really thought they weren't advancing out of the first round. This is really a much easier outcome to have seen coming when you note that the D.U.C.Kilts.S. have the best singles record in F by quite a good margin, but they really amped it up a bit when Sofa's Jeremy Plotkin got drawn against Somchai Samaluk in each of the first three sets (and Som's old high-end-of-A game has certainly been returning over the past year). Sometimes the best player in a match just exerts his will a bit as one might expect.

"F" Division quarterfinal #4: Shawn Budd has always said that he would do anything for his team, and sadly for Mark Rossbach's knee on his plant leg, this time that "anything" included going all Tonya Harding / Jeff Gillooly / Shawn Eckardt. Far more troubling than Budd's thuggery though, was Rossbach's uncanny resemblance to Nancy Kerrigan's wailing "whhhyyyyy" face. Unfortunately for Still F'd, Rossbach didn't have time to recover before competition like Kerrigan had, and My Darts R Bigger (minus Budd, who was on the lam) advanced to the semis without even reaching the last pair.

"G" Division quarterfinal #1: The Tips pulled out one of the closest races (even though it was only half a season) in league history, finishing a grand total of 1 point ahead of two other teams with the same record. That kind of weekly pressure certainly makes you battle-tested, and that was some bad news for the Bulls Hitters (the league's newest team, even if it isn't the newest name). The Hitters were certainly game, posting their second-best score of the season, but the Tips were just too much in the end.

"G" Division quarterfinal #2: You know what you get when you have multiple team members who manage or work in a dart bar? You get a lot of post-shift pickup games and some pretty hefty ability jumps. Well, the Dart Knights aren't named after their host bar The Neighborhood for nothing. They were just a few more 501s from jumping to the top of G this season, and they did the exact same thing in this match that they did during the first 7 weeks - they jumped all over their opponents in SCkt. This night they actually won all 12 games for a 6-0 whitewash in that set. And it's a good thing, since their final-501-set win gave them only 4 points in '01 on the night.

"G" Division quarterfinal #3: On a quarterfinals night that recorded only 7 perfect throws leaguewide, Is It Still In? raced to the league-wide lead by pitching 3 of those 7 (one each for Dylan Musil, Mike Millius and Matt Furdon)! As Musil tells it, only his was three triples at which he was aiming, but Millius and Furdon both claim it was actually Musil that slopped one. Luckily for each of them, none of them tossed them against Dave Finney, who posted a 3-0 record for Gretzky. All in all, It was Still In just far too often for The Great One.

"G" Division quarterfinal #4: Some things are more important than others when it comes to a dart team coming together. And one of the factors in teams outperforming their expectations quite a few times over the years is when a group of friends almost becomes a bit of a family. And few teams embody that more than We're Sexy & We Throw It. Even more than a lot of teams that include actual family members (much like has been the case a few times for their opponents, the Coral Reefers). And this match looked to be a pure cricket nightmare for We Throw It, and that's indeed what occurred. However, there are just as many '01 points as cricket points in a match, and We Throw It took 10 of the 12 of those! Which sent this into 1001… which, you should notice, is another game of '01! That's right… We Throw It got that one too, and it was upset city!

"A" Division semifinal #1: Some of the best competitive moments in dart matches are when a player/team calls out an opponent for a friendship/rivalry pairing. But there are times when they're maybe not the smartest thing ever. Ross Minty asked to face his buddy Stevie Phillips in both singles in this one, and I'll be honest… when I got the chance to line up one of my (still)-reigning state singles champs with my opponent's top thrower, I will sometimes jump on that. And I did here. Minty played well, but that was still 2-0 for my guys, and greased the skids for a strong Element night here.

"A" Division semifinal #2: It wasn't quite the semifinals run that Deez Nuts rang up a couple seasons prior (when they were the Alliance), but they pushed this one with the defending champion Bullies almost the full distance. A couple of the Bullies weren't available for this one, and a couple more were off just a bit, so this match rolled out in the same fashion that quite a few have over the past couple years… with Captain Cusher disparaging his own ability and saying he should sit out, but needing to play because others weren't at their best. Both doubles sets with Dean went the same, with him pretty much ripping turn after turn while still telling anyone who will listen that he's awful. Nobody was listening by the time Cusher carried his pair in both doubles to clinch the W.

"B" Division semifinal #1: With the other two of the clear "top-3" in B squaring off, it was left to Double or nothin' to just kind of hold serve here in their semifinal. And very much according to Double's standard plan, they inched ahead in singles and then dropped the DCkt hammer, like they had done so many times already during the season. More interesting in this one was three different throwers (Eric Klann, Jeremy Limerick, and Merrill Bowman) each getting four darts into a perfect 6-dart 301! Most interesting is that only Klann even won after his near-perfect run (and it took 19 darts).

"B" Division semifinal #2: There is no truth in the reports that actual tickets were being sold for what is this next matchup in what might be the league's most contentious current rivalry. (Definitely true that quite a few throwers from quarterfinal-eliminated teams came to see it go down though, and some showed up over an hour early to get a good close table - which actually kinda put them in the way of the teams, which was both cool and uncool at the same time.) Little did spectators know, but this match heated up on Facebook hours before the teams even arrived at the bar. Yikes. In the end though, the time off had made everybody a little more appreciative of their chance to get together… for a while at least. Of course this match went the distance, and as tensions rose in the 501s, a bit more yelling and retorting started to add up. Nothing that had to be broken up or anything, but let's just say the volume and staring times were a bit higher here than elsewhere. In the end, it was two of the calmer and quieter guys who came through in a huge way. Joey Gaglione and Joe Rigert, Sr. tossed five Ton+ turns each in the three-game final 501 set, and then Gaglione stuck a cool double-bull after missing the 19 into the triple-3 from 59 (with Rigert staring down 32 after Terry Blake's 85 from 117 turned up the heat).

"C" Division semifinal #1: Ok, not a lot of semifinals happen in which neither team has a winning record in any of the four sets of the match. But here we were! And you know what happens when Nine Lives brings more than just 4 or 5 players? They become quite a threat to anything in C land. Plus, Methodical never had a chance in this one… they were completely distracted by the fact that captain Romanchek was playing without a bandana. Yes, people, that's right, no bandana. None of the Methodical guys (or anyone else in the bar, for that matter) were even certain whether Dave actually had hair or not, and they were completely thrown off by this tear in the fabric of proper RDL time. And why no bandana? Because Copple bet him a beer that he wouldn't do it, and Romanchek is a darter at heart, so there are few better payoffs than a beer on Copple's tab.

"C" Division semifinal #2: How is it that Menace somehow puts together a monster tournament run every few seasons, even after getting tanked for much of the season? Well, look out because here comes another one. Despite both Dan Clark and J.J. Tant doing some Clark and Tant types of things, Menace somehow kept piecing together wins that felt like steal after steal. In the most stolen of reults, this two-point outcome actually swung on a five-man mistake in the first 501… J.J. Tant and Brian Smith were facing J.J. White and Brady Price, and the chalker put JJ/B on both sides of the board… which was really cute and funny until all four players (and evidently the chalker) momentarily lost track of who was who at just the wrong moment, and let the Menace duo take out Projectile's 43 in the third leg when they were actually the pair sitting on 98. Oops.

"D" Division semifinal #1: Ok, how did this match get scheduled for Sharky's Place?!?! Talk about home bar comfort… the Sharks walked in and they had their favorite drinks waiting for them at chairs with their names on them. Heck, the Stacys are near royalty in this place. Wow, the Membership Director (and that stupid little lackey that she lets double-check stuff, and evidently poorly) really blew it on this one. But wait… Mike Roberts, who arrived early himself, saw an opportunity here and sent the Sharks a few more rounds under the guise of the bar taking care of their favorite team before the match ever even got started. Wiley play, Mr. Roberts… The Sharks were, shall we say, less focused than usual by the time things got rolling, and We Don't Know jumped to an early lead. That lead maintained itself all the way to an upset win, but guess what… none of the Sharks were the least bit upset. Until they all woke up Thursday morning and had to get Ubers back to their cars before work. Ah, well, it was all worth it… you don't get photos like their Wednesday night ones everyday. (No truth to the rumors that I have copies of the photos… as far as they know…)

"D" Division semifinal #2: Sometimes dart success is about chilling out and just letting the success come to you. And this semifinal had a couple of pretty extended between-sets "chilling sessions," shall we say. Turned what might have looked like a pretty unbalanced pairing into a nailbiter (or, well, it would have been a nailbiter for folks that weren't chilled out). Once push came to shove and this match headed into overtime, there were lots of happy fistbumps with no actual pushing or shoving, and this winner went to the deepest, groovingest voice in the bar. Nice 71 checkout, Mr. Reece.

"E" Division semifinal #1: In the time of Covid, the Board and the R&G Committee decided to put in place some one-time emergency measures to make sure the tournaments could be completed. One of those was giving teams the right to allow opponents to bring back ex-team members that weren't currently on rosters so that they didn't have to skip a dart night due to forfeit. Teams didn't have to allow it, but they could. And Ma and Pa are cool, so they absolutely snapped off a yes when Cork asked if they could activate old team member (and current Board member) Maridy Knight for the night. Knight actually gave the Corkers five throwers rather than the minimum four, but that was all good with Ma and Pa, who mostly just wanted to hang out with their bar mates for a night. Well… I'm guessing Ma and Pa didn't expect Knight to average 1.7 triple-18s per turn (yes, per TURN) through a 301, a blocker 301, and eventually a 501. [Ma and Pa wisely threw at the 18 first in all cricket sets involving Knight to slow the damage.] When Angela Jeffcoat left Knight 36 in game 3 of the second 501 set, Ma and Pa started offering handshakes before the thrower before Knight even finished.

"E" Division semifinal #2: It was the Brown's intramural championship for a spot in the E final! (Well, as long as you ignore Deez Nuts, which has actually been one of the best RDL teams for a few years now. But these teams insist all those guys are a bunch of dicks anyway, with Inky Huffman being the most insistent on that front for some reason. Anyway, back to the match at hand…) It's a good thing for the Kings when Jeff Russell and John Suan decide to just go ahead and be Russell and Suan for a night. Which was bad news for Sheetz here, since they kept failing to get Anthony Fey lined up against either of them. Fey rolled to a 3-0 night with more than a dozen ASPs, but was left hoping for his shot in the last 501 when Russell and Suan closed it with two-straight victories in both the first two 501s.

"F" Division semifinal #1: Ummm… uh oh… a frat party the night before ended up with some of the items in the bar hosting the match missing. And when the Shooters and Wire arrived, hanging in place of the two standard dart boards were two of those early-'80s paper boards. And even worse, they had been screwed directly to the wall with the baseball diamond side facing out!! Well… since the tournaments that we play are really just sort of "extra" and aren't governed by some of the regular season guidelines, the Board has always just sort of accepted whatever outcome the teams report. With that in mind, the Shooters and Wire decided "screw it, let's throw some baseball!!" There are about a hundred different variations of the rules online, but the signal in the bar was crap, so they pretty much just decided their own rules between them (it's awesome when teams get along and agree) and rolled with it. In the end, a big bottom of the 7th inning pushed the Shooters too far ahead to be caught in this offensive slugfest. On the plus side for Banging the Wire, Andy Bowen is now the RDL record holder for most consecutive home runs (6) and runs in an inning (10).

"F" Division semifinal #2: In an effort to harness some old magic, Harris and Laurence came to this one dressed in what we'll call "vintage" outfits from Bob's and Stan's closets. But the throwback magic here actually came from the One & Done lineage on the team, although they decided that they were very much not one and done in this tourney. Kuppler and Sawyer led the way all night, with a little bit of Samaluk thrown in for good measure. It was all made a touch easier by My Darts being shorthanded on the night, as still nobody has a Clue where Budd and his quarterfinal hero, the lead pipe in the library, have gone. I'm betting he would've come back for a Mug if they had gotten them though…

"G" Division semifinal #1: I had no idea that Maria Brink, lead singer of In This Moment, had a sister who owned one of our host establishments. But there she was, sitting at the bar, when the Tips and Dart Knights rolled in. Now, it turns out that she knows almost nothing about darts, but that doesn't mean Denise Borgna didn't muster up her best night ever to show off for her anyway… 4-0, a 9m, a Ton-19-out, and only one dropped leg. Brink had no idea why she celebrated when she did, but she thought she was awesome and funny anyway, inviting her to party with her. Denise got home at 9 a.m. Saturday, with a grin (and headache) that would not stop.

Andrew knew better than to ask questions. (And Andrew, there are definitely no photos of any of this on the same backup drive where I definitely don't have photos from the first D division semifinal.)

"G" Division semifinal #2: Who in the world schedules an eye appointment where they will dilate their pupils at 4:30 p.m. on a dart tournament day?! Dylan Musil, it turns out. And it wasn't that he couldn't really see, it was that the bar where this match was played actually looks straight back into the sun and the blinds weren't doing their job very well. And his little roll-up sunglasses wouldn't stay on his face, so he mostly hid in the corner for the first 90 minutes of this match. And by that point, the We Throw It magical run had already actually pushed them into the lead. Two Ken McNamara-led doubles wins later, and this one was headed to the final set… where Karen McNamara and Anne Ross sealed the upset with a double-2 each.

"A" Division final: Seriously, Kras?! Dave Krasnow, bored and missing the RDL up in New Jersey, decided to offer a tournament prize for nothing more than his own watching pleasure. He offered up $800 in a winner-take-all event, with only players who have earned an NC State Championship shirt invited. When he posted it on the RDL Facebook page though, he mistyped and listed it as $8000 to the winner. And for nostalgia's sake, he was hosting it on a Wednesday night… and it wasn't certain when the RDL would finish the season, so the date ended up being on tournament finals night! Well, for a shot at eight grand, the A players in the RDL final were mostly out of here!! After a couple discussions, it was decided that youth state championships counted, and an exemption was made to add anyone who was the undisputedly best player in the nation's largest state for several years. Which left Element with a 3-on-2 advantage in terms of players… in an A league final. Since the five of us couldn't really hold a "full" legal match, we decided to settle the Mugs via a different route… Texas Hold 'Em! In the final hand, I chased a wheel and when a river Ace gave Kevin trip-aces and he went all in, I won the Mugs holding deuce-five on a 10-4-3-9-A board. (Side note: Kras's event was won by the only entrant without an NC shirt yet, in a hardfought 11-legs-to-9 final. Chalk one up for the 49th state.)

"B" Division final: What a terrible job the work crew putting in the drop ceiling in this bar did on match day. They dropped and smashed a whole box of fluorescent light bulbs, and didn't finish the drop ceiling, leaving all kinds of parts hanging down to about 6 feet above the throwing line. Ha, screw you, tall people!! Bad news for the Zelinacks, Klanns, and Scheppeles of the world. The only really tall guy unaffected was Keith Gibbs though, as he routinely throws turns while squatting, leaning, etc., changing the flight angle. So he sorta rocked in this one, keeping Double or nothin' right in the thick of it. But when this battle of B titans came to the finish, the inability to play barefoot (due to the dozen smashed lightbulbs) when you just wanna play barefoot in the clutch might've cost Double or nothin' in what ended up a result decided by a lone dart.

"C" Division final: The only final without either of the season's top two finishers saw Menace arrive on the heels of two full-length-match upsets. They, of course, went to a third consecutive long night, but this time it was one of the league's longest-tenured players taking the glory (yes, Butch, "longest-tenured" is the new and nicer "old"). After Smith popped 32 and 40 to close things out, Dave Johnson of Menace pulled "a Dave Johnson" and called in the result… yes, he called in a loss… to the RDL Voicemail… which we discontinued a couple years ago.

"D" Division final: Not entirely certain what happened, but Randy Lueneburg and Lou Tufillaro all of a sudden thought it was 2019 again, and they came out wailing in this one. Not sure what their little part-time iffy records of the Spring 2020 season were, but that certainly isn't the way things looked in this one. Also, Michael Cruze (who hadn't played all season) suddenly showed up and played out of his mind (although some reports say he certainly looked a bit more like Angelo Azevedo than some remember him being before -- but nobody on Loaded Darts said even one word, maybe because the hadn't-thrown-before-tonight Jake Ellington sure reminded spectators an awful lot of Jeremy Gower).

"E" Division final: Cork's Cinderella run to the final got an added bit of drama in its story when they ended up facing the one team that had given them their most lopsided loss during the season. What an amazing story it would be to come all the way out of the 8-spot and vanquish all of their previous demons/enemies. Alas, the Kings finished with the second-best win percentage in E for a reason, and the Cinderella run came to a close here. Mistake by Rom and John here though, as they wanted to order some Jeffcoat Jerky… should have done it before the match when the price was only half as much as it was after the match. Doh.

"F" Division final: Some leagues in other areas/states employ a listing system in which teams follow a gentlemen's agreement to list their teams in order from top player to bottom player. Some of the guys in this final started out in leagues with that system, and they somehow talked both teams into that plan for this particular match. I'm not sure which team pushed for it the most, but I hope it wasn't the Ducks… These two teams were super close in talent from top to bottom, but when they lined up the players, the games just kept going to the Shooters by one dart, game after game after game. The Ducks definitely should have backed out of the listing plan, but they manned up and continued. And somehow lost 14-0 in what might have been the most evenly contested final in any division on the night. Dang.

"G" Division final: Both teams in the G final actually had a bunch of conflicts for match night, and they quickly and graciously agreed to postpone the final (that tends to happen when the teams include 60% of the RDL Board). About two hundred emails and texts later, a lot of confusion ensued as to what day, what time, and even at what location the match would be played (since the original host establishment closed for renovations for a few weeks after the first match date). In the end, only one person for each team ended up at the match at the proper time and location -- R&G Director Britt Phillips for Tips & Shafts, and Membership Director Heather Bohanan for We're Sexy & We Throw It. As highlighted in match writeups above, the Board allows teams to settle tourney pairings in pretty much any fashion they want if needed. And Phillips and Bohanan decided that throwing alone for hours and hours wasn't on the agenda. Sooo… they looked around… and came up with… the bar ring swing hook game!! You know the one, where you pull a metal ring back on a string, avoid passerby with each swing, and try to catch the ring on a hook screwed into the wall. After about 40 consecutive misses each in their race to 10 hooks, Bohanan did a tequila shot for luck… and scored! And tried it again, and scored again! Can't argue with data, right? Ten tequila shots and ten consecutive hooks later, Bohanan had secured a 10-1 win (Phillips avoided a shutout on his last swing). Bohanan celebrated by sleeping through the night under the table next to dart board #2.

Summary of all divisional tournament results in bracket form included on page 25.

And all those amazing match results on the previous five pages… those are unequivocally what would have happened. And this is the full bracket page of those outcomes. We should have just gone ahead and made the Mugs. There are no other outcomes even possible enough to bother considering them. Done.

TONS OF NEWSLETTER

Home to the Fall Session of the Raleigh Dart League for the Banquet, Saturday, December 11, 2021 Issue #JK800
The "It's Honestly Hard To Believe How Much Has Changed In The World During My Time Here" Edition

TOURNAMENT WINNERS

"A" Division - The Bullies (14-2)

The Bullies' rampage through the first post-Covid season was a tour de force, with only one match all season closer than 15-9, and only giving up 8 total points in their two tournament matches. They ended the season with one of the 8 best win percentages in the last 50 seasons in any division, and were 1 ASP from the highest team season average in league history (see page 18).

"B" Division - Armed & Hammered (12+-12)

After B division was one of the most competitive divisions all season long, the tournament was an absolute mess of nerves and tight finishes. In the 7 B tournament matches, 3 of them ended in a 12-12 tiebreaker, and 2 more ended 13-11. In the end, Armed was the only tournament winner this season seeded lower than #2.

"C" Division - Dysfunctional Outlaws (13-5)

Playing most of the season with an up-and-down attendance showing, the Outlaws evidently put it all together for a few weeks, rolling through the #7, #3 and #1 seeds, with none of the three tournament matches stretching beyond doubles cricket.

"D" Division - Off Constantly-Reboot (12+-12)

After actually missing registration and not getting in to the Fall schedule, the Covid team availability changes that followed the preseason captains' meeting opened a door of opportunity for Off Constantly. They made the most of it, taking the regular season title, and then backing that up with a 1001 victory in the D finals.

"E" Division - Darty Sanchez (13-7)

The midseason slump long in their rear view mirror, Sanchez took their season title and then rolled into the E tournament. Two of their matches did reach the first 501 set, but that was the farthest, as their 13-1 semifinal win was the biggest tourney blowout result.

"F" Division - The Neighborhood Dart Knights (13-11)

The Dart Knights and The Dart Side put on a season race for the ages, then they added on a tournament final that was just about as epic. After grabbing the Mugs in the final set of the 501s, The Dart Knights had completed their season/tournament double, then took some pretty epic team photos (and then showed off some pretty heady photoshop skills to add/subtract for effect!).

REGULAR SEASON WINNERS

"A" Division - The Bullies (12 wins, 0 losses)
2nd place - North Raleigh Alliance

"B" Division - Brown's Terror Bulls (11 wins, 3 losses)
2nd place - Why So Serious?

"C" Division - F Bombs (9 wins, 3 losses)
2nd place - Dysfunctional Outlaws

"D" Division - Off Constantly-Reboot (10 wins, 2 losses)
2nd place - Big Bulls

"E" Division - Darty Sanchez (11 wins, 3 losses)
2nd place - Red-eye Rangers

"F" Division - The Neighborhood Dart Knights (12 wins, 2 losses)
2nd place - Dart Side of the Moon

FALL 2021 RDL DIVISIONAL TOURNAMENT RESULTS

We got a few photos a couple years ago, and… it was kind of great.. So this was a little minor tradition that I certainly wanted to encourage, and I asked the teams going into the tournament finals to consider taking a team photo and sharing it with us. This is one of my favorite items here. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's really about 'team' happiness anyway.)

A division regular season and tournament champions - The Bullies!!

D division regular season and tournament champions - Off Constantly-Reboot!!

FALL 2021 PENALTY SUMMARY

Not even a pandemic and a lack of practice "captaining" could slow the awesomeness that is the RDL lately. We are now 6 seasons into the removal of the call-in requirement, so that penalty source no longer exists. And despite the addition of other penalties (earlier sheet return deadline, mandatory 1001 names, new penalty for lack of blocker names), the league as a whole barely gets any penalties at all anymore. There have been 6 or fewer for 6 seasons in a row now!

This season, we had only four total penalties. 1 team missed the preseason captains' meeting (for just 5 pts), and there were 3 late scoresheet return penalties (for 16 points each). So that's 4 penalties for a total of 53 points, with no team receiving more than one penalty. B division had 1 penalty for 16 points, and F division had the rest (3 for 37 points). So F was certainly our penalty land for the season, but not one team in either division ended up losing a spot in the standings due to the losses. Which is pretty excellent.

HOLIDAY BREAK BLIND DRAWS

UPPER DECK

As in many previous years, throughout the holiday break the Upper Deck will be adding a weekly Wednesday blind draw for all those who just want to keep their regular dart night out rolling through the break. 8 pm start, just like normal Deck nights.

BROWN'S BILLIARDS

Or maybe you live more on the east side or more in downtown Raleigh, and/or just prefer Brown's Billiards! Well, they've added a Wednesday blind draw to go with their Friday blind draws and their ongoing Saturday Chicago-style singles events. The time and format on Wednesdays will match their Friday draws.

OR MAYBE YOU WANT TO ADD ANOTHER LEAGUE?

Looking to add a second league this coming season? It isn't entirely clear when the other local leagues will be starting up, but the leagues in Durham and Chapel Hill have both either recently finished a season or will be shortly. I don't have the registration dates for either of them yet (although I'm fairly sure the BCDL in Durham will start up after the first of the year. In any case, the holiday break might be a very convenient time for you and your friends to get plans together for a team if you are interested in adding another local league night. Check in on the websites listed below periodically to get the most updated registration information for the upcoming seasons.

Triangle Dart League (TDL - Chapel Hill & Durham)

Check www.ibiblio.org/ncdarts/tdl/ for information updates soon. The teams in TDL consist of 6-10 players per team, and dues are $20/player per season (I think). Recent seasons have used bars in both Chapel Hill and Durham, but I suspect that might vary a bit from season to season based on team preferences and signups.

Bull City Dart League (BCDL - Durham)

If you happen to be interested in trying out one of the very few handicapped steel-tip leagues anywhere, maybe the BCDL is in your future. The BCDL spring 2022 season has not been put on the schedule yet, but it should be soon. Teams in the BCDL consist of 4-8 players, dues are $25 per player per season (some of the host establishments cover half or all of those, so maybe ask around), and the home bars are primarily in RTP and the downtown Durham area. More complete information (and any updates in the coming weeks) can be found at:

www.thebcdl.org That website also includes a wealth of information about the league and its rules, so if you're just interested in seeing how the league applies a handicap system to a steel-tip league, you can find all of that there, including rules, statistics, and scoresheet examples.

OR POSSIBLY PICK UP SOME TOURNAMENT ACTION?

The QCDA down in Charlotte will once again have their annual full weekend event, and this year it actually includes New Year's Eve directly!! Awwww, yeeeeahhhh… a bunch of partying darters all together for a night basically known as a party! I've heard for years already that this one is a lot of fun, but it seems like this could be a bit more than usual, no? (see page 22)

Already have other plans for New Year's but still want a dart tournament weekend? Well, then maybe you want to spend a late January weekend up in the mountains. Asheville's long-standing Fire On The Mountain returns again, and brings its full weekend of events. (see page 23)

The Upper Deck — 919-460-1786
329 N. Harrison Avenue — Cary
-near intersection. of N. Harrison & Highway 54

Extra note: it's also ok to call in "fast games" in each set, even if they don't necessarily meet the maximum dart counts above.

THE FORTY-EIGHTH SEMI-ANNUAL EDITION OF: JK'S DIVISIONAL ALL-STAR TEAM PICKS

(Players within each division are listed alphabetically) (Players are chosen any way I damn well please - not purely by the numbers!)
(This is not purely my own guesses at who is simply the best thrower, but also who is important to their team, who is good in the clutch, etc.)

Divisional MVPs

A Division	Alex Spellman	The Bullies	D Division	Jeff Rudy	One Armed Bandits
B Division	Michael Bracco	Why So Serious?	E Division	Zach Powell	Red-eye Rangers
C Division	Shane Murray	Dysfunctional Outlaws	F Division	Kevin Turner	Coach 4:4

All of RDL -- Alex Spellman -- The Bullies

"A" Division

Kyle Gaulthier	Liver Die!	Top player outside the top 3 teams. Again.
Pat Gibson	The Bullies	One of the most dangerous shots around.
Chad Massengill	The Reunited Elem	Just keeps winning season after season.
Ross Minty	North Raleigh Allia	Clutch shot was key in Alliance's step up.
Robbie Phillips	The Reunited Elem	2nd in A feels like a down season?! Geez.
Stevie Phillips	North Raleigh Allia	Reigning national champ is an easy pick.
Alex Spellman	The Bullies	Maybe the greatest season in RDL ever?
P.J. Stewart	The Bullies	3-Year reigning junior national champion.

"B" Division

Ahmed Al-Hoory	Brown's Terror Bull	Keep an eye here. On his way to higher.
Jim Butterworth	Armed & Hammere	The upper of the 6-Bull Brothers was big.
Michael Bracco	Why So Serious?	Becoming quite dominant and dependable.
Mike Cole	Why So Serious?	Can take out anybody, at any time.
Joel Dickenson	Darty Daze	Great singles, pulled teammates in doubles.
Jim Kerr	Brown's Terror Bull	Just solid, was a rock for division winners.
Tim McNamara	Consistently Incons	Been one of the scariest shots for years.
Leslie Rosenfeld	Brown's Terror Bull	Super clutch season saver more than once.

"C" Division

Merrill Bowman	Shark Shooters	Doubles aren't awesome, but still strong.
Shane Gouge	F Bombs	Top shot for the division's top team.
Tom Holland	Toeing The Line	Had a quietly great part-timer season.
John Mays	Nine Lives	Now we just need to get him to matches.
Shane Murray	Dysfunctional Outla	So good to see one of the best back here.
Chris Reid	Rif Raf	Nothing flashy, just very consistent.
Mike Steppe	Dysfunctional Outla	Ummm… what the heck is that DCkt mess?
Denny Williams	F Bombs	Another in a group of "consistents" here.

"D" Division (hard choices here…)

Angelo Azevedo	Off Constantly-Reb	Imagine if he played every week. Yikes.
Dennis Fitzgerald	Big Bulls	Got better as the match night went on.
Stephen Flanagan	Big Bulls	After some slow 301, won a crapload.
Ronnie Knott	Big Bulls	Hey, look, a pandemic gift to Big Bulls.
Kevin Olsen	Off Constantly-Reb	Any old 19-3 combined cricket makes it.
Jeff Rudy	One Armed Bandit	Speaking of great pandemic mess finds…
Ken Trefzger	One Armed Bandit	Always here, just season after season.
Lou Tufillaro	Off Constantly-Reb	Most regular solid shot for D winners.

Dave Finney	Just F'd	Just a hammer. Wins, hits big shots, etc.
Scott Kirkpatrick	Red-eye Rangers	Oh, the Rangers were just stacked, and…
Zach Powell	Red-eye Rangers	… these were the best two in the deck.
Mike Robinson	Darty Sanchez	Strongest rock for season/tourney winners.
Somchai Samaluk	Salty Damn Duck C	Well, he did used to roll big in A division.
Eric Trefzger	Darty Sanchez	Cricket winner needs just a few more '01s.
Hugh Vance	Ones Are Closed	Needs some 501 help, but big before that.

"F" Division (hardest set to pick ever?)

P.J. Davis	Neighborhood Dart	Some day… they'll let him play 501 too.
Matt Furdon	Dart Side of the Mo	Crushed it for three sets (then a 501 nap).
Mark Gamble	Neighborhood Dart	Is he the lead on a team of machines?
Mike Millius	Dart Side of the Mo	Much like Furdon, was a first-3-sets beast.
Tony Thomas	Neighborhood Dart	Or many Tony is the lead? All so good…
Kevin Turner	Coach 4:4	Seemed to be just willing Coach to wins.
John White	Banging The Wire	Pretty rare to win 11+ of both singles.
Wes Wissinger	Flight Privilege	A 14-0 SCkt nearly enough on its own.

QUICK STAT TIDBITS

-The Quadruple Double Award winners (double-digit wins in all 4 sections): With only three divisions playing 14-week schedules, and with attendance on the back side (geez, I hope this is the back side) of a pandemic, I worried that this club wouldn't be completely empty. But it wasn't! We did end up with only one true all-double-digit-set-win guy, but one is enough. This year's inductee is Zach Powell of Red-eye Rangers in E division! There were a few honorable mentions, and the best of them (for three 10-win sets in a 7-team division) is Alex Spellman of The Bullies in A division, who put together one of the greatest seasons in RDL history. Also good, posting three 9-win sets in the smaller divs. were Robbie Phillips and Stevie Phillips in A division, and Shane Murray in C.

-The Iron Man/Woman Award: Ok, again only three divisions had a full 8 teams, so it was likely that somebody from B, E or F would take this title. And again that's exactly what happened… but it almost didn't! In the end, the Iron Woman this season came from E division, with Olivia Mathews pitching a stout 63 games for the oft-shorthanded Death Throw. And for honorable mentions, we have the following division leaders: P.J. Stewart, the only A player to play all 48 sets in A (ah, the energy of youth); George Guenther with 59 in B; Brian Smith with 57 in C (yep, this is the 7-team-division player who nearly snagged this title!); teammates J.J. White and Dennis Baker with 52 in D; and Dave Woodard with 60 in G. Interestingly, the 2nd and 3rd highest games played both came from Mathews's E division, including Dave Mathews with 62 (it's an Iron Family!).

-The Team Attendance Award winners: I wasn't sure if coming out of a pandemic would make this category (a team riding with the exact same six players most/all of the season) more or less likely. And after seeing the numbers, I'm still not sure. But either way, we were really left with only two candidates, and in different ways. Death Throw in E only had 6 team members, so despite the fact that they often played with fewer, they clearly relied on ONLY those 6 folks. And while Left, Right, Corkers in E had several more on the roster, they basically rode just 6.

MY PRESEASON, WEEKLY, & TOURNEY PREDICTION RESULTS

As usual, I'm left with the option of trying to bluff my way through this part, or just telling the truth. And since I know that some of you squirrel away every last thing I've ever written about your team, I guess I better give real results… dang.

The preseason picks are usually the toughest every season given the imminent roster changes/additions, and they were especially hard this season, with the pandemic-affected rosters changing quickly - heck, we had entire team/division lineups change after I made this set of picks! In the end, my picks in C and D division don't even make that much sense, given that some of the teams ended up gone or elsewhere. But I hit the A winner, did decently in B, called most of E except not seeing Sanchez as the winner, and I shorted Dart Side in F respect.

My weekly prediction results you can peruse pick-for-pick on the other side of this sheet of paper. I did pretty well in general (hitting on over 72% of the picks on the season). And considering the once again near-crushing number of matches I lost by a single dart (12-12 and 13-11 match score losers), I was pretty pleased all the way around again. Did have a pair of teams that just fooled me over and over and over, but that happens. For these two it seemed crazier than usual in terms of result swings, but it is what it is.

Last but not least were my tournament predictions… And in these, I pretty much rocked. In the quarterfinals, I posted a big old 19-2, with those two wrong picks in B and D. In the semifinals, I then moved on to a 9-3 record (with one of those being a leftover from an incorrect quarterfinal). And then I hit 4 of the 6 tournament champion teams, which is a strong average given that I have to get them right all the way up to that spot. The only division where I got every pick right was E division, but I did well in most of them (since my final pick record was a stout 32-7). I correctly listed a couple Sure Things for you, but my Dark Horses were evidently a little too dart this time around. The only thing that I really super got wrong was not seeing Armed & Hammered coming - I had the eventual B tournament champs getting dumped in the opening round.

JK'S TEAM-BY-TEAM, WEEK-BY-WEEK MATCH PREDICTION RESULTS

(I introduced this page thirty-four seasons ago, and it has become almost expected as a newsletter staple. Feast your eyes on the success...)

For several years, many of you have taken no greater pleasure in your weekly darting endeavors than to email or text me and point out to me just how wrong I was in my prediction of your match result. On a related note, I have noticed that many of you seem to have relatively selective memories saving only the weeks when I was wrong. Further, many others of you regularly embellish your statistics of how often you fool me. It's not so easy to get away with those rambles anymore, however, as you can see below. Each W is a week when I picked your match correctly, and each L is one I picked incorrectly. Division totals are to the right of the team totals, weekly totals are at the bottom, and in the space between the 14 weeks and the team totals, the six 'o' symbols indicate the teams for which I was only 0.500, and the four 'x' symbols indicate the teams that fooled me more often than not. [Overall this was a pretty decent season. But there were a couple teams on which I simply couldn't get a dang handle. Week after week they would win matches they seemingly should lose, and then lose matches they seemingly should win. How I even managed to get back within two games of 0.500 with Consistently Inconsistent and Nine Lives is beyond me. They just confuse me... - JK]

THIS SEASON'S TRIVIA QUESTIONS… REVISITED

I now run this column during seasons in which I've included trivia questions all season. Each question is listed exactly as it was during the season, so there is potential for a question to now be out of date, but it's usually not too much of a problem. Each question is listed under the week number when it ran, and the answers follow the questions. No peeking…

Week 8 question(s): I have been the statistician for 48 "full" seasons before this one (stupid Sp20 was anything but "full"), and the number of perfect throws have varied greatly across the seasons. While it is true that this season's 45 teams are the lowest number in my time here (the other seasons have ranged from 49 to 68 teams per season), the THREE Ton-80s that have been reported still seem like a very low total for the midway point of the season. What is the record for fewest regular season Ton-80s during my statistician tenure? What is the record low when combining the season and tournaments?

Week 9 question(s): Last week, Stevie Phillips of North Raleigh Alliance tossed a ridiculous 16.5 ASPs. In my 49-ish seasons as statistician (48 full seasons, plus the Sp20 half season, plus this season's first half), how many times has an RDL member thrown at least that many in one night? Which person/people have done it?

Week 10 question: Last week, The Bullies rang up one of the rarest occurrences here in RDL-land. They chalked up a 24-0 whitewash of another of the top four teams in A division. How many times since I took over as statistician (1996 forward) has a team that finished in the top four in A the prior season lost by a full 24-0 shutout score? (I ask it that way because searching teams that were "top four" the prior season is a much easier data search due to the way I have the score tables set up.)

Week 11 question(s): Building on the story above, we note from page 3 that Alex Spellman of The Bullies presently has the leaguewide fast games in three of the four sets. What is the greatest number of leaguewide fast games a player has had in a season (during my statistician tenure of 1996-forward)? Who has done it?

Week 12 question(s): What is the longest losing streak that an eventual division champion has had to start a season (during my tenure of 1996-forward, of course)? Who had it, and when?

Week 13 question(s): How many times since I became the statistician (1996-forward) has the RDL singles champion not also been the division leader in overall record? Which singles winner finished the farthest from the overall record lead?

Week 8 answer: I didn't really realize until I was researching the answer in the league records, but the number of perfect throws (and especially the Ton-80s) really took off somewhere in the middle of the 2000s (2001-2010). Thus, these answers are certainly from before then. And it turns out that the lowest number of regular seasons Ton-80s is 10, which happened in both Fall 1998 (53 teams in the league) and Fall 1999 (50 teams in the league). The lowest combined season+tournaments total of Ton-80s happened in the Fall 2001 season (50 teams in the league), when only a pair were hit in the tournament, bringing the combination total to only a paltry 14 throws (and Scott Butters and Lee Whitehead each accounted for two of those!). Heck, even the Spring 2020 Covid-shortened season that was only 8 weeks long (and obviously had no tournaments) sported 16 Ton-80s. Clearly, we've come a long way… or at least we had until this season, with 45 teams and only 4 Ton-80s after 8 weeks (good thing Karl Fredrick hit one last week). [Answer update for the banquet Tons: We were able to avoid setting a new record this season, as a late influx of Ton-80s pushed our regular season total to 11, and our season+tournament total of Ton-80s to 15. Phew!]

Week 9 answer: Pitching more than 4.0 ASPs per game is pretty rare. (And yes, I realize that a thrower can average fewer per game and still reach 16.5 if they are picked as a blocker, but seriously, who is picking a thrower with 4/game talent as a blocker??) It's so rare that Phillips's night was only the 8th time it has happened in my 25 years here as RDL statistician. Phillips's 16.5 here in Fa21 wk08 tied his brother Robbie Phillips (Sp09 wk08) and Mike Hall (Sp00 wk14). Above them come Dan Naylor with 17.0 (Fa19 wk14), Naylor again with 18.0 (Sp11 wk10), Robbie Phillips again with 18.0 (Sp19 wk07), Brian Blake with 18.5 (Fa11 wk08), and John Kramer with the all-time record of 22.5 (Sp18 wk08). Thus, while the 16.5 line has been reached a total of 8 times, only 6 people have done it.

Week 10 answer: Alright, I suspected this would be the answer… During my statistician tenure, this in indeed the first time a team has shutout a team that had been top-four in A the season prior. A decent handful have won 16-0 by forfeit, but this is the first contested match that ended up fully on one team's side of the ledger. Several 22-2s and 23-1s, but this was the first 24-0 (and there have been no 20-0s or 16-0s or whatever by shorthanded teams in these pairings).

Week 11 answer: Well, this was an interesting run through the records. It turns out that during the 49 seasons during my tenure as statistician, 15 different people have thrown the leaguewide fastest game in 2 sets in a season. Tom Brown (3x), Jim Budelman (3x), Don Butman, Joe Gaglione, Chuck Greer, Simon Healy, Dale Hyler, Kevin Kendall, Chad Massengill (3x), Robbie Phillips (4x), Alberto Sandoval, Mike Seward (2x), and Bob Terry (3x). [To be fair, I think one of the pairs by each of Brown, Massengill and Seward should count more than the others, as all three of them dragged my sporadic mess of a game to a fast set.] Beyond those 25 double-setters, we've also had four throwers claim a leaguewide fast game in three sets: Tom Brown in Fall 2005, Robbie Phillips in Spring 2007, Brian Blake in Fall 2007, and Wil Tan in Fall 2011. But even those four amazing seasons don't measure up to the two times when a thrower took ALL FOUR: in the Fall 2015 season, Robbie Phillips completed the four sets in 8/15/19/15 darts; and in Spring 2017, Chad Massengill did it in 8/15/15/14 darts. (p.s. in Phillips's season, his partner in both doubles was… Massengill. In Massengill's season, he won them with Tom Brown and Wil Tan.) [Answer update for the banquet Tons: We have two additions to this list this season. P.J. Stewart of The Bullies had the leaguewide fastest game in 2 sets this season, while his teammate Alex Spellman had the leaguewide fastest game in THREE sets. Spellman getting into some pretty rarefied air there, becoming only the sixth league member to reach that many.]

Week 12 answer: (answer not previously run this season, so no "banquet issue update" needed or even possible) During my 50 seasons as statistician, we've now had 370 total division races. And of those 370, only 10 times has a team started out with as many as 2 losses to start a season. Nine different times an 0-2 team has claimed a division: Cheap Shots in B in Fall 2004 (ending at 12-2), Imports & Domestics in F in Fall 2008 (ending at 8-4), Imports & Domestics in E in Spring 2009 (yes, two seasons in a row(!!), ending at 11-3), Methodical Madness in B in Fall 2014 (ending at 9-5), Whynot! in H in Fall 2014 (ending at 11-3), All Flights Matter in F in Spring 2017 (ending at 10-2), Bulls Up! in H in Spring 2017 (ending at 11-3), Cheap Shots (again) in D in Spring 2018 (ending at 8-4), and Sharky's Machine in D in Fall 2018 (ending at 8-4). Quite a big increase in those as of late, don't ya think? And none in A… But the overall king of the slow start title winners is The Redneckers from Fall 2007's H division, the only team to ever start out 0-3 and still claim a division crown (ending the season by winning a logjam at 8-4). Kind of a sobering set of facts for all those who start slowly and still hold out hope. Guess that hope is for a record-setting performance, it turns out.

Week 13 answer: (answer not previously run this season, so no "banquet issue update" needed or even possible) As noted in the previous question in this list, there have been 370 total divisions during my 50 seasons as the statistician (and quite a few of those have included winner ties). And it turns out that whoever wrote this question (yep, that would be me) was an absolute fool when he wrote it. When I started to look back, it became very quickly clear that the answer here is 'a whole crapload!' Like around half or more, I'm now guessing. I didn't even bother researching the rest of the answer. It was just too many to matter. And I thus didn't bother to look up the second half of this question pair either, although I think that one might be a little more interesting in the end.

THIS SEASON'S TIEBREAKERS

We had only had six divisions this season, and three of them had a bye every week, so it wasn't the largest data pool ever. Thus, our grand total of only 24 tiebreakers (19 during the regular season, 5 in the tournaments) isn't that surprising.

B and C divisions led the way with 6 tiebreakers each, followed by E with 5, D with 4, F with 2, and A with only 1. The most remarkable part of the count though, is that 3 of B's 6 came in their tournament!

Rif Raf in C division took this season's Cardiac Kids title, racking up 4 extra legs in just 14 total matches, including being knocked out of the C tournament in overtime. The Red-eye Rangers in E also played 4 extra legs, and were the only team to lose as many as 3.

This season's Heartbreak Award is shared by Darty Daze and Why So Serious? in B, who each played a pair of 1001s in their tournament, and both of whom were eliminated in one of those 1001s. Serious (2-1 total) took out took Darty Daze (1-1 total, both in the tournament) before losing a 1001 in the B final themselves.

[Like the last many seasons, we used three-song groups each week and also included a theme each and every week. Added a layer to the game for everybody and has been quite popular. Here are the themes for each week*, including the week 14 fourteen-song set that had some really strong sets of guesses, led once again by lyrics king Mikey Hindle, who actually nailed the entire(!) set.]*

Week 2 theme: 'This one was all about the plea I made to all the captains at the preseason meeting, and then to the league as a whole in the second Tons… no matter what comes this season, please just roll with it. Just keep smiling and just keep rolling with it. Great that we are even getting to play. Week 3 theme: Yep, of course this one was about being out having surgery instead of being at darts. Week 4 theme: Puttin' in that work that you just have to get done. Which was pretty much the entire basis for me not sending the week 4 Tons until Wednesday morning. Week 5 theme: Well, I was actually just going for a general theme of all the damn fools we each encounter throughout our days. But one quiz respondent offered a pretty dang funny answer that was a little edgier than I myself had employed: "The Antivaxxers/ Antimaskers." Oh, dang. Week 6 theme: Just schools, now that we're back in full-on school time and I have to wait on school buses in the mornings and afternoons again. I guess I didn't miss "everything" during the pandemic. Week 7 theme: Surviving and staying strong. Which is really topical in a pandemic era, but was actually honestly inspired by the fact that Survivor returned to CBS last Wednesday. No, seriously, that's why. Love that show. Week 8 theme: Alright, well, I just celebrated my anniversary with my wife last weekend (that's our main holiday of the year), and I just had the word 'love' on the brain, so I pulled a few songs. Waffled a bit on including "part-time lover," but Stevie's just so damn awesome that I went with it anyway. Week 9 theme: The street corner panhandlers. Begging, signs, a common quandary from the drivers going by… It's really sad that such a high percentage of those folks are there by choice, because they make such a strong living from doing nothing but asking for money. I would love to help the few that actually need it. Alas, it's often difficult to identify those really in need. Week 10 theme: That trio was clearly about the honky tonk badonkadonk (which is a Trace Adkins country song that could just as easily have been included in the set). I don't know why I picked that theme… maybe I just decided to put some ass into one. Whatever. They don't all have to be deep and meaningful. Week 11 theme: Word! That's it, just word. Bird is the word… or Grease is the word… but either way, Word up, bro. Week 12 theme: Yeah, this one was a little dark, but I heard the first two songs on the radio one day, and just decided to go with it. Yep, the theme is public suicide. Some real in here, some just in a story, but all public nonetheless. Week 13 theme: There are quite a few ways you could take this one, from being a loser to having a bad day, but the reality is that this set was inspired by my own dart game right now. Pretty much throwing the worst darts of my life and really just continuing ever downward, it seems, so these song titles are a decent representation of my matches nowadays. Sigh. Week 14 theme: Bands whose names contain a deck of cards, from "card" to 2 to Ace [although as noted in the last issue, the band used for the 8 only kinda barely fits... ugh].

FROM THE INCOMING PRESIDENT

Michael Johnson of The Bullies will be starting 2022 as our new RDL President (only our 9th since the early 1990s, and one of those only served for one season). On his way out, please thank long-time officer Tim Mozzetti, and also thank Johnson for his upcoming willingness. But until you see them, please read on for a note from our new President Johnson:

"I am honored to succeed the amazing Tim Mozzetti who has served the RDL with dedication for nine years. I hope that I may contribute to the continued success of the organization that I would like to begin this journey with an invitation. As I see it, the board is a group of people who are here to serve our darting community, not dictate to it. I believe it has done an admirable job to that end and I would like to continue in the mode of service.

As I write this, we are completing the first season back from a nearly year and a half interruption. I am very pleased that we were able to field 6 divisions comprised of 44 teams and nearly 420 players. That is a strong comeback that we can be proud of given the circumstances. I give many thanks to all the players and our host establishments for making this comeback possible.

As an extension of service to our darting community, I invite you to bring your suggestions for how we are going to build our community up to and exceeding the levels of participation we enjoyed prior to the onset of the intervening difficulties. From my observations, I believe the vast majority of our group has dealt with the concerns well. Those who wish to avoid unnecessary contact or continued masking have been welcomed and respected. To my knowledge, there have been no ill effects within our community deriving from participation in our pastime. The question that I'm pondering is, how do we refill our divisions and address any remaining concerns? I look forward to your input.

I am personally asking that anyone who feels ready to reengage to reach out to previous teammates and/or to membership and myself to help find or establish a team for the upcoming season. We will assist you with the process, host establishments, answer questions, and generally support your efforts to participate in the upcoming season.

I look forward to Spring 2022 of the Raleigh Dart League being a fun and fruitful continuation of our comeback!"

JUST A QUICK STORY ADD-ON… NEW RECORD!

Back on the front pages of the week 11 and week 12 Tons, I shared a few spots where Alex Spellman of The Bullies was just missing league record after record by just a single dart or two. He was oh so close several times in a row, but no records fell. Until the end of week 14, that is… Spellman became the first A division player in at least the RDL "modern era" (the 26 years I've been statistician) to go undefeated AND play at least the minimum number of games for the singles award. First ever. Many have come very close (and a few throwers have come close several times, see page 17), but none had ever made it all the way before now. So Spellman stands alone. But it didn't come easy, especially right at the end. Grey Jones of Liver Die! pushed Spellman into a thousand-points-per-player SCkt war in the last singles round of the season. Made him earn it!!

THIS ISN'T WHAT I ENVISIONED

Yep, this is the 800th issue of the Tons I have written, ending my 50th season as the statistician. That sounds just silly when I read it aloud. And I had originally picked this milestone to finally name my personal "RDL Hall of Fame." Many people have asked me for years why I hadn't picked one earlier, but the reality is that I wanted to be absolutely certain that the people I picked were flat-out, inarguably, unequivocally, the RDL legends. And I'm pretty sure I've settled on my group. But our smallest season in decades, with a pandemic-shrunken membership, with far fewer teams than we are used to having, just seemed like a very low-impact time to honor the best of the best. So I'll bring it back out once we're sort of more "back-ish".

IN MEMORIAM

Well, here is something we don't do every day… It is with heavy heart that I share with you the passing of someone who never threw a single dart in the RDL. That fact notwithstanding, Joy Blackmon was nearly as much "RDL" as any of us. She super loved everything about the existence that is the RDL, and she'll be missed more than many of our throwers would be. I will allow her friend and team contact Jim Hunsberger explain more fully: "DD-214 lost our dear friend, supporter and team scribe, Joy Blackmon. Joy left us following a long and hard fought battle with health issues that ultimately took her from us on Friday, November 26. Joy was the consistent spark for our team, our cheerleader, coach, advisor, as well as our team scribe. This though she never threw a dart in RDL. Until her illness really took hold, she rarely missed a match. We were so reliant on her support that we often struggled to get organized on the rare match nights when she could not attend. Now we just miss our Joy. In more ways than can be mentioned, and not just on Wednesday nights." [Joy is pictured below, front and center with DD-214. Right where she should be.]

RDL MEMBERS GRAB CITY LEAGUE TITLE!

You can see the full results on pages 20 and 21, but the North Carolina City Dart League season came to down to the final game of the final set for the second tournament in a row, and was played with the same Wilmington and Durham teams again. And in the end, Wilmington took home the cup this year, and they did it featuring quite a few RDL members: Dean Cusher, Craig Elder, Kevin Foushee, Pat Gibson, Dan Naylor, and Lee Scott. [Probably not surprisingly, five of those six guys play for the A division champion Bullies.]

AND RDL MEMBERS GRAB THE LADIES' CUP TOO!

Meanwhile, over in the NC Ladies' Cup tournament, the Fuquay-Varina ladies took home their "Nacho Cup", in a pair of 1001 semifinals and finals victories. The Fuquay team features RDL members Deb Blackwelder and Amanda Preciado, along with several others who have played in the RDL at various times. Big congrats to those ladies too.

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK

Nowadays, it's a fact… this column has become a banquet Tons staple. I have no idea why so many are so keen on taking a peek into the oddness that is my head, but you are. So without further ado, let's open up my head again and see what falls out. Some of these observations are dart-related, and some of them clearly are not. As always, this is just about the last thing that I'm writing and this season is certainly no exception… soooo, also as always not even I know what's about to hit the page…

-- So just hours ago, I was at the Durham Performing Arts Center, watching Ain't Too Proud. It's the story of The Temptations, and the music was predictably amazing. Let me just say this… if you see that show and you do NOT like it, there's not a lot of chance of you and I having much in common.

-- Did you watch the NFL game on Thursday night? Steelers and Vikings? Well, I did, and there were half a dozen things in the game that just absolutely pied me off about the stupidity, lack of care, arrogance, and immaturity of somebody who will be paid more this year than I will earn in decades. And basically ALL of those things were done by Chase Claypool. What a self-centered, childish little idiot. Guys that stupid, who pay that little attention, who care zero for anyone else, need to be unemployed.

-- Last weekend, during the NC City Dart League postseason tournament, Port City and Jacksonville played a quarterfinal match that went all the way into a 1001 tiebreaker. Quite a few guys for each team missed, then Will Cain of Port City finally stuck the double. Port City celebrated, the teams shook hands, and all the players were wishing Port City luck as they moved on. And then Cain walked to the board to get his darts. Which is when he realized his winning dart was actually NOT in. Both teams thought it was in, Cain thought it was in, everyone thought it was in. And there was no chalker at the board to say that it wasn't (or to question the accuracy when Cain went to get his darts). Had he just grabbed his darts and walked away, nobody would have been the wiser. And I'll bet most of you know quite a few darters that you think would have just taken the win and moved on. But not Will Cain. He had too much integrity and honesty to win in that fashion, and he immediately made sure everyone knew the match was still on. In the end, Port City still won (karma!), so nothing changed. Aside from the fact that we all now know that we can straight-up trust Cain, nothing else changed. Perfect. When those moments in your day (darts or not) come up, be a Cain.

-- Yeah, yeah, I'm juvenile and all that and whatever. I can live with that. My wife and I went for a weekend in Cleveland to catch a Browns game and a concert, and we went out eating and drinking each day. And at one of the places where we went, this hand sanitizer in the men's room had this warning sign on it. And it immediately made me laugh in its subtle dirtiness. Enough that I took a picture, right?

-- Have you watched SportsCenter or NFL Live or roughly any sports coverage show of any type on any channel lately? There is an "advance" that I think I really want (need!) to die a quick and fiery death. The very first time that I heard somebody report that a computer simulation of some situation wanted me to know that there was a 12% likelihood that a player would make some particular catch, it made me think a bit about exactly how they would think they knew that. Then they told me that some team had a 57% chance of winning a particular game. And then they told me that a team had a 29% chance to make the playoffs, but those chances would rise to 41% if they won their next game but would fall to 18% with a next loss. And then another percentage. And then another. And now they're probably reporting that there is a 73% percent chance that the next story will contain a percentage report higher than 40 or whatever. Enough. Just enough. Make them all go away. So many they're meaningless.

-- Any of you have any idea why I report "singles+doubles" as a category, rather than just "overall" win percentage? Well, a bunch of years ago, I DID report it as the far simpler and cleaner "overall" win percentage. But one league member insisted that title was wrong because I wasn't including wins and losses from 1001s in that calculation. I argued that including a win or loss from a game when you might actually throw less than 10% of your sides' darts is just too few to be part of the calculation. And he agreed that 1001 shouldn't be included. But it bothered him to no end that my "overall" tag was still inaccurate. And it bothered him enough to make him bother me enough, such that I've now used the clunkier "singles+doubles" for maybe about two decades or so. Life was just easier on my end that way.

-- Know what my favorite part of the previous item is? The number of people who immediately had the urge to come find me to remind me that a team can't have more than 10 players on it, so even if you listed them all in 1001, nobody could throw less than 10% of their team's darts. Because people love to be right, and a lot of them love to come make sure that I know they are and I am not. And then I will tell them that it's amazing that each and every one of their team's 1001 games ends with each player having thrown the exact same number of turns. (And if that last sentence doesn't mean anything to you, I'll explain it when you come to tell me why I was wrong about the prior item's math.)

-- At the A division tournament final, some members of N. Raleigh Alliance (jokingly) thought that we should very definitely enforce the posted "must be 21 to play darts" rule at Brewster's. Since The Bullies' P.J. Stewart is decidedly NOT 21 (and won't be for about half a decade still!). Brings back a lot of fun memories… You know how many times we made that same joke about Kyle Gaulthier when it seemed that the A division tournament went through Brewster's every season for a while? Yeah, Gaulthier didn't leave either…

-- Can't decide… the Purdue men's basketball was ranked #1 this past weekend (for the first time ever, I think I heard). Then they quickly lost the next game, to an unranked opponent, to a nearly-midcourt buzzer-beater 3-pointer. Is that a great way to lose your first as a #1 because it's dramatic and shows that it takes ridiculous stuff to be you? Or is it a terrible way because the loss comes out of left field like some unlucky lightning strike?

-- One last time, I want to take this chance to thank each and every one of this season's 419 league members for coming back and helping claim part of our normalcy together. The world's in a rough spot, but I'm glad to be here showing up with each of you.

BEST "A" DIVISION SEASON SINGLES WIN %-AGES -- Spring 1996 through Fall 2021

In honor of Alex Spellman's historic season this Fall, we are going to explore some of the best individual seasons in the RDL's history. And with all due respect to all winning players at all division levels, the "best" performances will clearly be those in the league's highest division of play. This list of the best seasons contains results from the last 50 seasons, as that is the time during which I have been statistician. During those 50 seasons, there have been a total of 3220 A division player-seasons, so this list represents the best 1.68% of all A player seasons during my time with the Tons. [The statistical records prior my time (pre-1996) are not quite as complete, at least in the newsletter issues that have been made available to me thus far.]

Best "A" Division Seasons (ranked by SINGLES Win Percentage) in the Most Recent 50 Seasons

(Minimum required for this listing: 16 games -- Note: for teams in full 14-match seasons, it would have taken 19 games to win the season title)

ALL-TIME TOP TEAM SECTIONAL AND OVERALL RECORDS, FOR SINGLE SEASONS FROM SPRING 1996 TO PRESENT (current season teams in bold)

Over the past 50 seasons (the amount of time for which full RDL records are available), there have been 2815 teams in the RDL. Below are the "Top 35" team records from any single season for each of the four match sections, as well as overall records and all-star point averages. Just for a little fun, I've also included the "Bottom 3" (for this, teams that quickly forfeited out of the league are not included in the listing).

RDL BOARD MEMBER HISTORY - 50 SEASONS - SPRING 1996 THROUGH FALL 2021

Alright, if you read the newsletter with any regularity (and especially the trivia column), you know that I've been here keeping the league statistics and writing the newsletter for twenty-six years (50 seasons, plus Covid). So, you're all familiar with me and my big mouth. But are you familiar with the folks that actually make the real decisions for the league? I sit up front here, and I type stuff to you all the time, and I send you stuff, and I use my loud voice at the captains' meetings and banquets, but the reality is that all league policies and rules are set by your elected set of Board members. It's those 5-7 volunteers per season who actually hold all the power (and have a bunch of responsibilities for the standard volunteer rate of… nothin'!). And a bunch of those volunteers have come back time after time after time to make sure that our hobby keeps rolling without a hiccup. All in all, there have been 7 offices for the first 26 of these 50 seasons, then 6 offices for the most recent 24 seasons (the External Organizations position was dropped after 2008), so there have been 326 total officer-seasons. Of those 326, 20 have remained vacant, leaving 306 total officer-seasons. And a grand total of only 42 league members have filled those 306 spots, with Heather Bohanan (40 seasons), Kevin Coyne (21), Jason Thomas (18), J.P. Evans (15), and Tim Mozzetti (12) leading the parade of the selfless givers of their time (at least during this 50-season time window). Below are all the officers for all of my 50 seasons here, so you can see exactly who you can/should thank. (* = officer who joined the Board midseason due to a vacant office)

STATE MEETING RESULTS - SPECIFICS FOR 2022 SEASON

For 2022, the captains did indeed decide to keep going with our standard switch back to an East/West season. There will be 12 teams in both the NCCDL (Chapel Hill dropped out) and the NCLC (Asheville rejoined the league; the rest of the teams are all the same as in 2021. The NCCDL West division will have Asheville, Boone, Pineville, Charlotte, Lake Norman, and Piedmont. The NCCDL East division will have Durham, Raleigh, Capital Area, Jacksonville, Wilmington, and Chapel Hill. Teams will play a single round-robin within the division, and will also face three inter-division opponents, for a total of eight matches per team. The NCLC will have similar divisions and match numbers, with Fuquay-Varina flipped to the West and paired with the Boone NCCDL team to balance team numbers for scheduling.

Additional important scheduling note: Going forward, the end-of-season tournament has been moved from its recent time of the first weekend of December to an open weekend in early to mid-November, based around other event conflicts each year.

HISTORY OF THE NCCDL…

It was back in 1995 that Tim Lane (now of the Raleigh NCCDL team) first introduced the idea of the statewide year-long season style of play to replace the old "one team holds the cup against a string of challengers" sytem. It's still possibly the most popular and successful idea ever for anything larger than a local league. Here are the 25 tournament final results so far:

1996: Raleigh over Charlotte	2005: Durham over Wilmington	2014: Durham over Wilmington
1997: Piedmont over Durham	2006: Durham over Charlotte	2015: Wilmington over Piedmont
1998: Piedmont over Raleigh/Charlotte(?)	2007: Durham over Charlotte	2016: Wilmington over Durham
1999: Wilmington over Raleigh/Charlotte(?)	2008: Durham over Charlotte	2017: Wilmington over Durham
2000: Durham over Charlotte	2009: Wilmington over Charlotte	2018: Wilmington over Durham
2001: Durham over Wilmington	2010: Wilmington over Durham	2019: Durham over Wilmington
2002: Wilmington over Durham	2011: Durham over Lake Norman	2020: (no tournament - pandemic)
2003: Wilmington over Durham	2012: Durham over Wilmington	2021: Wilmington over Durham
2004: Wilmington over Durham	2013: Wilmington over Lake Norman

"A" Division - The Bullies (14-8)

In a match chock full of perfect throws and big finishes, The Bullies finally inch ahead of Element in DCkt after 2.5 matches of nearly dead even play this season, thereby locking up one of the only two season/tournament doubles in any division this season.

"B" Division - Consistently Inconsistent (13-9)

The B tournament was one of the craziest tournaments in the history of… anything. The ONLY match won by the higher-seeded seeded team in the entire tournament was the semifinals forfeit by the #7 seed that had just pulled off the biggest upset leaguewide.

"C" Division - Darty Minds (13-7)

After scoring the most season points in any division outside of A, but still not winning the regular season, Darty Minds rolled to the C tournament title. Somehow, their 13-7 win was the largest margin of victory in any of the seven very competitive division finals.

"D" Division - Off Constantly-Reboot (12+-12)

It turns out that Big Bulls really can't beat Off Constantly all season long, as Angelo Azevedo pitched a single-10/double-5 with Big Bulls sitting on 40 in the lone finals match tiebreaker, after both teams had already missed a few shots at the winner.

"E" Division - Red-eye Rangers (14-10)

In a division that had a very deep pool of talent despite having an undefeated season champ, the Rangers fought past a murderers' row to fulfill my Dark Horse prediction pick from the #4 slot.

"F" Division - Death Throw (13-11)

Death Throw used the first two weeks of the season to throw us all off the scent, taking two thumpings. After that, they went 11-2 in the season/tournament combined (losing one of those in 1001), and flat-out rolled 2 of their 3 tournament opponents before 501.

"G" Division - Sofa Kings (14-8)

This G tournament run was Sofa King good, finally getting over their personal Coach hurdle with a huge semifinals performance. But quick sidebar note: don't miss that Sofa's toughest battle was with the first-season newcomer Rippin Darts in the quarterfinals.

REGULAR SEASON WINNERS

"A" Division - The Bullies (11 wins, 1 loss)
2nd place - The Uncharted Element

"B" Division - Boom Baby!!! (9 wins, 3 losses)
2nd place - Armed & Hammered

"C" Division - We're DR.UNK Again (10 wins, 2 losses)
2nd place - Darty Minds

"D" Division - Off Constantly-Reboot (10 wins, 2 losses)
2nd place - Big Bulls

"E" Division - Darty Sanchez (12 wins, 0 losses)
2nd place - One Armed Bandits

"F" Division - Backpfeifengesicht (10 wins, 2 losses)
2nd place - Duck Yew

"G" Division - Banging The Wire (10 wins, 2 losses)
2nd place - Yeah Yeah Coach

We got a few photos a couple years ago, and… it was kind of great.. So this was a little minor tradition that I certainly wanted to encourage, and I asked the teams going into the tournament finals to consider taking a team photo and sharing it with us. This is one of my favorite items here. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's really about 'team' happiness anyway.)

A division regular season and tournament champions - The Bullies!!

SPRING 2022 PENALTY SUMMARY

Ok, I frickin' LOVE the modern RDL, with easy return of scoresheets via emails or texts, especially in seasons that don't have an election (and the associated mandatory ballot returns). During those seasons, we mostly just have to get all the teams to show up at the captains' meetings (and we often don't even need to hold the fifth week meeting!). Put all those factors together, and we get the type of awesomeness we had this season: a total of ONE penalty, leaguewide, through the entire season!! Yep, the wk04 late scoresheet from the F div. winner Backpfeifengesicht was the only point loss all season (and we didn't even have any match forfeits either!... well, until the weird E div. quarterfinal and the B div. semifinals, that is). And obviously, since Backpfeif won F, it's pretty obvious that no teams lost anything of real value to a penalty. Love that.

SPRING 2022 TIEBREAKER SUMMARY

Seven divisions this season, with only 7 teams per division, so a bit fewer number of matches than some seasons. Still, we had 28 tiebreakers (26 during the regular season, 2 in the tournament). Decent number.

The only division with more than 4 total tiebreakers was D division, which led the way with a stout 9! B and C had 4 each; E, F and G had 3 each; and A had only 2. (The two tourney ones were in B and D.)

Hump Day! In D took this season's Cardiac Kids award, as the only team playing as many as 4 1001s (going 2-2, all in their first 7 matches).

The Heartbreak Award was almost taken by four different teams who lost two 1001s, but it was the Cheap Shots' painful 0-3 mark that reigned.

HIT A NEWLY ADDED SUMMER BLIND DRAW?

UPPER DECK

As in many previous years, throughout the summer break the Upper Deck will be adding a weekly Wednesday blind draw for all those who just want to keep their regular dart night out rolling through the break. 8 pm start, just like normal Deck Fridays..

OR MAYBE YOU WANT TO ADD ANOTHER LEAGUE?

Looking to add a second league this coming season? It isn't entirely clear when some other local leagues will be starting up, but it is for one, and it's pretty soon for the other two. Check in on the websites listed below periodically to get the most updated registration information for the upcoming seasons.

Brown's Billiards Summer Send-off League!!

The Brown's In-House Summer League will be hosting its 7th (and final!!) season this summer. 10 week season, teams formed by a live draft, with cash prizes to the top two tournament and season teams. For more information, see the small story item on page 15, and the league registration flier on page 20.

Triangle Dart League (TDL - Chapel Hill & Durham)

Check www.ibiblio.org/ncdarts/tdl/ for information updates soon. The teams in TDL consist of 6-10 players per team, and dues are $20/player per season (I think). Recent seasons have used bars in both Chapel Hill and Durham, but I suspect that might vary a bit from season to season based on team preferences and signups.

Bull City Dart League (BCDL - Durham)

If you happen to be interested in trying out one of the very few handicapped steel-tip leagues anywhere, maybe the BCDL is in your future. The BCDL summer 2022 season should start right around early July, but the dates are not yet set. Teams in the BCDL consist of 4-8 players, dues are $25 per player per season (some of the host establishments cover half or all of those, so maybe ask around), and the home bars are primarily in RTP and the downtown Durham area. More complete information (and any updates in the coming weeks) can be found at:

www.thebcdl.org That website also includes a wealth of information about the league and its rules, so if you're just interested in seeing how the league applies a handicap system to a steel-tip league, you can find all of that there, including rules, statistics, and scoresheet examples.

OR POSSIBLY PICK UP SOME TOURNAMENT ACTION?

There is quite a slew of summer tournaments across NC, SC and TN, including one great event right here in our own backyard! You can find a listing within the calendar on page 8, and you can also find fliers for many of them on pages 20-22. Clearly, the most interesting one for most of us will be the Wreck at the Deck right here at the Upper Deck! Yep, an ADO tournament the first weekend in June, right here at the site of this RDL banquet!!

Not available that weekend, looking for a bigger event, or just looking to get a bit of travel going? Check out the Blue Ridge Open, the Firecracker Open, the Charlotte Open (July 8-10, and hosting the USSDA cricket nationals), or the Music City Classic.

"HOT DARTS" LISTING GUIDELINES

Here are the guidelines that will be used for the minimum number of all-star points each week for the "hot darts" page.
"A" Div. = 4.5 or more ASPs; "B" Div. = 4.0 or more ASPs
"C, D" Divisions = 3.5 or more ASPs
"E, F" Divs. = 3.0 or more ASPs; "G" = 2.5 or more ASPs
Also, we will list any fast games, high ins, high outs, or other amazing feats that you think warrant a little recognition (e.g., Ins & Outs higher than a Ton, 24-dart cricket games, 15-dart 301s, 24-dart 501s, Ton-70s and up, 5-Bulls+, etc.).

Extra note: it's also ok to call in "fast games" in each set, even if they don't necessarily meet the maximum dart counts above.

SEASON-LONG TROPHY DART MINIMUM GAMES PLAYED REQUIREMENTS

To be eligible for all-star point ave. & singles win %-age awards, you must play at least 66% of this season's projected games:
for ALL Divisions (7 teams / division):
Singles win %-age: min. of 16 Singles Games Played
All-star pt. Average: min. of 32 Total Games Played

PENALTY LOG

THE FORTY-NINTH SEMI-ANNUAL EDITION OF : JK'S DIVISIONAL ALL-STAR TEAM PICKS

(Players within each division are listed alphabetically) (Players are chosen any way I damn well please - not purely by the numbers!)

John White	Banging The Wire	Very strong across sets up to ok 501.

QUICK STAT TIDBITS

-The Quadruple Double Award winners (double-digit wins in all 4 sections With every division playing with a bye this season, we ended up with ZERO throwers with 10+ wins in every set. But we had three get really close, plus five others who had decent runs at it. First, our honorable mentions: Jose Velez of We're Dr.unk Again in C, Harris Carawon of Duck Yew in F, Dave Finney of Backpfeifengesicht in F, and Jay Dean of Ones Are Closed in G, each of whom had three 9+-win sets; as well as Sid Mitchell of The Replacements Reloaded in B, who had three 10+-win sets (and one much lower set, eek). Which leaves our top three, starting with two players from The Uncharted Element in A: Chad Massengill (who had four 9+-win sets) and Robbie Phillips (who had three 10+-win sets and an 8-win set); and then our top candidate this season: P.J. Stewart of The Bullies in A, who had four 9+-win sets, three of which were 10+

-IronMan/Woman Award: Since every division only had twelve matches, w certainly didn't come close to any all-time records, but at least every division had a leader that played more than the base 48 sets. Our clear Ironman this season was Harris Carawon of Duck Yew in F division with a stout 59 games outpacing all other division winners by at least 4 games. Honorable mentions as division leaders were: Matt Ridgway of Liver Die! in A with 50, Sid Mitchell of The Replacements Reloaded in B with 50, Tyler Smith of Nine Lives in C with 55, Dave Buckman of Cheap Shots in D with 51, Brady Price of Menace 2 Sobriety in E with 55, and the trio of Erik Raymond , Chase McDonald , and Dakota Helton , all of Rippin Darts in G, with 49 each

-The Team Attendance Award winners: While we had quite a pile of team that seemed to run with seven players all/most of the season, those certainly don't make the "running with six" bar. But we did have one clear winner, as well as a near candidate. The 'almost' winner of this award was Duck Yew in F division, who was forced to play without captain Bob Kuppler for a while after his bicycle accident. But the real winner of this award is Menace 2 Sobriety in E division, who actually only ever signed up six players this season! Obvious!

MY PRESEASON, WEEKLY, & TOURNEY PREDICTION RESULTS

As usual, I'm left with the option of trying to bluff my way through this part, or just telling the truth. And since I know some of you squirrel away every last thing I've ever written about your team, I will again give real results… bummer. Sometimes these results can border on embarrassing…

In my preseason picks (usually the toughest every season given the imminent roster changes/additions), I actually did quite well everywhere but in F division. I basically nailed A division; next, I told you that B would be "a wild gunslinger mess", that The Replacements would play many close matches, and I almost got the order; then in C, my pick won the tournament, and I had the season winner 2nd, but I overestimated Garage quite a bit; over in D, I had the 2nd and 3rd finishers ahead of the eventual winner, and I bumped up the Sharks quite a bit too much; in E, I had the top two flipped and overestimated Sippin'; then my F picks were a mess, thinking way too much of Consensus and not enough of the top two finishers; and finally in G, I had all the teams really close to their spots, but just not quite in the perfect order.

My weekly prediction results you can peruse pick-for-pick on the other side of this sheet of paper. As noted on that page, I had at least an even 0.500 record for all but one team, and then there were four teams that ended up even with me. I pretty much crushed A, C and E divisions, and also did just fine in B, D and G divisions… which leaves only the infernal F division as a tough challenge for me (three of the five 0.500-or below teams live there). An overall final correct pick rate of 74.83% was pretty great. Can certainly live with that.

Last but not least were my tournament predictions… Often when we jump to best-of-3, my picks get stronger, despite the fact that I'm picking semifinals and finals that I conceivably could have wrong before the matches are even played. This season, however, was… a near catastrophe… I managed a nice 16-5 in the quarterfinals (as there were 7 quarterfinal byes too), then was a sad 7-7 in the semifinals, and I finished with a horrible 1-6 in the finals. Ugh! And to top it off, the only winner I got right was the only one I wanted to get wrong.

JK'S TEAM-BY-TEAM, WEEK-BY-WEEK MATCH PREDICTION RESULTS

(I introduced this page thirty-five seasons ago, and it has become almost expected as a newsletter staple. Feast your eyes on the success...)

For several years, many of you have taken no greater pleasure in your weekly darting endeavors than to email or text me and point out to me just how wrong I was in my prediction of your match result. On a related note, I have noticed that many of you seem to have relatively selective memories saving only the weeks when I was wrong. Further, many others of you regularly embellish your statistics of how often you fool me. It's not so easy to get away with those rambles anymore, however, as you can see below. Each W is a week when I picked your match correctly, and each L is one I picked incorrectly. Division totals are to the right of the team totals, weekly totals are at the bottom, and in the space between the 14 weeks and the team totals, the six 'o' symbols indicate the teams for which I was only 0.500, and the four 'x' symbols indicate the teams that fooled me more often than not. [Overall, I kinda kicked some butt for most of this season. I started really poorly with some teams, and finished poorly with others, but in the end there were four teams with whom I ended up exactly even, and one team that fooled me more often than not. And three of those five difficult teams were in F, which was clearly my problem child division (the only division not above 69% correct). - JK]

THIS SEASON'S TRIVIA QUESTIONS… REVISITED

I now run this column during seasons in which I've included trivia questions all season. Each question is listed exactly as it was during the season, so there is potential for a question to now be out of date, but it's usually not too much of a problem. Each question is listed under the week number when it ran, and the answers follow the questions. No peeking…

Week 8 question: In light of The Bullies rolling all the way to week 7 before losing a SCkt game… what are the best season-long records in each of the four sets of play in A division since the start of 1996 (when I took over as the RDL statistician)?

Week 9 question: Ok, the question above ended up being a pretty interesting one, so let's go ahead and expand it for this week's issue. What are the best season-long records in each of the four sets of play in ANY division (since the start of 1996)?

Week 10 question(s): During my 50 seasons as statistician, what is the greatest number of consecutive seasons that someone has won the A division singles title? What is the longest string of singles titles seasons in any division?

Week 11 question(s): Who are the five longest consecutively tenured team suckers captains in the RDL? How many seasons? (and for this consecutive tenure, we literally mean zero seasons off, even if the team itself didn't play for a season)

Week 13 question(s): While we're on the topic of longest strings, what is the current longest run of consecutive sets played (as in, which player has currently played every set of every regular season match for the longest time)? How many sets (or matches) in a row?

Week 14 question(s): In the Spring 1997 season, I included my first ever All-Star Team page in the banquet Tons. Of the 56 people named to divisional all-star teams that season, how many are playing here in the Spring 2022 season a quarter century later? Who are they?

Week 8 answer : There have been 50 seasons since I took over as statistician, and those seasons have included 378 A div. teams. Of those, the best 301 season ever was 65-19 (0.774, by Lunatic Fringe in the Sp03 season); the best SCkt season ever was 62-10 (0.861, by The Bullies just last season in Fa21); the best DCkt season ever was 22-2 (0.917, by Birth of an Element in Sp20; just ahead of the 38-4 by Element XXX in Sp18, the only other time an A team has posted a set win rate >90%); and the best 501 season ever was 35-7 (0.833, done 3 times, by The Element Way in Sp16, The Irreverent Element in Fa16, and The Overall Element in Fa18). [Answer update for the banquet Tons : The Bullies this spring went ahead and topped the SCkt record they set just last season, posting a stellar 63-9 (0.875 win rate). And one of the most interesting aspects of that new record is that The Bullies dropped 6 of those 9 losses in the last three weeks of the season. Up until then, they had posted a perfect 6-0 night in 8 of their 9 matches.]

Week 9 answer : There have been 50 seasons since I took over as statistician, and those seasons have included 2815 total teams (3 of whom never actually played), including the 378 A div. teams from last week's question. Of those, the best 301 season ever was indeed the aforementioned 65-19 (0.774, by Lunatic Fringe in the Sp03 A division); the best SCkt season ever was indeed the aforementioned 62-10 (0.861, by The Bullies just last season in the Fa21 A division); then, skipping ahead, the best 501 season ever did include the aforementioned 35-7 (0.833, done 3 times, by The Element Way in Sp16 A division, The Irreverent Element in Fa16 A division, and The Overall Element in Fa18 A division), but they were joined by a 30-6 season (by Show Me Your Tips in the Sp18 F division; and finally, the best DCkt season ever was an astonishing 41-1 (0.976, by Domestic Rednecks in the Fa10 C division; joining the 22-2 by Birth of an Element in Sp20 A division, and the 38-4 by Element XXX in Sp18 A division as the only times any team in any division has posted a set win rate >90%). [Answer update for the banquet Tons : This season's top marks in each set were all achieved in A division. The Bullies' 55-17 301 record, The Uncharted Element's 31-5 DCkt record, and The Bullies' 28-8 501 record, all were very strong but fell short of the all-time standards. The Bullies' SCkt record (63-9), however, did raise the all-time bar, as noted in the banquet-updated answer added to the previous question.]

Week 10 answer : Since the start of 1996 (and I did indeed compare back to the Fa95 banquet newsletter just to see if any strings had begun before I took over as statistician), there have been 27 runs of 2+ consecutive seasons with a singles title. 6 of those 27 runs were 3+ seasons, 5 of those 27 runs were achieved in A division, 5 players each own 2 of those 27 runs, and 2 players among those 5 multi-run winners had multiple runs in A division. Thus, the following 8 players are this answer's core, in 4 levels… First, Steve Wilcenski (Sp09 G / Fa09 F / Sp10 E), J.D. Dixon (Sp96 E / Fa96 D / Sp97 C), and Jeremy Limerick (Fa17 E / Sp18 D / Fa18 C) each had a 3-season win streak in the mid/lower divisions. Second, Vicente Martinez (Fa07 F / Sp08 E, and Sp11 C / Fa11 E) and Billy Lloyd (Fa11 C / Sp12 B, and Sp15 C / Fa15 B) each had a pair of 2-season runs in the mid/lower divisions. Third, Chad Massengill had both a 3-season streak in the mid/lower divisions (Sp13 D / Fa13 C / Sp14 B) and a 2-season streak in A division (Sp17 A / Fa17 A). And finally, fourth, the super level of this answer includes two RDL super-heavyweights that most Tons readers likely expected would be listed here. They each have a 2-season streak in A and a longer streak in A. Mike Seward took 2 straight titles in Sp04 A / Fa04 A, and he took 3 straight in Sp07 A / Fa07 A / Sp08 A; and Robbie Phillips took 2 straight titles in Sp10 A / Fa10 A, and he took FOUR straight in Sp14 A / Fa14 A / Sp15 A / Fa15 A. [Answer update for the banquet Tons : None of this season's divisional singles title winners also won the title last season, so no singles title win streaks were added this season.]

Week 11 answer : Obviously, there are 49 captains this season. For 15 of them, this is their first season (at least in their current run as a captain, as this question is about current consecutive streaks). 3 others are in their 2nd straight season; 2 are in their 3rd straight; and 4 are in their 4th straight. Which leaves the 25 longest runs. 5 (Cusher, Stacy, Trefzger, Osier, Keim) are in their 5th straight; 1 (Toolan) is in his 6th. 2 (Phillips, Long) are in their 7th; 3 (Huffman, Cannizzaro, Jeffcoat) are in their 8th; 2 (Parker, Buckman) are in their 9th; 2 (Cominole, McNamara) are in their 10th; 1 (Gaertner) is in his 12th; 2 (Rutten, Cornell) are in their 13th; 1 (Emerton) is in his 14th; and 1 (Eason) is in his 16th. Which leaves only the 5 longest captain streaks, and those 5 are WAY longer than all the others'. Lyman Kiser of the One Armed Bandits in his 24th consecutive season as a captain; David Romanchek of Nine Lives and Tolson Willis of Death Throw are each in their 26th consecutive seasons. Which leaves only the two craziest of all of us fools, who started captain runs in the previous millennium! Yours truly (Jason Kilts of The Uncharted Element) is in his 51st season in a row (which, coincidentally, exactly matches my time as statistician); which leaves only the true OG of RDL captains, Joe Kunesh of the Red-eye Rangers!! Kunesh is in "at least" his 54th consecutive season as captain, but I honestly can't tell you if it's 0 more, 5 more, or 20 more. I could confirm it for 3 seasons prior to my time as the statistician, but the paper records I've been able to piece together beyond that so far don't include enough information to say further.

Week 13 answers : Ok, it turns out that 21 league members (of the current 442 that we have as we continue climbing to our pre-pandemic roster numbers) have played every set this season (P.J. Stewart, Chad Massengill, and Matt Wilson in A; Vic White and Sid Mitchell in B; Gary Long, Deane Morin, and J.J. Tant in C; Dave Buckman in D; Scott Kirkpatrick, Chris Robertson, J.J. White, Keith Bouchard, and Brady Price in E; Sebastian Dehnel, David Swartzel, and Harris Carawon in F; and Ken McNamara, Erik Raymond, Chase McDonald, and Dakota Helton in G). But only TWO of those 21 also played every set last season (meaning they've played every post-pandemic set!): P.J. Stewart of The Bullies in A, and J.J. White of Menace 2 Sobriety in E. That's where Stewart's run ends though, leaving him with 92 straight sets, going back through week 1 of Fa21. Leaving White as the current every-set Iron Man, with an absolutely astonishing 315 consecutive sets stretching back all the way to his last missed set in week 5 of the Spring 2018 season!! (Note: that number runs through byes, 1001 games, a season cut off after week 8, etc., so just trust me on this one…) [Answer update for the banquet Tons: Both Stewart and White played all 8 sets in the last 2 weeks as well. But White then certainly missed his playoff match, so I guess it's good that this is a "regular-season-only" question, eh?]

Week 14 answers: 9 of the 56 divisional all-stars are still in the league here 25 years later. Tom Brown (of The Uncharted Element in A), Tim Lane (of Shark Shooters in D) and Allen Smith (of The Uncharted Element in A) were all on the A division all-star team; Randy Baldwin (of Hump Day! in D) and Mike Seward (of North Raleigh Alliance in A) were on the B team; Doug Jeffcoat (of Consistently Inconsistent in B) was on the D team; Mark Powell (of Red-eye Rangers in E) was on the E team (and is the only person in this answer still on basically the same team!); and Dawn Clement (of Backpfeifengesicht in F) and Barry Jackson (of Hump Day Hurlers in B) were on the G team. [Answer update for the banquet Tons: Powell, still on that same team, made the same E team again.]

[Like the last many seasons, we used three-song groups each week and also included a theme each and every week. Added a layer to the game for everybody and has been quite popular. Here are the themes for each week*, including the week 14 fifteen-song set that proved to super tough for every lyric guesser who played except for Roy Lindsey of Liver Die!, who nearly nailed the whole set alone. - JK]*

Week 2 theme: A song about never saying goodbye, a song about having a party, and a song by a band named Cake. This is absolutely the narrative of the Joe Rigert, Sr. farewell party that, to a trained cake fanatic eye like my own, was nothing but a have-my-cake-and-eat-it-~~too~~/again ploy! He says it's due to a housing delay issue, but I say it was about free cake. Week 3 theme: Telling that cheating liar that you know what's what's up. Not really anything beyond that, just a set based on that incredible earworm by Frida. Week 4 theme: Making a brand new start at something. Although if you had said "songs to which I can't help but sing along," I wouldn't have held that against you. Week 5 theme: Ok, after a few tough weeks of lyrics, I kinda thought that if we went back to real classics, we would rein things in a bit for lots of our players. Then I threw in a strong identifier for so many of us, in being all about the south… Week 6 theme: This one was for the grammar fans in the crowd, as this trio was song titles full of adverbs. I really like the first and the third because the words were "only" adverbs, but I had to grab just something as the third song - admittedly, I kinda hate it as an inclusion now though. Oh, well… whatever. Week 7 theme: Apes and monkeys! Nope, not technically the same, but pretty close in most people's minds, so they became one lyric set. Week 8 theme: Yep, this one was completely inspired by the big shots ending the huge 'Element-Bullies match in week 7 (and written up in last week's newsletter). Do note that these "big shots" and "hero personas" are not to be confused with the normal "hero shot" connotation that is common in dart circles and is generally considered sort of not so great. :o) Week 9 theme: Well, one of us was in Miami Beach for a few days last week. Oh, it wasn't you? Then it must have been me. Yep… was definitely me. And it was an excellent break. Week 10 theme: The regaining of our lives and the associated travel that so many are finally starting to feel. Nope, we haven't faced war, widespread famine, or natural catastrophes, but the past couple years have pretty much sucked worldwide, and the regaining of regular travel is just another step back toward our very indulged and pampered lives. And I'm completely good with that. Week 11 theme: Well, after a week of me being in Miami, and then a week of us celebrating a return to travel, I decided to make it a bit more literal. Thus, we've got the wheels/circles rolling 'round, possibly as you head on down the highway. Week 12 theme: We had a week about a Miami trip, followed by a week celebrating a return to travel, then we head a week about rolling down the highway. I elevated this next set (in more ways than one) to take that travel up in the air. Just felt like the right progression. Week 13 theme: Remember how I warned everyone that week 13 scoresheet confirmations might be a little delayed? And how the past several lyrics sets went from me being in Miami and through a different bunch of travel-related stuff? Well, those all led to this set being three Vegas legends, because that's where I was while you guys were playing!! Woowoo!! Week 14 theme: A bunch of places to which you could maybe travel, building on the many-week series of sets with ever-growing-travel-type themes (listed alphabetically by destination).

SEND THEM OUT PROPERLY, EH?

For those who haven't heard yet, this is very likely the last season for Brown's Billiards. Due to some really unfortunate real estate "advances" that have made the rents and purchase prices of space in some areas (like where Brown's is) just untenable, the Huffmans are likely to be setting up shop elsewhere (and possibly quite a distance from the RDL). BUT… Brown's isn't gone yet, and they're hosting one last Summer In-House Season!!! You can find the full information on page 20, but you need to act quickly, as registration for this Send-Off Summer Session will be closing this Wednesday. But do note that you register as single players, so you don't need to get a team together or anything. Just sign up, get drafted on a team, and start showing up at Brown's every Wednesday for your match. But remember… this is an in-house league, so there actually is a cap to the number of players they can have -- so signing up earlier might be better if you really want to get in.

THE ISSUE NAME ON PAGE 1

The things I name the issues of the Tons are pretty variable (ok, highly variable), and they can be from anything. And generally, I don't ever tell anybody the source or reason behind most of them. But this issue's? I'm calling it out. That is an actual quote from Dan Naylor of The Bullies uttered during our A division final. I guess I recommend you steer clear of Dan and board games?! Eek.

ONE OF MY FAVORITE CONVERSATIONS THIS SEASON

From a couple weeks after I pointed out the return to play of RDL legends Wil Tan and Bob Terry this season…

Terry: "Hey, thanks for the kind words in the newsletter."

Me: "You're a legend, bro. By your own doing."

Terry: "Next time I see you, beers on me."

Me: "Unnecessary. Also, you don't seem to understand how this legend thing works. People generally get YOU things, not vice versa."

Terry: "Hmm.. My current team doesn't understand that either. I was considered the "new guy" so I had to buy the Bud Light. (old commercial)."

Me: "Well, ok... sometimes the "legend" thing gets muted among the guys who knew you before the earned the status… You're more prone to receiving eye rolls from those folks."

A COUPLE MORE GOOD QUOTES

From Mike Venable, captain of Methodical Insurrection, after wk13: "Do we hold the record for most times getting swept in 501 yet? Because I want a fuing trophy. We suck and can't hold our liquor." [Hmmm… not absolutely positive, I admit, but since there was once an A team that scored 22 total points in 12 matches, I'm guessing your five nights of being swept in 501 is probably not a record even if it felt like it. Still… sorry about the liquor, I guess. - JK]

From Lyman Kiser, captain of One Armed Bandits, after the semis: "Us, 14 to 4 is what I heard." Then me: "What you heard? I guess you weren't there?" Then Lyman again: "No, I was. But man, that is a long night, and the beer is right there the whole time." [Points for honesty, hilarious honesty, my good man. - JK]

THESE THINGS… DO NOT EXIST

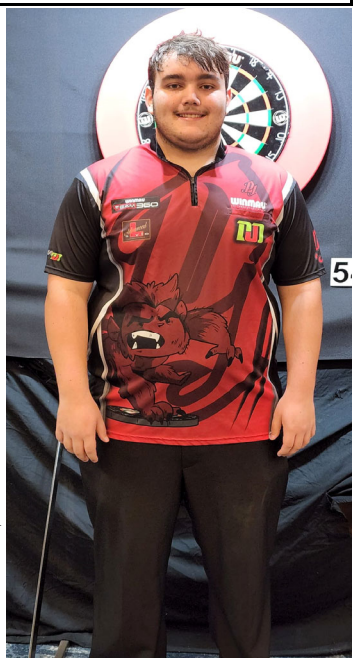
A few times this season, I heard from teams that they spent part of their night waiting for the other team to take "a smoke break." And often that same opponent would "take their full 10 minutes to list." Ummmm… those aren't things in the RDL. Not now, not ever. Just not things here, and just not acceptable. And nobody should be allowed to tell you otherwise. Sure, teams can have a player head outside for a few minutes when they aren't up, but a "called" break for the whole team? Uh, nope. And claiming 10 minutes to list? Also, nope. Man, we would be having words if this was our match…

IN MEMORIAM

It is with a very heavy heart that I am here to report that the RDL family lost one of its longest-standing and most dedicated members 15 days ago. Keith Wall, one of the most successful throwers of the past three decades, lost an extended battle with what I honestly just perceived to be continued poor health. While I of course see all of our RDL members are very valued family members, I easily admit that this one hits a little closer to home for me than some might. Wall was a team member of mine from my first day in the RDL in 1995, he was a first-season member of Element who played with us almost continually through 2018, he was a teammate of mine in the BCDL for many years, he was my City Cup teammate for more than two decades, we've traveled across the state for party weekends (that happened to include a dart match) more times than I can count, and we've played poker, fantasy football and college pools together since the '90s. Wall and I could hardly be much more different in terms of lifestyle, upbringing, hobbies, job, etc., but we clicked from day one. Wall is family. Not was… is.

And oh, I guess I should say something more league factual here… Wall had 3 state titles, won RDL A division more than 20 times, hit a couple dozen perfect throws, and had leaguewide fast games in every set but singles '01. He also won 10 state cup titles, starting with the original Raleigh team that won the first Cup and then playing with Durham for two decades. And, and, and, and… and a whole pile of other darting achievements. Blah, blah, blah. All of that is nice, but it's Wall the person that I will miss. Long live The Hammer (the first darter nickname I inadvertently gave that stuck).

AND NOW FOR SOME PURE JOY!



Back on April 1st, Jordan Johnson, the young son of Menace 2 Sobriety's Dave Johnson and his wife Brielle, came home after being born 12 weeks early! Everybody is healthy and happy, and the time away from the league has brought the perfect outcome for Johnson. We've missed Dave here in RDL-land, but at least his reason is the most adorable and lovable reason possible. And now we just have to wait about a decade and a half until Menace's roster expands by one. Congratulations to the Johnsons, and welcome back to Dave in the near future (and now I don't have to pick Menace last out of pure protest of a Dave-less Menace).

THE HALL OF GREATNESS WILL RETURN…

I know that I originally teased that we were unveiling my personal RDL Hall of Greatness at this banquet. But as noted in my email a couple weeks ago, due to a confluence of a surprising number of factors/conflicts, the unveiling is going to have to wait until the fall. Oh well, not like a list this long-planned will change in six months.

DO OTHERS BOTHER TO ENTER ANYMORE?

Alright, I'm just going to have to program a macro or a hot-key or something to save me the typing time in future Tons. Because this story might as well just be on "repeat." P.J. Stewart (of The Bullies in A division, who just completed the season/tournament double to very few people's surprise) went to Cleveland a few weeks ago and claimed the ADO Youth 501 National Championship. Again. Which is really "again, again." The years-long Stewart National Tour of Youth Death and Destruction barreled onward, as he is STILL the only youth to claim an ADO or USSDA youth national title since the start of 2019. Yes, for 3.5 years now. Yes, since he was friggin' 13. And he can still play in them for a year and a half. This… is getting silly. But, this silliness is also off to the Netherlands in December for the Worlds!!

THREE-TIME WORLD CHAMP? NO PROBLEM

The Championship Darts Circuit, a year-long series of twelve long-format 501 events spread across four big tournament weekends, is one of the main features of the Championship Darts Corporation (check them out here: https://champdarts.com/). And it's all a big official tour with standings and large prize payouts, and even offers spots in the World Darts Championship (in London at Alexandria Palace in December this year). But what it really is to the normal folks among us is a battleground of the baddest-ass darters from Canada and the U.S. The level of competition is off the charts (for mere mortals), but it's super fun to watch. And how about this for an opportunity? Want to watch our very own Robbie Phillips tangle with 3-time World Champ John Part in CDC Event 3 held a couple weeks ago? (Spoiler alert… Phillips wins! And this wasn't even him at his best. Nice! RDL showing out.) It's right here: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=U164Xktc3AA

AND THIS RIGHT HERE? THIS IS LUDICROUS

Robbie Phillips wasn't the only one making decent runs and taking out big names at the CDC events. Alex Spellman (a teammate of P.J. Stewart's, see above left, on The Bullies) was knocking out top names too. But then he encountered this ridiculous pile of crazy in the Top 16 round of CDC Event 2 a couple weekends ago. Spellman was up against Danny Baggish (yes, the Danny Baggish who earned his PDC Tour Card at the Q school last year), and the numbers are a bit staggering. I've plucked an image of games 7, 8 and 9 of their best-of-five set so you can see every throw. After Baggish checked out 170 to complete a 15-darter to grab a 4-3 lead, Spellman popped a 100 to complete his own 15-darter and force the final game. In that final game, Spellman hit EIGHT triples and one single in his 9 darts… and never got a dart at the out. One wire from perfect, and didn't get a shot because Baggish went first and went out in 12 darts. Nutso.

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK

Nowadays, it's a fact… this column has become a banquet Tons staple. I have no idea why so many are so keen on taking a peek into the oddness that is my head, but you are. So without further ado, let's open up my head again and see what falls out. Some of these observations are dart-related, and some of them clearly are not. As always, this is just about the last thing that I'm writing and this season is certainly no exception… soooo, also as always not even I know what's about to hit the page…

-- Ok, so… just a few hours before you're reading this, I was typing this last page. And just a few hours before I was typing this page, the photo to the right was my view. If you don't know what that it, then you likely don't care about this item, and there's no reason for me to explain it to you. But if you do know what that it… you can probably tell how great our seats were (and they were free to me! can't beat that!). Game 2 rocked… love a great defensive battle.

-- Which brings me to my second point here… I yell a lot at hockey games, and even more so during the playoffs. If I have less voice than usual for calling out the awards, I apologize in advance.

-- Do you remember the last time you were at a drive-through at a fast food restaurant, and the prices on the menu board were actually the prices of the food you are ordering? Yeah, me neither. The prices are never WAY off, but they're just never right. Ever. Not a huge deal, but that really is annoying and unfair.

-- So I'm driving down the road and a song by Selena Gomez and Marshmello comes on the radio. And the lyrics of the chorus keep repeating "I've been running through the jungle, I've been running with the wolves, To get to you, to get to you." Now, I admit that I have not spent a lot of time in any jungle, but… are there wolves in the jungle? Any jungle? I don't even know if the song was good (ok, I probably do know that it wasn't), but I didn't care, as that line was so dumb that it was just pissing me off repeatedly.

-- If your arrogant, self-important ass parks like this, and I happen to be in the same parking lot… I will apologize in advance for the random (and wholly unintentional) stuff that happens. Like carts running into your truck. Or keys running into your truck. Or trash landing on your truck. Or my car randomly parking about an inch from the front or back of your vehicle. Not sure how any of those would have happened. And also not sure how I convince myself to feel bad about any of them.

-- So this past March, Mike Krzyzewski ended his tenure at Duke. And love him or hate him, you just have to respect him. But what I'm happiest about is that he passed John Wooden in most of the NCAA tournament win categories. Don't get me wrong, I think Wooden is a legend and all, but I'm super-duper sick of hearing about how many national titles he won, since he did it during the era when the regionals were actually geographically regional, and the West region was basically UCLA and a pile of schools that were the equivalent of Southeastern Community Teachers' College of Utah. It was nearly a free pass to the Final Four year after year after year. Teams nowadays have a tougher road just making it to the final 32. He was great and all, but enough about that sort of empty record by comparison.

-- This past season, there was an extended story on ESPN about NFL players and their favorite "get ready and get amped up" song for before their games. The resounding favorite across teams, conferences, and even ages, was In The Air Tonight by Phil Collins. Yep, I get the slow-building momentum to the crashing drum string and all, but do you think any of the players know their get-my-mindset song is about impending divorce?

-- Ever been to Vegas? Even if you haven't, I'm guessing you have some "idea" of Vegas in your head, or at least an idea of the Vegas Strip portion of the city. And it probably involves every last thing being a little "extra,", and in a lot of cases you would be right. Even in the plainest of food options, it appears, as this is the least 'plain' bagel I've encountered. Yeah, yeah, they put the wrong sign in front of the wrong food, but I still maintain that this is about the most Vegas of food examples. Which might be why I love Vegas so.

-- I've decided that I know what might be the quickest way for me to lose respect for you (in a regular every day setting, not in an I'm-a-serial-killer setting). Tell me that you think your job is to be an "Influencer." And don't bother trying to pretty it up by calling it a social media influencer. Just go ahead and call yourself Self-Important Annoying Person With No Real Job Who Preys On The Whims Of The Gullible and be done with it.

-- Did you see how much the Packers will be paying Aaron Rodgers? Did you see how much the Buccaneers will be paying Tom Brady? Do you know how many more top level players you can sign with that difference? Do you know how many more championship rings one has than the other? But at least he will finally make enough money to get by when he's done playing, so that's good. That's obviously what's important at this point in their playing / endorsement / announcing / other careers.

-- NASCAR has never really been my sport, but I understand phrases like "rubbing is racing." And while that has never been my style on the road, I'm warning the next person that is sitting in front of me at a traffic light who doesn't go when the light is green because they are tapping away on their phone, I think I could probably start embracing a quick "rub" to gather your attention and get things moving.

-- So I have Wicked Tuna Outer Banks on the other night while I was up late on the computer, and there is a scene where a guy is cooking dinner for the guys on the boat. I don't know what meat he was preparing, but he turned to the camera to tell us that it was "the northern version of Canadian bacon." I suppose I've never heard anybody say that you have to be a Rhodes Scholar to work on a bluefin tuna fishing boat.

-- You know what makes me sad? When people I know who I thought were smart, show up in my Facebook feed as having commented something like "Done" in response to some silly and obvious bullst post such as "To celebrate our business anniversary, we've decided to give a Dodge Ram pickup to every person that replies Done by midnight Saturday." I guess at least they aren't gullible enough to answer quizzes with stuff that is common password reset stuff. Oh, wait, I know those folks too…

The "RDL Seems To Have Come Out Of The Pandemic Nicer, Funner, More Talented, And More Global" Edition

TOURNAMENT WINNERS

"A" Division - ? (postponed to Wednesday, December 14th)
For the first time in known RDL history, a tournament final has been postponed to a date AFTER the banquet. (see page 16)
I will send an updated banquet Tons after the match is played.

"B" Division - Consistently Inconsistent (13-7)
After taking week 1 to figure things out a bit, Inconsistent became anything but, ripping off 13 straight wins to run the table the rest of the regular season and tournament, winning the season title by 3 full matches and only playing one 501 set in the tournament.

"C" Division - Trippin Bulls (14-8)
This season's tournament upset darlings become the only winner that hadn't finished in the division's top-two during the season, rolling all the way from the #5 seed to the Mugs, taking out three of the top four season finishers without ever seeing the last 501!

"D" Division - Darty Sanchez (14-8)
The league's craziest season race (led by four 8-4 teams and a 7-5 team!) settled down a bit in the tournament. But after the four semis teams were set, nothing would've been an upset. In the end, Sanchez brought order, winning the rubber match over the Bandits.

"E" Division - Menace 2 Sobriety (13-7)
The drought (that I honestly hadn't recognized until they told me) is over!!!! After TWO DECADES of playing in the RDL, Menace reeled in their first-ever tournament title! First. Ever. And they did it partly by taking out a crazy tough bionic man (see page 15).

"F" Division - Death Throw (12-10)
Wow, did this tournament almost get away from what was clearly the dominant F team all season. Death Throw scored 14+ in all but two weeks in the season, but then had to survive both a tiebreaker and a 12-10 nailbiter against the shorthanded Jets in the tourney.

"G" Division - Sofa Kings (13-5)
After outlasting two other teams in an entire-season-long battle to claim the top spot headed into the postseason, the Sofa Kings finished off the season-tournament double with what was likely the most dominant tourney run in any division (14-4, 14-6, 13-5).

REGULAR SEASON WINNERS

"A" Division - The Convergent Element (12 wins, 0 losses)
2nd place - The Bullies

"B" Division - Consistently Inconsistent (11 wins, 1 loss)
2nd place - Darty Minds

"C" Division - Dysfunctional Outlaws (9 wins, 3 losses)
2nd place - Dart Attack

"D" Division - Rif Raf (8 wins, 4 losses)
2nd place - Darty Sanchez

"E" Division - Red-eye Rangers (11 wins, 1 loss)
2nd place - Menace 2 Sobriety

"F" Division - Death Throw (13 wins, 1 loss)
2nd place - Y.N.T.A.

"G" Division - Sofa Kings (12 wins, 2 losses)
2nd place - Village Idiots

"A" Division - The Bullies (12+-12)
Well, of course the (first-ever postponed-to-after-the-banquet) "A" divisional final went to 1001. Duh, this is Bullies-Element. 7 perfect throws, a league record game, piles of big outs and stuff. Standard.

We got a few photos a couple years ago, and… it was kind of great.. So this was a little minor tradition that I certainly wanted to encourage, and I asked the teams going into the tournament finals to consider taking a team photo and sharing it with us. This is one of my favorite items here. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's really about 'team' happiness anyway.)

A division (regular season and??) tournament champions - either The Convergent Element or The Bullies…

FALL 2022 PENALTY SUMMARY

Alright, after a few seasons of almost no penalties, we regressed a bit (in part due to inclusion of a fifth week captains' mtg.). We had 1 preseason captains' meeting penalty (for 5 points), 6 fifth week captains' meetings penalties (total of 30 points), 5 late scoresheets (total of 80 points, and which is nearly inexplicable in the age of texted/emailed photos), and 1 ineligible player (16 points AND the loss of a match win - yikes!). That's a total of 13 penalties for 131 points and a match win, with 11 teams sharing those penalties; And this year's biggest losers in the penalty line? It's not the team that gave up a match win (Dart Knights). It's Why So Serious? in B, the only team with more than 1 penalty (they had 3), with the most points lost (37), and they dropped from 2nd place to 3rd, losing a possible rebound to A (which, sadly, some might see as a win…).

FALL 2022 TIEBREAKER SUMMARY

Honestly, not that many tiebreakers this season… only 27 (24 during the regular season, 3 in the tournaments). And there were no concentrations of them on any specific team or divisions. Every division had 3-5 of them. There were 5 each in E and F (the only divisions with a tiebreaker in the postseason), 4 each in A and D, and 3 each in B, C and G.

While 8 teams played two tiebreakers, the Cardiac Kids award kinda sorta goes to Sharky's Machine in E and Bangin The Wire, as the only teams with 3. And the Heartbreak Award goes to Sharky's Machine again, along with Dart Side of the Moon in F, as the only two of the five 2-tiebreaker loss teams leaguewide whose 2 included a tourney-ender.

THIS PAGE VERSION UPDATED AFTER THE "A" DIVISION TOURNAMENT FINAL PLAYED 4 DAYS AFTER THE BANQUET.

HOLIDAY BREAK BLIND DRAWS

UPPER DECK

As in many previous years, throughout the holiday break the Upper Deck will be adding a weekly Wednesday blind draw for all those who just want to keep their regular dart night out rolling through the break. 8 pm start, just like normal Deck nights, and with a double shot added for those so inclined.

AND DON'T FORGET THE REGULAR DRAWS TOO

While it appears that only the Upper Deck will be adding any "extra" draws during the weeks over the holidays, the Deck and four other area establishments will continue hosting their regular draws until the spring season starts (see full list on page 8). Now, will there be draws on Christmas, New Year's, etc.? Not sure, so I recommend calling ahead on the actual holiday dates.

OR MAYBE YOU WANT TO ADD ANOTHER LEAGUE?

Looking to add a second league this coming season? It isn't entirely clear when one of the other local leagues will be starting up, but the leagues in Durham and Chapel Hill have both recently finished a season. I don't have the registration dates for the BCDL in Durham yet, but it will start up shortly after the first of the year. The TDL dates are included below. But in either case, the holiday break might be a very convenient time for you and your friends to get plans together for a team if you are interested in adding another local league night. Check in on the websites listed below periodically to get the most updated registration information for the upcoming seasons.

Triangle Dart League (TDL - Chapel Hill & Durham)

Always check www.ibiblio.org/ncdarts/tdl/ for the most current information, but this much we already know. The TDL Spring 2023 team registration meeting will be on Thursday, 1/5, at 7pm at the Tavern in downtown Durham. Play will begin the following week, on Thursday, 1/12. The teams in TDL consist of 6-10 players per team, and dues are $20/player per season (I think). Recent seasons have used bars in both Chapel Hill and Durham, but I suspect that might vary a bit from season to season based on team preferences and signups.

Bull City Dart League (BCDL - Durham)

If you happen to be interested in trying out one of the very few handicapped steel-tip leagues anywhere, maybe the BCDL is in your future. The BCDL spring 2023 season has not been put on the schedule yet, but it should be soon. Teams in the BCDL consist of 4-8 players, dues are $25 per player per season (some of the host establishments cover half or all of those, so maybe ask around), and the home bars are primarily in RTP and the downtown Durham area. More complete information (and any updates in the coming weeks) can be found at:

www.thebcdl.org That website also includes a wealth of information about the league and its rules, so if you're just interested in seeing how the league applies a handicap system to a steel-tip league, you can find all of that there, including rules, statistics, and scoresheet examples.

OR POSSIBLY PICK UP SOME TOURNAMENT ACTION?

The QCDA down in Charlotte will once again have their annual full weekend event, and this year it will be held the weekend after New Year's weekend. I've always heard that it's a pretty fun one, so maybe head on down and check it out. (flyer on page 21)

Or perhaps you are looking for a mountain trip? And one that has a lot of big extra stuff going on with it? This year's Fire on the Mountain tournament in Asheville isn't just a full weekend tournament. It's also the site of both the USSDA 2023 501 National Championship for Adults and the Military National Championship!! So if you're interested, check the flyer (page 22).

"HOT DARTS" LISTING GUIDELINES

Here are the guidelines that will be used for the minimum number of all-star points each week for the "hot darts" page.

"A" Div. = 4.5 or more ASPs; "B" Div. = 4.0 or more ASPs
"C, D" Divisions = 3.5 or more ASPs
"E, F" Divs. = 3.0 or more ASPs; "G" = 2.5 or more ASPs

Also, we will list any fast games, high ins, high outs, or other amazing feats that you think warrant a little recognition (e.g., Ins & Outs higher than a Ton, 24-dart cricket games, 15-dart 301s, 24-dart 501s, Ton-70s and up, 5-Bulls+, etc.).

Extra note: it's also ok to call in "fast games" in each set, even if they don't necessarily meet the maximum dart counts above.

SEASON-LONG TROPHY DART MINIMUM GAMES PLAYED REQUIREMENTS

To be eligible for all-star point ave. & singles win %-age awards, you must play at least 66% of this season's projected games:

Singles win %-age: min. of 16 Singles Games Played
All-star pt. Average: min. of 32 Total Games Played for teams A2 and B7 (due to 1 forfeit received):

min. of 15 Singles Games Played, 30 Total Games Played for Divisions "F" (except team F6) and "G" (except teams G1 and G4) (8 teams / division):

min. of 19 Singles Games Played, 37 Total Games Played for teams F6, G1 and G4 (due to 1 forfeit received):

QUICK STAT TIDBITS

-The Quadruple Double Award winners (double-digit wins in all 4 sections With five divisions playing with a bye this season, it was pretty unlikely that we get any throwers with 10+ wins in every set in any of A-E divisions. But it turns out than even with F and G playing full schedules, we still had nobody really in the club. In fact, we only ended up with two people who even had three 10-win sets (and only one of those had a fourth set with 9). And nobody in A or B even reached three 9+-win sets. Wow. Anyway, our honorable mentions this seasons (for three 9+-win sets in a 12-week season): Shane Murray and Brian Smith of Dysfunctional Outlaws in C; Tom Winters of Rif Raf in D; and Will Barnes of Red-eye Rangers and J.J. White of Menace 2 Sobriety in E. And there's John White of Bangin' The Wire in F with three 10+ sets. Which brings us to this season's top winner (four 9+-win sets, three of which were 10+-wins): Mike Millius of Dart Side of the Moon in F division

-IronMan/Woman Award: With only F and G playing 14 weeks this seasor it's pretty likely the Iron Thrower would come from those divisions. And that's exactly what happened. This season's Iron Men are John Amarante of Your Cork is Showing, and Chris Gagner of Kenny & the Jets, both in F with 6(games played. Our honorable mention for other division leaders were: Charles Tompkins of Put It on Matt's Tab in A, with 50; Mike Cole of Why So Serious? in B, with 51; Tommy Beaird of DD-214, and Mike Jones of Dart Attack in C, with 49; Dave Buckman of Cheap Shots in D, with 50; Jimmy Bateman of Sharky's Machine in E, with 52; and Thorbjorn Gylfason and Dakota Helton of Rippin Darts in G, both with 58 games played.

-The Team Attendance Award winners: We had a huge list of teams that ra mostly with seven players -- nine of them, actually, with three of actually only having seven names on the roster at all. But none of those really tried to play it out with the same six-player lineup all season. Rather, we only had one team even come close to that six-pack roster, even though they had eight names on their team… and clearly the plan worked… because that team is Death Throw!

MY PRESEASON, WEEKLY, & TOURNEY PREDICTION RESULTS

As usual, I'm left with the option of trying to bluff my way through this part, or just telling the truth. And since I know some of you squirrel away every last thing I've ever written about your team, I will again give real results… bummer. Sometimes these results can border on embarrassing…

In my preseason picks (usually the toughest every season given the imminent roster changes/additions), I actually did quite well everywhere but in F division (for the 2nd consecutive season!). I basically nailed A division; next, in B, I was very close with everybody except that I oversold Hoptimistic a bit; in C, I got the EXACT right order with one exception, in that I underestimated Dart Attack by a lot(!); in D, I was pretty close up and down the division again, aside from way underselling the Bandits; then in E, I didn't give Menace enough credit, while overshooting both Sharky's teams by quite a bit; and then came F… where I nailed the winner… and just about nothing else at all… seriously, how did I get anything at all this wrong?!; then finally, in G, if I had just moved the Idiots and Rippin up a bit, I would have slammed the entire lineup.

My weekly prediction results you can peruse pick-for-pick on the other side of this sheet of paper. As noted on that page, I had at least an even 0.500 record for all but two teams, and then there were four teams that ended up even with me. I pretty much crushed A and G divisions, and also did pretty well in B, E and F divisions… which leaves only C and D divisions (the homes of my two biggest nemeses), where I was only a combined 50-34. All in all, I ended with a final correct pick rate of 69.40%. Not fantastic, but not bad either.

Last but not least were my tournament predictions… Often when we jump to best-of-3, my picks get stronger, despite the fact that I'm picking semifinals and finals that I conceivably could have wrong before the matches are even played. This season, however, was actually a bit of a success. I was 17-6 in the quarterfinals (as there were 5 quarterfinal byes too), then a moderate 8-6 in the semifinals, and I finished with a 3-3 record in the finals (with one outcome still pending… certainly hoping that rescheduled final goes/went my way!).

JK'S TEAM-BY-TEAM, WEEK-BY-WEEK MATCH PREDICTION RESULTS

(I introduced this page thirty-six seasons ago, and it has become almost expected as a newsletter staple. Feast your eyes on the success...)

For several years, many of you have taken no greater pleasure in your weekly darting endeavors than to email or text me and point out to me just how wrong I was in my prediction of your match result. On a related note, I have noticed that many of you seem to have relatively selective memories saving only the weeks when I was wrong. Further, many others of you regularly embellish your statistics of how often you fool me. It's not so easy to get away with those rambles anymore, however, as you can see below. Each W is a week when I picked your match correctly, and each L is one I picked incorrectly. Division totals are to the right of the team totals, weekly totals are at the bottom, and in the space between the 14 weeks and the team totals, the three 'o' symbols indicate the teams for which I was only 0.500, and the three 'x' symbols indicate the teams that fooled me more often than not. [The first two weeks set the stage for a long, tough comeback to respectability. But I ended up pretty successful in every division except maybe C. Sadly, I missed the last 4 Frankie & The 5 Marks matches to give me three teams that fooled me more often than not. But they still weren't as bad as stupid Dart Attack and the One Armed Bandits - I got two-thirds wrong with those two. Ugh. - JK]

THIS SEASON'S TRIVIA QUESTIONS… REVISITED

I now run this column during seasons in which I've included trivia questions all season. Each question is listed exactly as it was during the season, so there is potential for a question to now be out of date, but it's usually not too much of a problem. Each question is listed under the week number when it ran, and the answers follow the questions. No peeking…

Week 8 question (which was actually a reader-submitted question from Paul Jacobi): How many times has the league had three or more throwers finish the season with an ASP Average above 2.0? (And yes, we are only talking about players who reached the game minimum for the award; also, the questions in this column generally will only include the RDL "modern era," as in the 27 years during which I've been the league statistician.)

Week 9 question: Five current RDL members claimed state titles this weekend. How many current RDL members have ever won a NC State Championship event (use the divisional team lists as reference)? [Trivia nerd uber-expert level: don't use the team lists.]

Week 10 question (another reader-submitted question, this time from Tolson Willis): Which current teams have had the exact same team name for the most consecutive seasons, and how many seasons has it been? (and yes, EXACT same)

Week 11 question(s): How many people have played every season since I became the RDL statistician (Spring 1996)? Who are they?

Week 12 question: In light of the NC City Dart League results in the week 12 Tons, we tagged a question here onto that train of thought. The NCCDL has crowned a champion every year since 1996 (except 2020), making for 26 years of state titles. Which former RDL member has presently won the most NCCDL state titles, and how many is that?

Week 13 question: Red-eye Rangers in E are the only team to clinch a division so far. In my 52 seasons as RDL statistician, how many times did we reach week 13 with no divisions clinched?

Week 14 question: Let's build on that last one… in my 52 seasons as RDL statistician (well, the 51 non-Covid seasons at least), what is the greatest number of divisions that had been clinched before the week 14 matches were played?

Week 8 answer: In my 51 seasons as statistician, there have been 46 times that a player averaged more than 2.0 ASPs (there were also 2 times that someone hit 2.0 exactly, but this question was about seasons "above 2.0"). In 21 of the seasons, there were 0 players above 2.0; in 19 of the seasons, there was 1 player above 2.0; and in 6 of the seasons, there were 2 players above 2.0. That means that in the remaining 5 seasons, there were indeed 3 players above 2.0 (note: we haven't had a season with 4 or more players at that level). The interesting part is that 4 of those 5 seasons have been the most recent 4 seasons!! RDL level of play increasing all the time, I'm telling you. Anyway, here are those >2.0 players… Fall 2012: Robbie Phillips, Brian Blake, Simon Healy; Fall 2019: Robbie Phillips, Pat Gibson, Stevie Phillips; Spring 2020 Covid-shortened season: Robbie Phillips, Kyle Gaulthier, Stevie Phillips; Fall 2021: Alex Spellman, Robbie Phillips, Stevie Phillips; Spring 2022: Robbie Phillips, Stevie Phillips, Alex Spellman. [Answer update for the Banquet Tons: we didn't have another season with three or more throwers above 2.0 ASPs per game, but both Alex Spellman and Robbie Phillips reached the mark, giving us our 7th season with 2 above the line during my tenure here with the RDL.]

Week 9 answer: Of the 190 people who have ever won a NC State Championship event, 26 of them are current RDL members. And those 26 people have 110 titles between them (which is 17% of the 647 state shirts ever awarded since the state tournament started in 1990). The 26 league members (with number of state titles): Robbie Phillips (31); Tom Brown (19); Alex Spellman (7); Dan Naylor and Stevie Phillips (6 each); Mike Seward and Wil Tan (5 each); Michelle Stacy (4); Craig Elder, Mike Hall, and Allen Smith (3 each); Robb Beeson, Deborah Blackwelder, and Nicole Hatch (2 each); and the 12 people with 1 each… Allyson Blackwelder, Barbara Cotton, Jim Davis, Kyle Gaulthier, Simon Healy, Tony Horton, Doug Jeffcoat, Michael Johnson, Tim Lane, Chad Massengill, Doreen Sweeny, and Samantha Wilson.

Week 10 answer: Ok, I'm guessing Tolson was thinking his team might be in the running for this crown. And while his team is indeed in the top five, it's nowhere near the winner. Of the 51 teams this season, only 28 have the exact same name as just last season, so the field shrinks quickly. 23 have 3 seasons, 18 have 4 seasons, 15 have 7 seasons, 14 have 8 seasons, 13 have 9 seasons, 12 have 10 seasons, and 11 have 12 seasons. Which brings us to our ten longest-standing continuous team names… Hump Day! is in their 13th season, Cheap Shots are in their 14th, Sofa Kings are in their 20th, Sharky's Machine is in their 21st, and Menace 2 Sobriety is in their 27th. Then in fifth place comes Tolson's Death Throw in their 28th season; in fourth place comes Rif Raf in their 34th season; and then in third place is One Armed Bandits in their 45th season. Which brings us to our two serious O.G.s… For both Nine Lives and Lunatic Fringe, I had to go beyond my start as statistician in Spring 1996, perusing whatever prior newsletters I've been able to collect over the years. And what I can tell you is this… both Nine Lives and Lunatic Fringe have had their names back through "at least" Fall 1989 (I don't have the continuous newsletters before that), so they are BOTH in at least their 65th season!! But… we're going to go ahead and declare Nine Lives the winner, as I have a couple issues from Fall 1983 and Fall 1982, and they're in those too! Could the Niners really be on a 79-season (or more!) string?!?!

For further expansion on this particular answer, see the special addition on this Nine Lives topic on page 15. Amazing stuff!

Week 11 answer: Ok, this question is actually an update of one I ran many seasons ago, and I'm going to alter this question just a bit, just like I did then… I wrote "how many people have played" and I'm going to change it to "how many have been on a roster" in each and every season that I've been the statistician (that's 52 seasons, by the way). The reason I'm making that change is that we have players on rosters sometimes who don't end up throwing a game, but who IS an active member of the roster (and to be honest, the search algorithm that I used simply returned the names of people that have indeed been on a roster for all 52 seasons). So, with that caveat in place, the answer is now down to: 13 people! Those 13 that have played every season since the start of 1996 (and for some, probably much longer) are Tom Brown, Gary Burney, Randy Deemer, Bob James, Jason Kilts, Joe Kunesh, Tim Lane, Chuck Rouse, Pete Rutten, Mark Sellers, Mike Seward, Butch Smith, and Michelle Stacy. [Side note: check out the extra story item added with the previous question above, for an additional fact that might make part of this even crazier.]

Week 12 answer: In the 26 years of the NCCDL, Raleigh won the first title, Greensboro (now Piedmont) won the next two, and then Wilmington and Durham have split the last 23 in a row (with a 12-11 lead for Wilmington). Which likely means people would guess that anybody who has always played for Wilmington would be the leader. But the record is actually beyond that… former RDL member Bob Gargan has indeed been a part of all 12 of those titles for Wilmington, but he ALSO won 2 titles with Durham, giving him an astounding total of 14. Yep, more than half the titles that exist.

Week 13 answers: Ok, first thing here is… I probably should have qualified this as "the 51 of my 52 seasons as statistician in which we reached week 13." Stupid Covid took our Spring 2020 end-of-season drama from us. So now, with that clarification in place, the real answer to the question… Of the 51 seasons I can t 10 seasons in which zero divisions had been clinched prior to week 13. In every one of those ten, we had at least one team with a 1.5-match lead (due to timing of byes), and in all but two of those ten seasons, somebody had at least a two-match lead and was just needing a few points over the last couple weeks to close it out. Oddly, the ten seasons came in weird little groupings (Sp97; Sp00 / Sp01; Sp05 / Sp06 / Sp07; Fa13 / Sp14 / Fa14 / Sp15), so maybe we just have little periods of time where we just get the team balances just right? Also, in those ten seasons, at least two of the divisions were clinched during week 13 (and often three or four divisions were), except in the Spring 2007 season, when only ONE division (C division, won by Travelin Beer Bellies) had been clinched prior to the final night of play.

Week 14 answer: In the 51 non-Covid seasons during my tenure, we've had 1 season with nine divisions, 23 seasons with eight divisions, 22 seasons with seven divisions, and 5 seasons with six divisions. So that's 377 total divisions, and 194 of those division titles (51.5%) have been clinched before the week 14 matches. In the one 9-division season (Sp10), 5 of the divisions were clinched. In the 23 8-division seasons, the greatest number of clinched divisions was 6 (three times, in Sp11, Fa12, Fa16). And in the 5 6-division seasons, the greatest number of clinched divisions was 4 (Sp05). Which leaves us with just the 22 7-division seasons… and while the average number of clinched divisions in those seasons is 3.9, it was the Fall 1998 season that is the real answer to this question. In the Fall 1998, ALL SEVEN DIVISIONS had been clinched before the last week of play. It's the only season with as many as 7 divisions clinched, and it's the only division with all divisions clinched. And beyond that, 4 of the 7 second place spots were also decided already!! Talk about very little last week drama…

[Like the last many seasons, we used three-song groups each week and also included a theme each and every week. Added a layer to the game for everybody and has been quite popular. Here are the themes for each week*, including the week 14 fifteen-song set that proved to super tough so tough that all I received were a few guesses by people who recognized just a few favorites. - JK]*

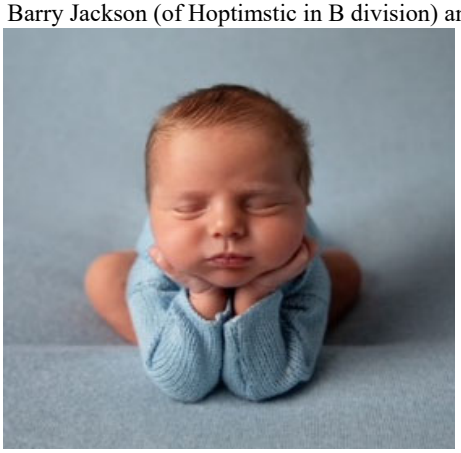
Week 2 theme: Being all alone. Which is pretty much what it felt like for a large portion of the days when I went to visit my siblings in rural Maine. RURAL Maine. As in, too far out to be able to run lines for cable or internet. Where the map functions on smart phone get both a little confused AND start to run out of useable signal strength. Good thing I love my siblings. Week 3 theme: Well, first off, this is the first lyrics set ever crafted by my lovely wife! She was interested in helping me out, and so she sat there… on our hotel bed… at The Mirage Resort & Casino… in Las Vegas… in the middle of a desert. And bam! She found a full set of very recognizable songs that I have never used before, that played out in a full desert with Mirage theme. She rocks. Week 4 theme: Uh, yeah… pretty clearly this set was about the behavior that had prompted the front page warnings about player behavior in [the week 4] Tons. Week 5 theme: Pretty much just the opposite of the theme from the prior week, so this one was all about just being a good (or even too good) guy. Week 6 theme: Well, we could pretty much make this anything around the color brown, but it was honestly inspired by the Browns-Panthers game I had attended just before writing that issue of the Tons. But I like a few of the game players' guesses much better! It was Paual Jacobi's alternate themes that won the day: "My teammate Tom Brown" (which was pretty timely given the crazy awesome night he had in the match preceding that issue) and "songs that are all 30+ years older than PJ Stewart who turned 17 in the past 7 days" (well, it was in the past 7 days when he wrote that - also, it's disgusting that PJ is only just turned 17). Week 7 theme: Pretty obvious one in just songs by groups named as brothers. Really I just heard The Righteous Brothers on the radio and I just ran with it. Week 8 theme: This tasty little trio one was all about the sweets, Sugar 'Pie Honey Bunch. Week 9 theme: Well, when I typed the front page item last week [in the week 9 Tons] about the Team 'Phillips Train, it got me straight into a train mindset. Thus, we've pulled the lyric game into this particular station. Week 10 theme: The weekend before last, I flew to NYC with two of my sons. So… weekend, airplane, New York… it was all about my own weekend! How could you guys not know that?! :o) Week 11 theme: High density carbon lattices, baby! Ice! Bling! Rocks! Diamonds… Week 12 theme: Probably becomes pretty obvious when you note that last week I told all the captains I was on jury duty. Turns out there wasn't any prison at the end of our trial, but it was a real possibility. Anyway, turns out the jury room itself sort of ended up being my own damn prison… six days. Ugh. Week 13 theme: Just a follow-up on my set about being on jury duty in the previous set. Turns out, we had to go with 'not guilty, so this set was about either not having done it, or at least being smooth enough to get away with it! Week 14 theme: Songs with things you wear in the title. And they are listed in order from the top down, head to foot.

SOOOOOOO COOL… PRE-RDL HISTORY?!

Back in the week 10 and 11 Tons, I posed a couple trivia questions based around team and player longevity here in the RDL. One was about which teams have the longest-standing continuous team names, and the other was about players who have played every season since I took over as the RDL statistician in 1996. (If you're interested in hitting the trivia column, flip on back to page 12.) And in response to those questions, our own Butch Smith of Nine Lives sent me one of the coolest historical tidbits I've ever collected here. You see, Nine Lives was half of the answer to the week 10 trivia question, and Smith himself was part of the answer to the week 11 question. In the answer to the week 10 question, I noted that I could prove that Nine Lives had been playing for at lest 65 consecutive seasons (Fall 1989 until now), and that I had some other earlier newsletters that indicated they might actually be on a 79-match (or longer!) streak. Well, it turns out that the Niners are even older than that! Check out this awesomeness from Smith:

"Before RDL we had a Raleigh team called Acupuncture playing in the Chapel Hill league. John McDonald, Acupuncture's captain, and myself got tired of driving to Chapel Hill, so we got enough guys together to form four teams and started a Raleigh league playing out of one bar Charlie Goodnights. I think this was sometime in the late 70's, or maybe early 80's. After a year or so playing in Raleigh, we changed our name to Nine Lives. I'm not sure how, but this is what I believed morphed into RDL. So I guess you can include me as one of the older players. Also, David Keever was on one of the original teams, so him too."

I subsequently had an exchange with Smith, and he confirmed a couple facts for me. First, the small league he spoke of did indeed precede the RDL by about 2 years. And since we now know the RDL formed in 1978, that puts this additional smaller league in about 1976. And second, yes, the bar he is talking about is indeed the comedy club Goodnights! So, RDL sort of got kicked off (at least in a predecessor form) in a comedy club more than 46 years ago. And stunningly, Butch Smith himself has been here since that very first day! (And Nine Lives has been Nine Lives since at least 1977.) Thus, Nine Lives is actually OLDER than the RDL. Just awesome.



TOUGHNESS INCARNATE

This is one of the baddest-ass (and craziest) things I have ever seen in my time here in RDL (and we all know that my time here has not been short). The guy in the photo with the walker is Scott Kirkpartick of Red-eye Rangers, playing in the E division tournament final. On this past Wednesday night. And why does he have a walker while at the line, you ask? Because Kirkpatrick had hip replacement surgery. ON… TUESDAY. Yes, the day before. Replace a hip Tuesday, play a match Wednesday. Listen, people… I don't want to hear any of you complain about sniffles, or any loud talking in a bar, or any poor lighting, or really pretty much anything at all, ever again. Kirkpatrick has pushed the bar beyond whining of any type, forever. So. Bad. Ass. (Nope, no idea how he did. So don't care. Give him a damn cape.)

NOW FOR SOMETHING WONDERFUL

If you know me, you know there are few things I love more than an adorable baby. And what's better in a dart league newsletter than an adorable baby from one of our very own? Please allow me to introduce you to Benjamin Jackson! Benjamin, the new son of Barry Jackson (of Hoptimstic in B division) and his wife Kelly, joined us on August 18th at Duke Regional Hospital. Both mom and son immediately were healthy and happy, as was proud papa Barry. Or at least Barry was until he realized that his 2 pandemic children (I guess we know how the Jacksons passed the time :o) means he's now a father of 4! Eek!

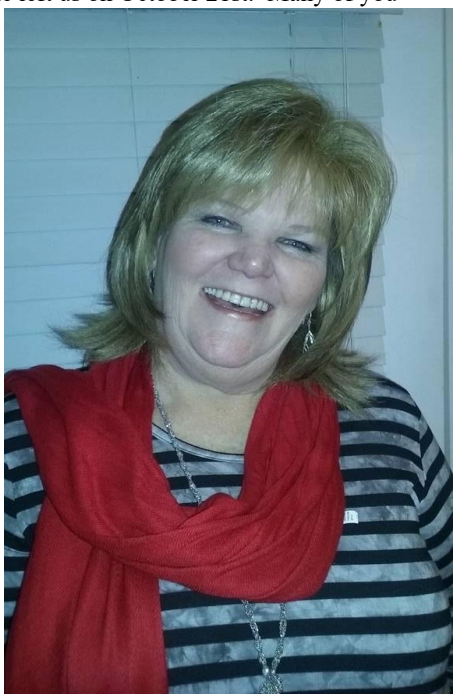
WHILE WE'RE ON THE TOPIC OF CUTENESS

This little cutie is recent (and longtime) RDL member Ryan Anderson's daughter, Grey McKenna Anderson. Grey turned 1 on September 23rd, and has dad wrapped around her finger. As Ryan tells it, "the reason I have taken the last year off of dart league. My first child. Life changing, but sooo worth it." And did you note the onesie? For those who maybe can't read it in the photo, it reads: "1. Crawl. 2. Walk. 3. Throw Darts." That had to come from Europe, no? But isn't this how Tiger Woods became the best ever? Start young and just dominate ever after? As Ryan describes her, Future Champion!

AND JUST A BIT EARLIER ON THE HAPPY LIFE EVENTS TIMELINE, WE HAVE…

A huge congratulations to Mike Trefzger of Darty Sanchez! On November 12th, Mike and his new wife Juliette were married in Norfolk, VA!! No, she's not a darter, but that doesn't mean we can't convert her. Also, I can neither confirm nor deny any rumors that Juliette has very poor eyesight or a strong drive to do extensive charity work.



HERE'S AN RDL FIRST! And… WHAT ARE YOU DOING THIS COMING WEDNESDAY?

Depending on when you are reading this banquet issue, this item might or might not still be very timely. You see, for the first time in the known RDL history, a divisional tournament final has been postponed to AFTER this season's banquet. I will produce an updated version of this newsletter after the match is completed, so the version are you presently reading might be the original pre-final version, or it might be the updated post-final version. (You can tell by turning to pages 1, 3 and 4; is the A tournament winner listed there and shown in the page 4 photos? If so, then this is the updated version. :o) Anyway, the reason the A division final is being played on this coming Wednesday (December 14th) rather than last week when all the others were played, is that 4 of the throwers in the A division final were playing in the World Darts Federation World Masters events in The Netherlands!! (And a fifth team member was in attendance there as well.) Robbie Phillips and Stevie Phillips of The Convergent Element, and Dan Naylor and P.J. Stewart of The Bullies were all abroad taking part in a trio of events, The World Masters, The World Open, and The World Championship Qualifier.

And seriously, what kind of final would it honestly be without all that star power taking part? Thus, the teams agreed to just wait for them all to return, and the RDL Board was cool with it. Solo… if you want to see some of RDL's (and, seriously, the USA's) best throwers on a dart night when we both know you have no match, come on over to Mac's Tavern on the 14th and hang out with us.

IN MEMORIAM

It is with great sadness that it is my duty to pass along that beloved past RDL-er Connie Austin passed this season. After a long, tough battle with cancer, Connie left us on October 21st. Many of you who have joined RDL more recently likely did not know Connie, and I assure you that is your unfortunate loss. Connie was a social force of nature, whose joy could fill up a room (as could her laugh and her voice). Austin played the first 13 years of my time here (with Save Up, the Dart Bags, and Dead Beat Darts, but most or you would remember her from Half & Half and Get the Point), but she had played for several years already before 1995. She was a great spirit and our dart family is lesser without her.

As noted on page 4, we've continued our recent little tradition of encouraging tournament- winning teams to submit team photos from their victorious evening. Just pretty great to share in the moment and save that memory. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's about 'team' happiness anyway.)

F division regular season and tournament champions - Death Throw!!

G division regular season and tournament champions - Sofa Kings!!

B division regular season and tournament champions - Consistently Inconsistent!!

And then, while this isn't a photo of just a tournament-winning team, I think this photo from B division might well be the best one in the whole pile. This was sent in from the B division final, and it's both teams (Consistently Inconsistent AND The Procrastinators) all together. Teams playing, getting along, enjoying, sharing our hobby? Seems like this is a photo embodying the entire point here.

THIS IS ALMOST GETTING A LITTLE SILLY…

It's starting to feel like this is going to be a standard page in a lot of Tons issues… I try not to beat you guys over heads with story after story about the RDL's top players' triumphs, because this league is for everyone, not just the 1%-ers. But the reality remains that some of RDL's throwers are becoming world class (no joke, WORLD class), and it's only fair to recognize those that rise to the top of this fantastic game we play. And… some of you (me included) are pretty into checking into how they did. So… check out this wall of pure awesomeness.

CHAMPIONSHIP DARTS CORPORATION

Alright, let's start with what might well be the biggest achievement on this page (although, to be fair, EVERY single thing on this page is fantastic). The Championship Darts Corporation circuit is the premier event across North America, and only the continent's best compete (or win, obviously!). And at the end of the year-long tour, Alex Spellman had played his way into the final bracket event in October, and then things all feel into place. He took Keith Way, 5 legs to 4, averaging 90.5 for the set. Next up came a 6-5 win over Stowe Buntz, averaging 89.0 for the set. In the semifinals, Spellman rolled to a 97.5 average in a 7-5 win over David Cameron. And then the serious drama began… Spellman fell behind Doug Boehm 7-3 in a race to 8 in the finals. Then came an amazing 5-leg run to the finish that brought Spellman the title of 2022 CDC Continental Cup Champion!! Spellman's 86.7 average in the final was just enough, and now he will be taking on the PDC all-stars at Madison Square Garden on June 2nd and 3rd in 2023!!

WORLD CUP TEAM QUALIFIER AT THE SEACOAST OPEN

In November, the Seacoast Open in Andover, MA hosted the US World Cup Team qualifier. And the RDL will once again be repping big time!! Robbie Phillips and P.J. Stewart both secured spots on the US team, Phillips in the open side, and Stewart in the junior side (pretty much his last hurrah as a junior). Phillips and Stewart, the left two in the back row here, will be heading to Denmark next September to wear the red, white and blue!! (and yes, P.J. Stewart, who is a "junior" player, is indeed the tallest member of the entire U.S. team)

WORLD MASTERS EVENTS THIS WEEK

If you've read the front page or page 16, then you know that the A division final was postponed because four of the throwers are a bit busy in The Netherlands! And the recognition of some of them has already been rolling in a bit in pretty fun fashions. P.J. Stewart, in his new World Masters shirt below, was called out on social media by his own high school, who noted that their favorite 12th grader is currently the #1 ranked junior in the USA, and #3 in the world!!! Then, after he got off to a hot start at the Masters, the World Dart Federation specifically called out Robbie Phillips to the world with this amazing post that highlighted his huge kickoff match, in which he averaged a top world class turn average of 105.64!! Want to watch one of his matches? https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=w2xmQCwnRXk&t=21705s

WDF Darts
@DartsWDF

Phillips on Fire!

Robbie Phillips kicks off his World Masters campaign in style, averaging 105.64 in a 4-1 win over World Championship finalist Thibault Tricole.

Phillips, a former Las Vegas Open champion, threw three 180s and sealed victory with a 119 finish.

JDC YOUTH WORLDS

Just last month, the Junior Darts Corp. hosted the Youth Worlds in Gibraltar. And our own P.J. Stewart was there smacking around many of the world's best junior throwers on behalf of the U.S.A.! In addition to his extremely strong showings in the team events, it was the individual events where Stewart was really able to shine. He hauled in an amazing Top 4 finish, ending up just one win away from playing on stage at the Ally Pally! Yes, the Alexandra Palace where big stuff like the PDC World Championship goes down. What a friggin' beast that Stewart kid is. How convenient that that's his nickname.

2022 DPNC TOUR CHAMPIONSHIP

This one is a little more local than the other events on this page, but the first DPNC Tour that Pete Stewart designed and hosted had such a strong showing, that it definitely goes here on the page of super cool stuff to win (in large part because you had to be a flippin' buzzsaw of a thrower to win). After 6 events spread through the year, the championship tournament ended with Alex Spellman taking the champions' belt, with Stevie Phillips taking the runner-up spot (just as he had done in the season).

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK

Nowadays, it's a fact… this column has become a banquet Tons staple. I have no idea why so many are so keen on taking a peek into the oddness that is my head, but you are. So without further ado, let's open up my head again and see what falls out. Some of these observations are dart-related, and some of them clearly are not. As always, this is just about the last thing that I'm writing and this season is certainly no exception… soooo, also as always not even I know what's about to hit the page…

-- Yeah, so I never saw Avatar. Not that I was actively trying not to, but rather it just didn't happen. And now there's going to be a second movie, which probably could've been cool. Right up until I had spend an entire weekend of football with ESPN telling me over and over that the trailer for Avatar 2 was "coming up soon." They were basically running ads all weekend for… an ad. That's what a trailer is, a lengthy ad. And they were having ads to get me to watch an ad. That's… insulting. And now I kinda don't have any interest in watching Avatar. So I guess that worked pretty well for them in my case…

-- I didn't really have anywhere else to include this, so I'm just going to stick it here. Which is probably not that far off base when you consider the kind of things I'm likely to type here. Late in the season, the Sofa Kings reported this with their scoresheet: "Also…Rock Bottoms wanted it reported that Reagan Crabtree hit a T53 & T25 in route to a 17 dart 301. So we're keeping our word and reporting it. Thanks." Fast game? Nope. High In? Evidently not. High Out? Also evidently a no. But a combination of two turns encompassing 278 points of a 301 game that is leaving me dying to know what the first and last turns were? Yep.

-- So one of my sons is at UNC Charlotte studying computer and electrical engineering. And one day, he sends me this crazy photo with this message: "Your faucet may be fancy, but is it so fancy it has a how to manual? Yup, the bathroom on the bottom floor of my math building. And there is only 1." I'm sure that thing is probably brilliant and very useful. And right after I stop being afraid of looking stupid while trying to use it, I'm sure I will appreciate its genius. Maybe.

-- Ok, I'm a Lions fan and my wife is a Browns fan. (And nope, we generally don't have a lot of travel plans for January and early February.) If you had told me in December 2020 that within two years, my team's quarterback, and her team's quarterback, would be teammates on the defending Super Bowl champion team… I would have checked you into some type of clinic.

-- I don't even remember which team's scoresheet had this weird little ditty in the comments section: "Most attractive team - Kenny & the Jets." Is there any chance at all that the Jets' opponents actually wrote that?

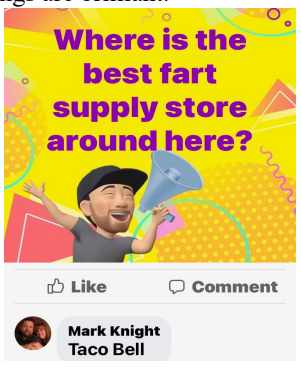
-- Anybody who knows me knows that my wife and I are big fans of whipping over to Vegas. We love shows. We love pools. We love cocktail bars. We love dinners out. We love to people-watch. There are a whole lot of things that we love there. But you know what I almost never (and by that, I mean "actually never") say to myself while we're there? "Geez, I sure wish there was some high tech dart bar here in the Venetian." Yet somehow that is exactly what is going in there. The renderings of the space look great, but I so predict this just crashes. Sad, but I think it will be true. If you want to see the story, combine the address on the next two lines:

https://vegas.eater.com/2022/9/1/23332368/flight-club-high-tech-dart-bar-on-las-vegas-strip

-- You know who is a better thrower than me? Grey Jones of Liver Alliance is. And why do I acknowledge that so directly right here? Because after doing that, I can type something like this: Who else here noticed that in week 5, Grey threw TWO 9-marks but somehow didn't make the 4.5 ASP line for A division hot darts? [Funny side note? Somebody actually did notice it in the Tons that week… and he wasn't even also in A. Ha!]

-- I'm a Michigan grad, and I of course root for Michigan sports teams. Thus, the big win over Ohio State in football again this year was pretty cool. But what wasn't cool? The whole "plant our flag in the middle of the opponents' field" crap. Yep, you won today. Tomorrow might be different. And even if it isn't, the last image we have of you now is you just being a dick. That kind of crap always comes back on you in some way (or at least I kind of hope it does at some point). I have no time for that stuff.

-- I know everything I write here could possibly insult at least somebody… and I suspect this particular point is no different. But I'm saying it anyway. -- Have you ever seen "dressage" at an equestrian event? I recently saw a few minutes of one, and I think I only have one comment that naturally comes to mind: What in the ever-lovin' hell is that? Who thought of that? Why is that some type of skill that it is useful for a horse to have? Color me completely lost as to the utility or interest of this one.



-- How about this for the weird things that I notice sometimes? In week 5, when Lunatic Fringe faced my team, the Fringe listed their entire team in each set using only a total of 20 letters. Yep, 3.3 letters per name. That is a seriously low average name length.

-- Why is it that putting a shopping cart in the cart corral in the parking lot is apparently one of the most difficult things to do in the whole world? Or are people just terrible and lazy and crappy and awful? Is it really that hard? I'm betting that probably half of you are those people… so go ahead, tell me why it's just so damn impossible for you to not suck as a human at the grocery store parking lot.

-- At the last RDL party, this box was laid on the pool tables next to where we hand out the awards. Care to guess how it was laid there? (Nope, don't know what was inside.)

-- Is there any better series of ads on tv right now than the Progressive "don't be your parents" ads?? If you printed out directions to get here today, you're in the right place. Let's not talk about leaving before we actually get to the game. Sir, we don't need a line monitor. … Those things are brilliant.

-- Well, we do tell people that they can likely get most of their questions answered via the RDL Facebook page… And while the author of this particular one did adjust his question shortly thereafter, Mark Knight was far too fast on the trigger (and he's probably right too, no?). [Also, as I was typing this, the "far too fast" line above initially came out as "fart oo fast." Unintentional, I assure you.]

STATE MEETING RESULTS - SPECIFICS FOR 2023 SEASON

For 2023, the captains did indeed decide to keep going with our standard switch back to an East/West season. There will be 12 teams in both the NCCDL (Charlotte dropped out, Chapel Hill returned) and the NCLC; the rest of the teams are all the same as in 2022. The NCCDL Mountain/Beach division will have Asheville, Boone, Pineville, Jacksonville, Wilmington, and Port City The NCCDL Central division will have Lake Norman, Piedmont, Chapel Hill, Durham, Raleigh, and Capital Area. Teams will play a single round-robin against the other division, and will also face two intra-division opponents, for a total of eight matches per team. The NCLC will have similar divisions and match numbers, with Fuquay-Varina paired with the Chapel Hill NCCDL team, and Apex paired with the Raleigh NCCDL team for scheduling purposes.

Additional important scheduling note: Matching the 2022 precedent, the 2023 end-of-season tournament will again be held in an open weekend in the apan from mid- to late October, to early to mid-November, based around other event conflicts each year.

HISTORY OF THE NCCDL…

It was back in 1995 that Tim Lane (now of the Raleigh NCCDL team) first introduced the idea of the statewide year-long season style of play to replace the old "one team holds the cup against a string of challengers" sytem. It's still possibly the most popular and successful idea ever for anything larger than a local league. Here are the 25 tournament final results so far:

1996: Raleigh over Charlotte	2005: Durham over Wilmington	2014: Durham over Wilmington
1997: Piedmont over Durham	2006: Durham over Charlotte	2015: Wilmington over Piedmont
1998: Piedmont over Raleigh/Charlotte(?)	2007: Durham over Charlotte	2016: Wilmington over Durham
1999: Wilmington over Raleigh/Charlotte(?)	2008: Durham over Charlotte	2017: Wilmington over Durham
2000: Durham over Charlotte	2009: Wilmington over Charlotte	2018: Wilmington over Durham
2001: Durham over Wilmington	2010: Wilmington over Durham	2019: Durham over Wilmington
2002: Wilmington over Durham	2011: Durham over Lake Norman	2020: (no tournament - pandemic)
2003: Wilmington over Durham	2012: Durham over Wilmington	2021: Wilmington over Durham
2004: Wilmington over Durham	2013: Wilmington over Lake Norman	2022: Durham over Wilmington

My annual request to the NCLC Ladies: if any of you have a history of the results like the one above for the NCCDL, I would love to have a copy of those so I can periodically run an NCLC history as well. Drop me a line please if you're willing to share.

TONS OF NEWSLETTER

The Spring Session of the Raleigh Dart League for the Banquet, Saturday, May 20, 2023 Issue #JK848

The "Day That We Finally Name Some Names And Bestow Some Top Honors" Edition

TOURNAMENT WINNERS

"A" Division - The Global Element (12+-12)

It's Element. It's Bullies. Of course it's 1001. Duh. A smart man would've bet on a tie. Even in a match that wasn't necessarily our best, there were still piles of huge shots and clutch finishes, with Stevie Phillips's double-20 sealing the deal in a 43-dart tiebreaker.

"B" Division - Why So Serious? (13-9)

Things started to feel a little dicey for Serious late in the season (seriously, a flat-out forfeit?), but in the end they still complete the season/tournament double, ending Iceman's upset run in the final.

"C" Division - Show Me Your Tips (14-4)

After a season in which they lost a third of their matches, dumping both of their last two, and having to outlast another 8-4 team for the season crown, Show Me puts it all together in the tournament, thumping Sanchez in the only final that didn't reach 501 this season.

"D" Division - One Armed Bandits (14-10)

In their third nailbiter matchup of the season, the Bandits squeeze past Off Constantly in the final, after having rolled through their first two tournament matches (clinching each in the first 501 set).

"E" Division - Bad Mutha Duckas (13-11)

The two teams way ahead of the pack in E (Ducks and Hump Day) did indeed meet in the final, and things went the full distance as expected. In game 3 of the final set, Laurence Converse donned the hero hat, checking out 75 with a third-dart double-Bull for the Mug!

"F" Division - Shoot-Da-Bull (13-9)

Oh, baby, some stuff went down in F!! The 7 beat the 2, and the 6 beat the 3, and the 6 beat the 7, and the 4 beat the 1, and a quarter-final had to change venue mid-match!! And in the end, the #6 seed Shoot-Da-Bull outlasted #4 Dart Side in the only final won by a team outside the division's top pair (five #1s and a #2 won the others).

"G" Division - Rippin Darts (12+-12)

After racing through week 11 undefeated, things got all kinds of dicey for Rippin before they eventually finished on top. The G tournament went the exact same way, with Rippin coming back from an 8-4 deficit in the final on Thorbjorn Gylfason's double-5 in 1001.

We got a few photos a few years ago, and… it was kind of great.. So this was a little minor tradition that I certainly wanted to encourage, and I asked the teams going into the tournament finals to consider taking a team photo and sharing it with us. This is one of my favorite items here. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's really about 'team' happiness anyway.)

A division regular season and tournament champions - The Global Element!!

C division regular season and tournament champions - Show Me Your Tips!!

D division tournament champions - One Armed Bandits

G division regular season and tournament champions - Rippin Darts!! (They said this photo was blurry... and it is. But most of these photos are way far from perfect…) (Also… super classy addition in the front row… Sigh.)

SPRING 2023 PENALTY SUMMARY

Just like last spring, I'm happy to say that I frickin' love the modern RDL. We have easy return of scoresheets via emails or texts, we sometimes don't have elections when no offices have multiple candidates (and we never have elections in the spring), and we sometimes don't even need to hold the fifth week captains' meeting. Add all that up and we can now get seasons with very few penalties. And this season is no exception. We had only 3 total penalties for a total of 41 points, with no team getting more than one penalty, and no team above F division getting any. Two F teams got late scoresheet penalties, but their 16-point losses eventually cost them nothing in the standings. The one G team though, The Rock Bottoms (who got an ineligible player penalty worth 9 points), actually lost a spot in the standings due to their penalty. And that drop put them in G's "bottom-two"… so if a bunch of new teams form and we get our H division back in the fall… well... I'm not sayin', but I'm just sayin'.

SPRING 2023 TIEBREAKER SUMMARY

Seven divisions this season, five of them with a weekly bye, so not quite as many matches as some seasons. Still, we had 33 tiebreakers (30 during the regular season, 3 in the tournament). Kind of high maybe?

The only division with more than 5 total tiebreakers was F division, which had the most with a big ol' 9! A, B and C had 5 each; D and E had 4 each; and the only 1 in G was the tournament final!!

The Neighborhood Dart Knights In F took this season's Cardiac Kids award, as the only team playing more than 3 1001s (going 3-2, with the third win being a tournament quarterfinal that will go down in history…).

The Heartbreak Award was almost taken by eight different teams who lost two 1001s, but it was Bangin The Wire in F who suffered an 0-3 run.

SOME BAR INFO FOR FUTURE SEASONS

Quick note to captains / bar reps / team members / anyone with information about your establishment. If there is anything at all noteworthy that should be considered when the Board is scheduling tournament matches, PLEASE let the Board know. Unable to open/staff by 7 pm? Closing by midnight or earlier? Closing your kitchen (or drinks, gasp!) early on Wednesdays? Let the Board know and let's save us all some headaches later.

HIT A NEWLY ADDED SUMMER BLIND DRAW?

UPPER DECK

As in many previous years, throughout the summer break the Upper Deck will be adding a weekly Wednesday blind draw for all those who just want to keep their regular dart night out rolling through the break. 8 pm start, just like normal Deck Fridays.. And they'll be adding a double shot as well, so head on over!

OR MAYBE YOU WANT TO ADD ANOTHER LEAGUE?

Looking to add a second league this coming season? It isn't entirely clear when some other local leagues will be starting up, but it is for two of them, and one of them is a great new addition/ replacement for what we lost when Brown's closed. Check in on the websites listed below periodically to get the most updated registration information for the upcoming seasons.

New Brass Tap & Billiards Summer League!!

Remember the very successful (and ever-growing) summer dart league that Dave Huffman hosted at Brown's Billiards for several recent summers? Well, Dave might be in Florida, and Brown's might be in the history books, but that doesn't mean a summer offering here in the Raleigh area won't be available! Taylor Caldwell, RDL's own League Treasurer, will be hosting a summer league at Brass Tap & Billiards (3316 Capital Boulevard, in the Starmount Shopping Center). $20 per person, and the "draft" will be held May 24th with a blind draw following. Play will start May 31st and run through July 19th. There's a cap of 48 players, with 8 players per team. Email Taylor (info on page 8) to sign up and arrange payment (also send her your current RDL division)..

Triangle Dart League (TDL - Chapel Hill & Durham)

You have a bit more time to jump over to the TDL. Registration for their Fall season will be held on Thursday, July 13th at 7pm, at The Tavern in downtown Durham. Play will begin in early August. The teams in TDL consist of 6-10 players per team, and dues are $20/player per season (I think). Recent seasons have used bars in both Chapel Hill and Durham, but I suspect that might vary a bit each season, based on team preferences and signups. Check www.ibiblio.org/ncdarts/tdl/ for updates.

Bull City Dart League (BCDL - Durham)

If you happen to be interested in trying out one of the very few handicapped steel-tip leagues anywhere, maybe the BCDL is in your future. The dates are not set yet for the registration for the BCDL summer 2023 season, but based on the current season I'm expecting that registration will occur probably around July 18th. Teams in the BCDL have 4-8 players, dues are $25 per player per season (some of the host establishments cover half or all of those, so maybe ask around), and the home bars are primarily in RTP and the downtown Durham area. The best information (and any updates in the coming weeks) can be found at:

www.thebcdl.org That website also includes a wealth of information about the league and its rules, so if you're just interested in seeing how the league applies a handicap system to a steel-tip league, you can find all of that there, including rules, statistics, and scoresheet examples.

OR POSSIBLY PICK UP SOME TOURNAMENT ACTION?

Alright, a little bit different summer tournament scene this time around, as the Wreck at the Deck is taking a little break. So, no tournament right here in your back yard this summer, but we still have several options in NC/SC/TN that aren't too far out of reach. Check out the Central Virginia Classic, the Firecracker Open, the Charlotte Open, or the Music City Classic. Fliers for all four of those can be found on pages 21 & 22 of this newsletter, and definitely note that the Charlotte Open (July 7th-9th) also hosts the 2023 ADO Masters Nationals starting on Friday morning!

Dakota Helton	Rippin Darts	Rolled in singles, still good in doubles.
Mike Kelly	Ones are Closed	Carried the Ones through first 3 sets.
Chase McDonald	Rippin Darts	Top shot for the double champs.
Evan McMillan	The Rock Bottoms	Was a cricket shark the entire season.
Chris Moody	Runs with Corks	Immediately at the top of the division.

QUICK STAT TIDBITS

-The Quadruple Double Award winners (double-digit wins in all 4 sections) With two divisions playing 14-week seasons, you would expect that anybody joining this club would come from there (B or F divisions). But that's not what happened! There were two players in F with 3 double-digit sets, but there were throwers in A and E who surpassed. First, our honorable mentions (for those 3 double-digit-win sets): Rick Blake of Ton 80 Proof and Bryan Hartley of the Village Idiots in F division; but better than that were Robbie Phillips of The Global Element in A, and Dave Finney of Bad Mutha Duckas in E. Which leaves only our two real Quadruple Double Winners: Stevie Phillips of The Global Element in A, and Randy Deemer of Hump Day! in E! Both Phillips and Deemer rang up 10+ wins in every set in only 12-week seasons! So impressive.

-IronMan/Woman Award: With two divisions having 14 weeks, it's pretty obvious the top candidates here would be from those (B and F). And in the end, that's exactly what happened. This season's Ironmen were Matt Ridgway of Blindsided in B division, and Terron Amos of Neighborhood Dart Knights in F, each with 60 games. Honorable mention for the other division leaders were: Stevie Phillips of The Global Element, and Tony Horton and Randy Massengill of Darty Minds in A, with 49 each; Matt Byrne of Rif Raf and Kevin Stewart of Shooter McGavin in C, with 49 each; Dustin Jones of BullsHit and Kevin Olson of Off Constantly-Reboot in D, with 50 each; Dawn Clement of That's What She Said in E with 57 (who is maybe the real IronWoman since she had only a 12-week season); and Erik Raymond of Rippin Darts in G with 54 games

-The Team Attendance Award winners: Didn't have any teams at all who ever tried a portion of the season with just six throwers, so instead we'll just note a handful that all went the whole way with seven. While there were 5 teams that sprinkled in just a few games for an 8th or 9th player, there were 6 that fully played with just one above the minimum for a full roster: Why So Serious?, Blindsided and Dysfunctional Outlaws in B division, Shooter McGavin in C, Neighborhood Dart Knights in F, and Rippin Darts in G. Kinda close, I guess.

MY PRESEASON, WEEKLY, & TOURNEY PREDICTION RESULTS

As usual, I'm left with the option of trying to bluff my way through this part, or just telling the truth. And since I know some of you squirrel away every last thing I've ever written about your team, I will again give real results… bummer. Sometimes these results can border on embarrassing…

In my preseason picks (usually the toughest every season given the imminent roster changes/additions), let's note one key thing: I PICKED EVERY DIVISION WINNER. SEVEN FOR SEVEN. Beyond that, I did pretty well with most teams. Nobody in A was more than a couple matches off. My top B two in ended up as the tourney finalists, and while I oversold Boom, I undersold Uber. In C, I was pretty close to everything except not giving Sanchez enough credit. My D picks would have been almost perfect if I had just flipped Menace and the Rangers. I just about super-nailed E division. In F, I undersold both of the teams that had moved up a division into F, but got pretty much the rest. And then in G, I was just short on both Cork and Nein Mark. All in all, I think my preseason picks were mostly pretty great. Did I mention I hit every winner?

My weekly prediction results you can peruse pick-for-pick on the other side of this sheet of paper. As noted on that page, while I crushed A division (where I play), I kinda limped through the other six divisions, finishing between 54% and 70% in all of them. That's… not awesome. It was also not awesome that EIGHT teams fooled me more often than not (and three more finished at a flat 0.500). In the end, I finished with less than 65% correct overall. Better than a lot of people could do, I'm sure, but nowhere near for what I was hoping.

Last but not least were my tournament predictions… Often when we jump to best-of-3, my picks get stronger, despite the fact that I'm picking semifinals and finals that I conceivably could have wrong before the matches are even played. And this season was exactly that! I ROCKED in all but one tourney. I was 14-6 in the quarterfinals (with 3 more dumped to forfeits), then I was 11-3 in the semifinals, and then I went a monster 5-2 in the finals. 30-11 overall!! And I was 1-6 in F (horrible), so I was 29-5 in the other 6 divisions (awesome!).

JK'S TEAM-BY-TEAM, WEEK-BY-WEEK MATCH PREDICTION RESULTS

(I introduced this page thirty-seven seasons ago, and it has become almost expected as a newsletter staple. Feast your eyes on the success...)

For several years, many of you have taken no greater pleasure in your weekly darting endeavors than to email or text me and point out to me just how wrong I was in my prediction of your match result. On a related note, I have noticed that many of you seem to have relatively selective memories saving only the weeks when I was wrong. Further, many others of you regularly embellish your statistics of how often you fool me. It's not so easy to get away with those rambles anymore, however, as you can see below. Each W is a week when I picked your match correctly, and each L is one I picked incorrectly. Division totals are to the right of the team totals, weekly totals are at the bottom, and in the space between the 14 weeks and the team totals, the three 'o' symbols indicate the teams for which I was only 0.500, and the eight 'x' symbols indicate the teams that fooled me more often than not. [What a hot friggin' mess some of these picks were this season… I don't think this was my worst overall season (or even that close to it), but it was certainly my worst with a specific group of teams. I was 5-9 or 4-8 or 4-10 with FIVE teams… Ugh. - JK]

THIS SEASON'S TRIVIA QUESTIONS… REVISITED

I now run this column during seasons in which I've included trivia questions all season. Each question is listed exactly as it was during the season, so there is potential for a question to now be out of date, but it's usually not too much of a problem. Each question is listed under the week number when it ran, and the answers follow the questions. No peeking…

Week 7 question: As anyone who has read the Tons for a long time knows, I personally think the regular season title is the real achievement in RDL land, requiring months of steady play and committed attendance, etc. (as opposed to the tournament title that really only requires a couple nights of good play by as few as just 2 or 3 of your top players). In light of that, I think a week 14 heads-up battle for a division is the real marquee show in any given season. And obviously, that battle in A division would be my vote for biggest match of the year, since it crowns the league's top overall team. So, the question here is… in my 51 non-Covid seasons as the statistician, how many times did week 14 feature a winner-take-all head-to-head matchup in A (meaning the top two teams either had the same W/L record, or that the second place team was within one win but with more total season points entering that match)?

Week 8 question: Since we've gone to the divisional fast games and high in/out awards, we've faced divisional logjams at 120-In quite a few times. More impressive is when we have a logjam at 160(!). What is the greatest number of 160-Ins we've had in one season since I became statistician in 1996? [Note: before 2010, "Ins" were allowed any turn, not just the first.]

Week 9 question: We are down to two undefeated teams in any division this season. Clearly, teams undefeated in the season are among the tournament "favorites." In my time as statistician (51 non-Covid seasons with tournaments, with 377 divisions), how many undefeated teams failed to even reach their tournament final?

Week 10 question: Back in week 5 of the Spring 1996 season (my first as the RDL statistician), I offered my first match predictions column. When I started out, I just picked a handful of important matches to highlight each week. That list of picks expanded over the next few seasons, and by the start of 2000 I was picking every match every week so that nobody felt left out each week. Back in those early seasons, I didn't keep a running total of my record with each team (although at some point I could go back and create one, but I'm not doing that for this lone trivia purpose). But starting in Fall 2003 I did. Soooo… from Fall 2003 through 2022, what are the worst single-season correct pick records I've had for a team? (And yes, this question is fully inspired by the hot messes that are my current season's picks for matches involving Put It on Matt's Tab, Double In, Uber Out, Double In Stumble Out, Cheap Shots, and Menace 2 Sobriety!)

Week 12 question: I've always offered to any team that prefers it, that I would completely refrain from including their team in any writeups, predictions, columns, etc. Some teams might just not want anything written about them or including them. And in all my years here (this is the start of my 28th year as the RDL statistician, with 27 years of play due to Covid), exactly one team/captain has requested exactly that. So, who is the only team (and captain) to ever demand that I not include them in anything in the newsletter (aside from the standings and statistics, of course)?

Week 13 question: This past week, we had both a match forfeit and a late scoresheet penalty. What are the records for the lowest numbers of forfeits in a season, and the lowest number of penalties in a season (at least during my tenure as RDL statistician, 1996-present)?

Week 14 question: Robbie Phillips of The Global Element is hanging out in some pretty rarified air in terms of ASP Average (this despite how few turns per game he actually throws!). In light of that, what is the RDL ASP Average record for a season?

Week 7 answer: I admit before I researched this answer, I would have guessed there had been more than I found. Some seasons a team ran too far ahead, some seasons the top teams didn't square off in the last week, and some seasons the second place team started out behind (but within reach) and just stayed there (even if they won the week 14 pairing). In the end, I found there have been only 7 week 14 winner-take-alls at the top of A during my 51 non-Covid seasons as statistician. In Sp96, Lunatic Fringe kept the top spot over 3 In A Bed, 14-10; in Fa03, The Subversive Element passed Varina Sports Bar, 17-7; in Fa11, Not Non-Element kept the #1 spot over Just A Little High, 17-7; in Fa13, Element Twenty-Won passed Bullklitz, 13-11 (with a 13-darter in the last 501!!); in Sp18, Appetite for Destruction passed Element XXX, 12-12 (in a super-fast 1001 with the teams combining for 24.6 points/dart); in Sp22, The Bullies kept first over The Uncharted Element, 12-12 (in a 34-dart 1001 with a turn average of >88.3); and in Fa22, The Convergent Element kept first over The Bullies, 13-11. So yep, it was only 5 of 49 seasons before the last year and the current historic Element-Bullies series. [Ridiculous super kudos to both Paul Jacobi and Tom Brown, who each came up with perfect guesses of 7 times while we were just standing at our match. No research, no record perusing, just separate perfect guesses (and also not hearing each other). Ummm… wow.] [Answer update for the banquet Tons: This season we added the 8th wk14 winner-take-all match in my 52 full seasons here, and it was the Element and Bullies for the 3rd straight season!! Add to the legacy of the league's best matchup ever. And for the 3rd straight season, the team in 1st kept hold of first, this time with The Global Element winning that matchup 19-5.]

Week 8 answer: Alright, sooo… the first thing to acknowledge here is that the rules for "Ins" have changed over the years. For 1996-2006, the High In was a leaguewide award, and any turn that scored your first points was considered ok (i.e., not getting in for eight turns and then hitting one big shot after your opponent has already missed two turns at the out was celebrated as a great achievement). For 2007-2009, "Ins" were still allowed after the first turn and Ins/Outs/Games were now separated into divisional awards (which changes little in terms of this question). But then starting in 2010, it was decided that only "First Turn Ins" would be award-eligible, which mathematically seems like it would change the rates of 160s, but… somehow it hasn't that much?! Let's start with the fact that 6 of the 28 seasons with "any turn Ins" sported a 170-In, while 2 of the 24 seasons with "first turn-only Ins" had 170s. Beyond that, 7 seasons had logjams of 4 160s (4 in the any turn era, 3 in the first turn era), and 4 seasons had logjams of 5 160s (3 in the any turn era, 1 in the first turn era). Which leaves two seasons (Fall 2005 in the any turn era, and Fall 2019 in the first turn era) as the biggest logjams with 6 "Ins" of 160 tying for the league best [side note for Fall 2019, one of those was a repeat by one thrower who had two, but that season also had another non-award-winning 160-In in the tournaments].

Week 9 answer: As noted in the question, we have had 377 divisions in my 51 non-Covid seasons, and 54 of those divisions (14.3% of the divisions) finished the regular season with an undefeated team. Of those 54, 41 of them went on to complete the undefeated double, while 10 more of them lost in the tournament final. Which means that we have had exactly 3 undefeated regular season teams fail to reach their tournament finals. All three lost in the semifinals (which was the first tournament match for each, as all three played in 7-team divisions). In Spring 2008, Money Shot won H division by 5 matches, then lost 12-7 to #4 seed Ale-ing Archers. In Spring 2018, Diddle Diddle won B division by 5 matches, then lost 14-10 to #5 seed Kiss My… And in Spring 2022, Darty

WANNA HEAR ONE OF THE BEST "TEAM POLICING ITSELF" STORIES EVER?

Last season I was emailing with a league member regarding something that had happened in a North Carolina City Dart League match, during which a player's team began fighting with him / turning on him, due to his behavior throughout the match. What I got in return is one of the funniest RDL team actions of which I've ever heard. Here is the story (with the main offender anonymized to save embarrassment / avoid a fight, but with another kept in by name so that he earns full bas-ass-ery points in everyone's eyes. The story as told to me: "Reminds me of when I was on Anthony Martin's team (yep, prior Board member Anthony Martin!) and "The Butthead In Question" was on our team. Butthead was being such a jerk about ASPs – he needed 1 bull to win and threw at 16s for ASPs for 6 or 7 turns and was bragging that he had more ASP than the whole other team. Anthony warned him about it and said he was being an ass and of course, being Butthead, he kept doing it. At the end of the match, several players told Anthony that they would finish the season, but were not coming back because Butthead was such an embarrassment. Anthony shared that he told him multiple times that night to stop, and this was not the first time this had come up. After a team discussion, it was decided to kick Butthead off the team, effective immediately. What is extra funny about this story is that, Anthony took a page from the TONS, flipped it over on the back and wrote something to the effect of 'Dear Butthead, the whole team is disgusted with your unsportsmanlike behavior regarding being in the game for ASPs and bragging about how you are better than the entire other team. Since you are not inclined to discontinue this behavior despite being spoken to about it multiple times, the team has unanimously voted to kick you off, effective immediately.' And we all signed it. And the next day at work, Anthony faxed him the sheet!!!!! (Keep in mind this was before mass email, but it still makes me laugh to this day that someone was kicked off a team via a fax. But that was so like Anthony!!)"

Alright, I know the person that I identified as Butthead in this story, and I know Anthony, and I COMPLETELY believe every last syllable of this story. This is EXACTLY who those two people are. And this outcome is friggin' priceless. Such a champ, and such a chump. And on a related note, if this was how you were to win an award like this, would it really mean anything to you? What a weak way to go about your day. I've had teammates that we felt threw unnecessary ASPs every now and then, but it hasn't really ever mattered to any awards, mostly because there's this guy in A who is the most efficient assassin in league history (how we wins ASP awards while probably throwing less than half as many turns as most others is beyond me). Anyway… haven't seen Butthead here in RDL-land in a while now… such a bummer…

Sanchez won E division by 4 matches, then lost 13-9 to #4 seed Red-eye Rangers. [Answer update for the banquet Tons: this season's only undefeated regular season team, The Global Element in A division, did indeed add to the season/tournament double list.

Week 10 answer: In the 37 seasons contained within this question, there were 2125 teams, with 2 of them who never played (leaving 2123 teams). And my average correct pick rate is about 72% per team. But there have been 8 teams (sort of) that fooled me at such an alarming rate that I actually got at least 72% wrong for those teams. I say "sort of" because 4 of those 8 teams did not play complete seasons. One team, The Groupers from Sp19's H div., folded after one match, so I was 0-1. Then three teams from the abbreviated Sp20 Covid season (C div.'s Projectile Dysfunction, D div.'s Sharky's Machine, and D div.'s Hump Day!) fooled me in 6, 7 and 6 matches, respectively, but we all know I would've figured that trio out! Which leaves the 4 real kings of confusing me... The first 3 here all fooled me 9 of 12 weeks: Modena of Fa03's E div., Bennington Brawlers of Sp06's F div., and Sharky's Machine (again!) of Sp15's C div. And then there was the Fa13 B division version of Overtime Outlaws, who fooled me a huge 10 of 13 times (thankfully, they forfeited in wk13, after I had endured a 9-match wrong streak!). [Answer update for the banquet Tons: Nope, neither Put It on Matt's Tab nor Double In, Uber Out was able to continue fooling me enough this season to break this record. Uber Out did finish as this season's biggest problem children for me (4-10), but that level didn't reach the problem child level above.]

Week 12 answer: Arrowing Experience and captain Craig Coker in the Spring 2000 season. I had written in a prediction that preseason-me had thought they would have more wins at the midpoint, and that was a personal affront that he couldn't/wouldn't accept. So, they were withheld from all columns for the remainder of the Spring 2000 season, and then through the Fall 2000 season. After 2000, the team folded and never returned (although a couple of their players joined other teams for a season or two before disappearing).

Week 13 answers: Let's start with the forfeits… After looking up all the digits, I admit that I was a little surprised by how many forfeits we've actually had. This is my 53rd season as statistician (with one season ended after week 8, and this season not quite complete yet), and we've had 311 regular season forfeits, for an average of 5.87 forfeits per season. Some of the larger number seasons are obviously driven by a team or two that forfeits out, who then subsequently has at least a handful of automatic forfeits attributed to their records. In the end, the highest number of forfeits in a season was 18 (in Fall 2008), followed by a season with 15 (Fall 1997), and three seasons with 14 each. The lowest number of forfeits was actually 0, and that has happened only TWICE (Spring 2001, Spring 2022), followed by 5 seasons w/ 1 forfeit each.

Now for the penalties… in the first 42 seasons I was here, there were literally dozens of penalties worth hundreds of points in most seasons. But then a few factors started filtering in, including electronic submission of scoresheets, skipping the fifth week captains' meetings some seasons, not always requiring election ballots in the election years where no more than one person ran for each office, and eventually texting of scoresheet photos. We had a pretty clear decrease in penalties starting with the Spring 2005 season, and then again starting in about Spring 2013. But it was in Spring 2018 that penalties really started getting rarer!! In the past 9 seasons (which include both the 8-week Covid season and the current not-quite-complete season), we've had only a total of 35 penalties for 454 points (and a match win or two). And the lowest ever (which was actually tied with the shortened Sp20 season, but that's not the same) was the Spring 2022 season. In that season, F division's Backpfeifengesicht picked up a 16-point late scoresheet penalty in week 3, and that was the entire sum total of penalties for the season. Only full season ever with fewer than 3 penalties. [Answer update for the banquet Tons: We only had 2 forfeits during the regular season this spring, but then we tagged on 3(!) more in the tournaments (2 in B, 1 in G). And, as highlighted on pg. 6, there were only 3 penalties for a total of 41 points this spring.]

Week 14 answer: During my 53 seasons as the RDL statistician, there have been 52 times that an individual threw more than 30 games and averaged 2.000 or more ASPs (with 3 of those this season). Those 52 are spread across 12 individuals, with only 3 of them doing it more than 3 times each. And the king is clearly Robbie Phillips himself, who did it for the 25th(!!) time this spring. And while Phillips's 2.630 average this season is only the 2nd time there was an average higher than 2.6, it didn't quite catch his own 2.698 in the Fall 2013 season. (For those wondering, Phillips would have needed 3.5 more ASPs to have passed his own record.)

I LOVE WHEN COLUMNS "LAND" FOR PEOPLE

I type stuff, I email it, and maybe people read it. I hope they enjoy it, or that it brings something to their day. Every now and then I get confirmation that some item was good in some way for somebody. Here's a perfect example of one such connection from Matt Heimbach regarding a lyric quiz a while ago. I love when stuff here relates to real life for somebody, and I love when they care enough to share it. Matt wrote: "The week 7 Danzig lyric - The first one brought back some memories. My mom really liked Mother when it became popular, so I bought her the album. About a week later she said that while she liked the one song, she really didn't like the rest of the album. So I made her a "mix tape" cassette for her car that consisted only of Mother on repeat over and over and over and over and over again. On both sides. And for the next 6 months, whenever she'd drive me to whatever after-school thing I was doing, that's the song we'd listen to. Over and over and over again. Somehow I still don't hate the song.

LOOKING FOR SUMMER DARTS?

Did you happen to see the listings of summer offerings on page 7? There are leagues, blind draws, full tournaments, etc. But one of those leagues (which is made to fit in the RDL open time) is set to jump off this coming week. See page 7 for details about signing up.

I FOUND TWO MORE FROM MATT!

Heimbach also shared stories regarding two more lyrics, one funny and one just a spot-on memory: "1) Harvey Danger - Flagpole Sitta. First time I heard that song I was in a car with my friend and her double-amputee dad. When the amputee line was sung... awkward! [If you know the lyrics, yep… awkward. -JK] And 2) Men Without Hats - Safety Dance. One of the few songs at my own wedding that got me up and dancing. My wife didn't want it played but the DJ convinced her because everybody dances to it. He was right."

[Like the last many seasons, we used three-song groups each week and also included a theme each and every week. Added a layer to the game for everybody and has been quite popular. Here are the themes for each week*, including the week 14 fifteen-song set that proved to be tough again for every guesser who played except for Pete Rutten of Hump Day!, and even he got barely more than half. - JK]*

Week 2 theme: Well, as I noted in the week 2 issue, this set was likely very difficult, and the only real 'theme' was that all three songs were by the same band. The reality of the set is they were my three favorite songs by Doug Jeffcoat's favorite band (I would have used his favorite three, but as far as I can tell, his three favorite Volbeat songs were… all of them. So I just picked my favorite three. And then I sat alone and listened to Volbeat until nearly 4 a.m., nodding my head and acting out the best lines with Doug one more time. Shortly before 4 a.m. I decided I should probably go to bed since I had to work the next day. Was a great night.. Week 3 theme: All songs by artists from Puerto Rico. Since last week's issue was the first Tons I had ever sent you while in Puerto Rico, it just seemed appropriate. Week 4 theme: This one wasn't anything deeper than some of the biggest (and longest-lasting) pop dance tunes of the '80s. I also picked it because, after a couple weeks of tough lyrics, I thought I would toss you guys a set of softballs. The fact that it's a set that a lot of you are probably a little bashful about admitting that you know is just a (very intentional) bonus. Week 5 theme: Nope, you're not seeing things… this set was all about hallucinogens. Week 6 theme: Alright, if you can't get the theme when the song titles are Come Sail Away, Drift Away, and Sailing, then I really can't help you. Sure, the first one is really kind of about aliens and space, but that's secondary when the song title fits this group so perfectly. Week 7 theme: Primary songs featured in movies developed from Saturday Night Live skits! Blues Brothers, A Night at the Roxbury, and Wayne's World. Two of them classics, and the other one mostly just famous for being an earworm with a stupid story. But all SNL moneymakers nonetheless. Week 8 theme: Well, now that you've seen the titles of the songs, it's pretty obvious that we were just fooling around with this set. Week 9 theme: Songs by one artist that are titled for/are about an entirely different artist. Week 10 theme: I can see that… I can see you… You seeing the same thing as me? You know, kinda the sentiment that your opponent might be directing toward you if you choose to diddle second, don't wait for a chalker, and pull the diddles quickly without checking with the opponent. Pretty much exactly the top reminder (of things never to do) at the top of page 1 in the previous issue of the Tons. Week 11 theme: Yep, it's the preposterously obvious (if you got the genre-crossing songs) theme of RDL community pillar Mark Knight passing. He died far too young, I will never forget him, and I hope against hope that whatever awaits me brings me across his path again. Week 12 theme: People who go around spying on others… secret agents, spies, private investigators, etc. Week 13 theme: Clearly, this one is all about the pilot here. Which is who I should be traveling with pretty soon. Woowoo!! Week 14 theme: Bands/duos with an ampersand in their name. And they were listed alphabetically (and we actually used the lead singer's first name as the sorting item in those cases, as those are more of a band name than just a singer name).

THE GREATEST "RIVALRY" IN THE 45-YEAR HISTORY OF THE RDL

I've been here for almost 60% of the existence of the RDL, and I've collected records from many years prior to my time. And I can tell you, in no uncertain terms, that the RDL has recently been experiencing the single greatest rivalry/story in its history. Since the start of 2019, Element and The Bullies have been waging the highest-performance, highest-drama, most evenly matched series of battles at the top of the RDL heap; somehow, I don't have the words to fully convey it all to you (and we all know that I am never at a loss for words). And I use the term 'rivalry' to convey an image, but the one feature associated with that word that is missing here is the animosity that some might expect - this is a group that fully respects each other and lives for these matches. It has been an honor to just be involved with them in any way. Check out these results from Sp19-Sp23 (the Sp20 season had only one regular season matchup, and no tournament)… Regular season W/L: Element 76-8, Bullies 76-8; Head-to-head regular season record: Element 8 wins, Bullies 5 wins; Head-to-head tournament records (all in finals matches): Element 2 wins, Bullies 3 wins; Regular season titles: Element 4, Bullies 3; Tournament titles: Element 2, Bullies 4; in the last 9 pairings, FIVE have gone to 1001, and two more went to final 501s in 11-11 matches; and Element is the ONLY team to defeat Bullies in that entire span (Element dropped a couple additional ones and missed a final in the season immediately post-Covid when they were struggling to not be shorthanded every week). /// I don't generally list all the people in team photos, but in honor of this ongoing awesomeness, I'm going to put a name to each of the faces above in case you come across them… [Back row]: Pat Gibson (B), Dean Cusher (B), Pete Stewart (B), Stevie Phillips (E), Dan Naylor (B), P.J. Stewart (B), Matt Brown (B), Kevin Foushee (B), Chad Massengill (E), Ross Minty (E), Tom Brown (E), Kenny Persson (E), Allen Smith (E); [Front row]: Alex Spellman (B), Wil Tan (E), Jason Kilts (E), Robbie Phillips (E). [Not in photo: Craig Elder (B), Robb Beeson (E), and somehow Michael Johnson (B) who was there when we took this and should be in the photo!] /// Anyway, I hope this rivalry keeps up… won't ever be quite the same either way with P.J. Stewart heading to school to put himself in the air (literally), but I'm hopeful. Even if it tails off a bit, what a golden run it has already been. I feel like this photo is a snapshot of exactly why we all play, chasing that competitive rush in what almost feels like its own little family. Amazing.

DID YOU NOTICE THAT WE HAD ANOTHER TYING OF A LEAGUE RECORD TIED IN THE TOURNAMENTS?!

We already knew Robbie Phillips of The Global Element set a new league standard in SCkt with a 10-darter. And we already knew that Alex Spellman tied the league 301 record with our 11th 7-darter (two of which are his). But in the tournament semifinals, Chad Massengill of The Global Element, became the 10th member of the 7-dart 301 club, tossing the league's 12th so-nearly-perfect effort.

I'm ready to see this season go. We lost so much this season. This one was painful like none before for me. I'm very ready to not lose any more friends for quite a while. Mortality kinda sucks. Damn.

As noted on page 4, we've continued our recent little tradition of encouraging tournament- winning teams to submit team photos from their victorius evening. Just pretty great to share in the moment and save that memory. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's about 'team' happiness anyway.)

F division tournament champions - Shoot-Da-Bull

B division regular season and tournament champions - Why So Serious? !!

E division regular season and tournament champions - Bad Muthaa Duckas!!

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK

Nowadays, it's a fact… this column has become a banquet Tons staple. I have no idea why so many are so keen on taking a peek into the oddness that is my head, but you are. So without further ado, let's open up my head again and see what falls out. Some of these observations are dart-related, and some of them clearly are not. As always, this is just about the last thing that I'm writing and this season is certainly no exception… soooo, also as always not even I know what's about to hit the page…

-- You know what really warms my heart? When some little street racer or jacked up truck with a lift kit gets flat-out dusted from a light by a silent little electric car like a Prius. Not that I'm some huge electric car proponent or something, but I'm absolutely a non-proponent of any vehicle that has intentionally-altered exhaust systems with a goal of just making them ridiculously loud. Same goes for a big old motorcycle or dirt bike or really any vehicle at all. I just love seeing somebody sit and rev their engine to send out their redneck love call to anyone within earshot (which is a long way), and then watching them take off from a standstill while watching some simple quiet little vehicle just drive away from them. Super double bonus if the idiot with the loud vehicle stalls out or something! //// And I'll expand this one a bit to enlighten anyone with the altered tailpipes… I will speak on behalf of the rest of us with actual functioning frontal lobes: Nope, we don't think your dumbass pipes make you look cool. Or enviable. Or desirable. (Yeah, sorry to confirm that one for you, but the only ladies that will be drawn in by your stupid childish noisemakers would serve themselves much better by trying to become involved with a dentist or an oral surgeon.) So the only people really looking to check out your idiotic loud-ass ride are the people who want to know who their kids are never allowed to bring home, who want to see what inbred goober would make themselves such a stupid spectacle, or who want to know which car they are not-so-secretly hoping will veer over and clip a telephone pole.

-- It's probably just me, but for some reason, I think this is just an odd terminology for a grocery product. Maybe I'm just juvenile, I don't know. But the term "walnut meats" immediately made me chuckle.

-- You know how people say "have a good day" or something similar? Does it strike anybody else as odd that when we are attempting to give a nice farewell sentiment to somebody, that we are really sort of giving them an order? Hey, buddy, I'm telling you that you are now to go in that direction and make your day good! I don't know, just makes me feel funny after thinking about it, so now I try to say "I hope you have a good day" or something like that . Less demanding. :o)

-- After the tournament semifinals, Ken Theall of Ton 80 Proof sent me this message: "Dart Side totally rag-dolled us last night. We were tossing jarts and they were throwing laser darts. A very humbling ass whipping. See you at the banquet!" Which was a huge throwback to my youth! Oh, I so miss Jarts!! Look at these bad boys! (Note: photo taken from a story titled "Remembering a dangerous game" in the Glen Falls, NY Post-Star. Ha! Perfect.)

-- Can somebody explain to me why Jennifer Coolidge is such a popular actress?! Yeah, I know that she was Stifler's Mom in American Pie and all that, but I would argue that doesn't support any argument here. Every time I see her in anything, she just intentionally plays some ditzoid fool, often with some horrible put-on foreign accent. I'm sure that she is probably quite an intelligent and societally functional woman, so why doesn't she ever play one in a show/movie? That whole dipstick shtick is so off-putting. Ugh.

-- You know what the fastest way to get me to NEVER ever share/repost/copy/whatever something from one of your social media posts is? Add any sort of "bet you aren't comfortable enough to share this" or "I expect any of my real friends to repost this" or "if you truly are in favor then copy and paste this to your own feed" type of comment. You beg me or challenge me to post something and the odds falls to exactly zero. Not low, actual zero. Doesn't matter the context, I'm not doing it. Try your dumb guilt manipulation somewhere else. (Or, more likely, the message that you didn't write at all, that you just went and copied from somebody else because they guilt-manipulated you, can go and try that on somebody else.)

-- I've decided that there is a class of words that drives me nuts. It's words that just aren't sure themselves as to how they should be spelled. Is it judgment or judgement? It is acknowledgment or acknowledgement? Is it canceled or cancelled? Is it adviser or advisor? Is it ax or axe? Is it omelet or omelette? And these aren't even the words where we just debate whether it's the American version or the English version (since most of those just debate the importance of a potentially extraneous 'u' anyway). There are lots of others that are really close, but that actually have slightly different meanings or histories (inquire/enquire, specter/spectre, timbre/timber, etc.), but the ones I'm complaining about here are ones where both words mean the exact same thing and I can't find a good reason why one or the other is the better choice. Just more words for the sake of more words! (Sounds like a column I would write, no?)

-- Man, you know you're a really big dang city when you can support businesses like a gum removal company. That is all they do, just get gum out of things. For the record, this one is in NYC. Sadly, I don't think they were there to work on the sidewalks…

-- Ever watch Young Sheldon, the prequel series to Big Bang Theory, following the childhood of Sheldon Cooper (the biggest of the nerds in Big Bang)? I, being a nerd myself, kinda love both shows, and I think the writing is pretty witty and well done. But the point of this item is season 1, episode 13, titled "A Sneeze, Detention, and Sissy Spacek." In that episode (that aired in… 2018!), Sheldon develops a germophobia, starts wearing masks and gloves, and worries about a new flu strain. Not really a super stretch in the aftermath of the bird flu and all, but still… 2018.

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK - PART II!!

-- So I sat down to try to decide what single thing is the most absolutely aggravating thing which I deal. Not the thing with which I have to deal the most often, but the thing that, when I do have to do deal with it, is the worst. Now we're not talking actual evil (people who hit their kids, people who abandon animals, people who steal, etc.), we're just talking about the absolute worst parts of regularly accepted days and tasks. And I think I have it… It's not really bad drivers (although they are freakin' close), it's not people's pets pooping on stuff or breaking stuff (although those people need to be smacked around), and it's not even people who treat service industry folks poorly (although there is also a special little place in hell for those folks too). In the end, I think for me and my personal spot in life, the most aggravating thing is… anything at all to do with Ticketmaster (and it took everything I had to not type that as TicketBastard or some other equally insulting title). It's stunning how much I hate that company. I hate the exorbitant fees they charge (seriously, how much money do they make in a day?!). I hate the dynamic pricing model. I hate the queue for tickets that is inevitably followed by clicking on pair after pair of seats marked as available that actually are not (why is it so damn expensive in fees if the system can't keep up with its own series of functions?). And now I absolutely despise that no matter which browser I use, with which level of security and privacy turned off, that their system still can't distinguish me from a bot, despite the fact that I've done nothing but push the "buy tickets" button to literally anything. They FORCE me to use their phone app, which is twice as bad as their computer site, which already sucked. It's as if their website was just terrible and expensive, and they had a meeting to decide what they could do to make it even worse. "I've got it… we'll force people to switch to a phone browser where the search filters rarely work, the page loads twice as slowly, and the patrons can't efficiently compare any seat values even in the same seating level. That'll really drive them crazy!!" It has gotten to the point that we've gone to a different venue that doesn't employ TicketMaster for the same show, or we've skipped shows entirely. And no, I'm not holding my breath that the legislators trying to put restrictions on them will have any success at all. Winless situation.

-- A few weeks ago, on my way home from my RDL match, I ended up behind this vehicle. I think it's some model of Mitsubishi, but my best game for model name might be Tippy or Tall or Slim or just High Center Of Gravity. Look at that thing, it has to be twice as tall as it is wide. Only took up half its lane. I stayed back a bit when the light changed, as it looked like it was going to flop over in the first curve. I mean, how the heck does that thing not tip over?? Is there a gyroscope in it?!

-- You know what I love in darts? The camaraderie and great sportsmanship. But you know what I don't love? The need some people have to fist bump at the end of every game and also at the start of the next game. Not really a thing in our regular season, but when tournament time hits, it is. And I spend a lot of time playing in the NC City Dart League, and best-of-three sets of four-man 701 are a standard part of every match there. I like all you guys, but I don't need to shake your hand when we arrive at the board, fist bump after the first diddle, fist bump after the first game ends, fist bump after the second diddle, fist bump after the second game ends, and theeeeeeennnn… when we go to a third game, fist bump after that diddle and that game conclusion too. At the start and finish of the set really should be sufficient, no?

-- As most of you know, I split my work between Duke and the Durham VA. At the VA, the parking saga has been a long and bumpy road, and very little about our parking decks make sense. Since I'm there many days a week, I know how it all goes. But the patients who are NOT there regularly often feel very lost. [To highlight, the visitors enter the parking deck on the 3rd level, they aren't allowed to go to 1 & 2 on most days (but not all), and the parking levels in the two decks we have do not line up with each other, or with the floors of the walkway to the hospital. Super clear.] And to "help" the guests coming in, the parking deck company (a contractor that is NOT officially part of the VA itself) posted these signs in the elevators. And yes, you're seeing that correctly - they put up signs where the "Ground" is at the top of the sign, and "Level 6" is at the bottom, despite the fact that this is NOT a deck built down into the earth. So, to help confused people, they posted a stacked sign in the opposite order of the floors themselves. At least they posted the color of each level (both in a color panel AND in a typed word, mind you!) to further help - this despite the fact that I've worked there for fifteen years and I've never seen more than maybe one post per level that has any color at all on it. I don't even know what I would say to somebody who thought this sign would somehow make things better. The only bit of helpful information at all is that the skywalk is on level 4, a fact already on the elevator door frame, the elevator wall, and the elevator button panel. Couldn't they have added where the entry is, or where the employee levels were, or…. sigh, whatever.

-- Have you ever seen a darter reach out to catch a bounce out dart? Or even better, stick their foot under it? Exactly what gene mutation do those people have to make that a good idea?

-- Why do people drive five miles each way to save a nickel per gallon of gas? If your car gets 20 miles per gallon, you just used up half a gallon of gas (about $1.70) to save a nickel maybe 16 times (about $0.80). If you're not heading over to a Sam's Club or a Costco or something, maybe just stop along your way, no?

-- This past Friday, March 31st, I hopped in the car with my wife to head to Charleston (where she was running a race the next day with some friends). On the way, we stopped for gas in SC, and randomly ended up at some monstrosity named Buc-ee's. We had "thought" it was a gas station, but when we pulled up and entered through the lawn ornament department and saw the vast expanse of… everything, we realized otherwise. Ummm… yikes.

-- Anybody else going to the Blues & Brews Festival in Durham immediately after this banquet today? If you are, look for me there or shoot me a message. Happy to hang out a bit and tip a few back. Love me an outdoor beer and music festival…

53-SEASON LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP / RESULTS / RECORDS SUMMARY

With me finally giving in and picking my Hall of Greatness this season, I thought maybe it was time to take a quick look back at the 53 seasons that comprise my time here as the league statistician. Here's all the stuff that has transpired, season by season, in some categories of stuff that I thought were interesting.

Raleigh Dart League
Hall of Greatness

(as selected by Jason Kilts)

2023 Inaugural Class of Inductees

NOTES REGARDING MY (JK'S) SELECTION PROCESS FOR THE HALL OF GREATNESS

I first teased that I was finally considering doing this back in the week 13 issue of the Spring 2020 season (which, at the time during a pandemic, had very little to do with actual "week 13" of anything). Maybe I decided to undertake it as a nod to the hope that we would one day return to our normal hobbies and functioning. (We mostly have.) Maybe I decided to undertake it because I just missed everybody and this was fun to ponder. (I did, and it is.) Or maybe I decided that I just had so much more down time for a while that I could finally give in to the people who had been asking me to write one of these for going on about fifteen years now. (I did, I could, and they had been.) But for whatever the final reasons were in my head, I eventually decided to give these selections a great deal of thought, and I took this task VERY seriously. Below are the criteria that I generally employed when thinking about this, and I can tell you that after mulling this over for (literally) a couple years now, I am more certain than ever that I have made the exact proper selections for this Inaugural Class of the Hall. Will there be more inductees in the Hall? Maybe (see point #5 below), or maybe not. But I feel like I already know who the most likely future candidates could be, if ever there are any…

The criteria notes that I first presented with my teaser three years ago (and from which I have not swayed to this day):

#1 - This is be MY opinion, and is not any official recognition from the RDL in any way (although the Board did very graciously step in on the award cost, so they must not think I'm "too much" of an idiot). So if you end up with a problem with the choices, take them up with me and me only (or… don't :o).

#2 - I will not call this a Hall of "Fame", because being famous in RDL land is nowhere near enough to be included. Fulton Crowley is RDL-famous for being such a terrible captain that we changed a rule in response to his behavior; Danny Caputo is famous for being banned due to some pretty crazy behavior; and Richard Oakley and Brett Speight are famous for being premeditated fake identity roster cheaters. All famous, none of them great. Thus, none of them included.

#3 - I had not at the time of writing these initial criteria fully decided who would be chosen, or even the exact number that would be chosen. 2? 5? 8? Wasn't sure then. But do know this… the players chosen (both now and if there any additional in the future) will always be longtime RDL members with many years of continuous active membership, each carrying sustained success for many many many years, and only play at the highest level will even be considered as a criterion.

#4 - Additional success in other local leagues, state leagues, and state and national championships is a nice extra, but this is the RDL Hall, so if a person isn't a sustained RDL legend, the rest of the stuff won't make up for that fact.

And finally, #5 - this might be the ONLY time that I ever induct somebody into my personal Hall. It took me 25 years to agree to induct anyone at all, so I'm certainly not going to dilute the pool with any sort of regular or guaranteed addition to the club. Maybe I add one or two throwers very soon. Or maybe I write the Tons for another twenty years and never add another soul. I have taken this selection VERY seriously, and have actually had this in the back of my head off an on for quite a while now, so I will be in no hurry to add just for the sake of adding (but also note that if somebody else's RDL career reaches a worthy level, I'm not directly against adding somebody - just against adding anybody before they have truly reached whatever ridiculously high bar I set in my head).

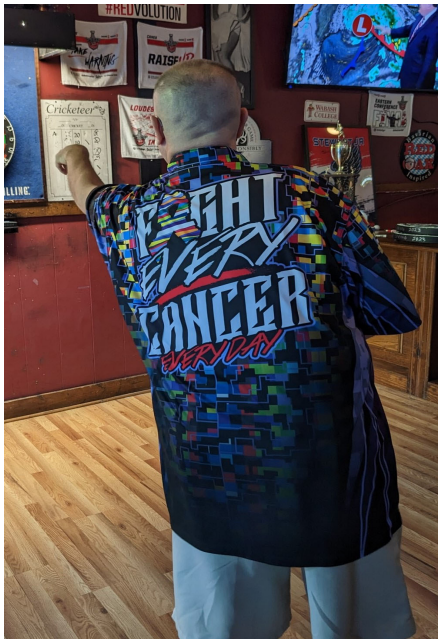
Sooo…. With all that said, it is very much my honor to be able to present to you my personal Hall of Greatness. I have had the very great pleasure of playing on teams with each of my selections in some capacity over the years (not always RDL, but certainly RDL for a long time for several of them). I believe the players I have chosen represent the very highest echelon of darting achievement that the RDL has ever seen, and I love that each of them has taken a pretty distinct path from the others in terms of how they have traveled the RDL path.

This year's five inductees are presented on the pages that follow, and they are presented in no order other than "alphabetical by last name." So don't try to read anything into the order, or try to guess if I have some ranking. The bottom line is that these five people all sit above the bar for extended supreme excellence. No ranking, just a brotherhood of people who have done it better than the rest of us for a very, very long time.

Without further ado, I present to you… the five new members of the Hall of Greatness…

TOM BROWN -- 2023 Inaugural Class

Tom Brown comes to the Hall in the role of the endless winner. No matter where he plays, when he plays, with whom he plays, he just wins and wins and wins. Honestly, it has been quite a bit uncanny. While we will focus primarily on the RDL here, his incredible habit of winning has extended through decades of play in the nearby Bull City Dart League, the statewide North Carolina City Dart League, and shorter term endeavors such as the Cary Dart League and the Tobacco Road Dart League. I think maybe he never really lost anywhere because he never learned how and then never cared to learn.



Brown (known to quite a few around here as "BiggDogg") first threw darts in the Buffalo Area Dart League in western NY, winning his first title in the spring of 1988. After moving here in the early '90s, Brown started his North Carolina darting efforts in the Triangle Dart League in Chapel Hill. After a brief time there and in the BCDL in Durham, Brown was recruited to his first RDL team in the spring 1995 season, joining Pig Tour 95 (the very same first RDL team for yours truly). Only one year into his time with the Pigs, a dispute over the keeping of an embarrassing teammate splintered the team, sending a few of us in different directions. Brown's direction was to the already formidable Lunatic Fringe, and his arrival cemented Fringe as maybe the league's first real dynasty. In his 15 seasons with Fringe, their team collected an amazing 12 regular season and 10 tournament titles. But somehow, Brown was just getting started.

In the Fall of 2003, Brown made the somewhat alarming decision to leave Fringe to join seven players of my own team, creating an upstart squad known as The Subversive Element. In one fell swoop, to the surprise of roughly everyone including us members of Element, the history of the RDL changed. Brown switched teams, and the greatest dynasty in RDL history gave way to a somehow even greater RDL dynasty! As I noted before, Brown joins a team and it just wins. Just like that. And they never stop winning. As Element is the present A division regular season and tournament champion (in a fully undefeated season), it looks like Brown's teams certainly aren't done (or at least I hope they aren't!). You should definitely check out his team's win/loss records on page 5… wow.

Brown has actually collected every award the league offers… singles win percentage, all-star point average, perfect throws, fast games… literally every category (see summary on page 5). And he's done it without ever playing a day outside of A division. When you add in the fact that Brown is also a superb hockey player, a pretty decent golfer, and a very successful Financial Analyst/Business Manager, it kind of appears that Brown just goes through his day kicking ass. I would love to tell you that at least he's undependable or irresponsible, but I just can't do that. I've known him for three decades, and I'm not sure I know anyone more completely reliable in any context. Pretty disgusting, no?

My favorite Brown memory? It's actually a hundred little versions of the same event over and over. In the biggest moments in a match, Brown has a habit of throwing a dart right square in the middle of a triple, flatly asking of the chalker "score, please?" when we all know exactly what the score is, and then he takes a minor little walk away from the oche as he ponders the next dart. We, his teammates, call it The Tom Brown Stroll. I'm guessing our opponents kinda hate it, as they know just as we do, that nothing good is coming for them once this sequence is in motion. I can't count the number of titles of which I've been a part that have been fueled by a well-timed Tom Brown Stroll winner.

JIM BUDELMAN -- 2023 Inaugural Class

Jim Budelman's place among the RDL's Hall is that of the serious technician. Budelman always analyzed every little facet of the game, the board, the lighting, the situation, etc., more than any of the other top players here. I always knew the match wasn't fully on and moving until Budelman had walked to each board to determine how closely the bull's height was to that of his nose (or eyes, or whatever the heck he was lining up). He made the slightest of alterations in his release point and dart release power in response to his determinations, and based on the fact that he was one of the most consistent and precise throwers in league history, whatever he always did clearly worked.

Budelman first began throwing during his time in the U.S. Air Force. His brother Frank had been a good player as well, and he recruited Jim to be a last minute addition to their A league team in Washington DC. Within 3 years, Budelman's brother could rarely beat him anymore, and they played in DC's top division until Jim moved to southern California in roughly 1972. Somehow, players in California initially reached the conclusion that Budelman wasn't good enough to play in A division when he arrived, a mistake that was remedied soon thereafter by his buddy Craig Dusenberry, and together they ruled the league for about 6 years.

After a move to New Jersey that forced a minor pause in his dart action, Budelman retuned to California and started to become a nationally ranked tournament player. In 1992, Budelman finally moved to the Triangle area, and jumped right into his RDL career. That first year saw Budelman duke it out on behalf of A division's Barstools, but the team just couldn't quite keep their spot in the top division. That led to Budelman hopping over to Lunatic Fringe for more than 21 years, with him being one of the major driving forces that catapulted Fringe into being the RDL's first real dynasty. Fringe won the A division regular season title in 15 of the first 21 seasons in which Budelman played, and there was a 15-season span during which Fringe also claimed 10 A division tournament titles. For roughly a decade, Budelman was widely acknowledged by members of the other teams as that one guy on his team that you had to list around, even when his roster featured several other top players.

Over the course of his RDL career, which was sadly cut a bit short by ongoing right elbow pain that prevented him from keeping the highly compact and repetitive throwing motion for which he was known, Budelman won at least one of every award the RDL gives out except for a 6-Bull (but since 6-Bulls are generally thrown by people who are behind, and Budelman was rarely ever behind). While it's a bummer that Budelman had to give up full-time darting, he certainly managed to fill his time with kicking ass on the golf course. He's a near scratch golfer at frickin' Prestonwood Country Club. Clearly, coordination has never been an issue.

My favorite Budelman memory? It came during my first year here in the RDL. In a huge match between A division heavyweights Lunatic Fringe (Jim's team) and Pig Tour 95 (my team), the match advanced to a tiebreaker. After Budelman missed a shot at the out in 1001, he disassembled his darts and put them back in his case. There were nearly a dozen top shooters (including several NC state champions) between Budelman and another shot, but somehow every one of us missed. When it came back around to Budelman, he hurriedly went to his case, assembled one dart, and went to the line and hit the out! When I said something to him about it, he said something to the effect of "well, it takes a little while to put these back together and I didn't want to make you guys all wait, so I just figured that if I was going to hit it, I might as well just go ahead and do it on the first one." Just decided to do it? That's what I've been missing?

ROBBIE PHILLIPS -- 2023 Inaugural Class

If there is anyone among this group who needs no introduction to the majority of the RDL, it's most decidedly Robbie Phillips. His exploits, from local successes all the way to the world stage, have been recounted in the pages of the Tons probably more extensively than any other league member. It's almost beyond argument that Phillips carries the title of "best ever RDL player." In any case, he is certainly the most accomplished

Phillips first joined the RDL in 2001 when he was recruited to Brian Selby's super-deep Industrial Strength; he and Tom Brown are the only members of this year's Hall class who won both the A regular season and tournament titles in his first season in the league. After three seasons, Phillips switched over to the pre-Element team captained by yours truly, and he was a founding member of Element two seasons later.

In 2004, Phillips took a year to go to culinary school, and there evidently must have been dartboards hung in every kitchen at the school, because after he returned in 2005, it was time for him to start rewriting all the record books. He rejoined Element and immediately became a cornerstone of the RDL's most dominant dynasty, posting numbers never before seen in RDL on an almost seasonal basis. Eighteen years later, and almost nothing has changed.

You can very easily peruse Phillips's individual results on pages 10 and 11, but some of the outcomes are so outrageous that they just need to be highlighted. For example, Phillips has more than 150 perfect throws in league play, and has anywhere from 1 to 6 9-marks in all but one season since the start of 2005. He has won the A singles title 11 times, and he has claimed an A all-star average title in 21 of the 28 past seasons. He has claimed every award the RDL offers at least 3 times each (not surprisingly, 6-Bulls are one of the only two awards he has claimed fewer than 6 times; but quite a bit surprisingly, the other that he was claimed only 3 times is the High Out). Finally, while it's not an official RDL statistic, I have named Phillips to my A division all-star team 34 times in a row (and 36 in total), and I have named him the division MVP in 19 of those seasons.

And while being selected to this Hall is mostly about all the RDL achievements, it would be silly not to mention Phillips's additional honors elsewhere. Phillips has 31 NC State Championship titles, he has won 10 NC City Dart League championships, he has won roughly 20 Bull City Dart League titles, he has won multiple national championships, he has won a team World Cup event, and about a thousand other things. Just way too many to highlight in a one-page summary with photos. But probably a bigger achievement than all of these is the fact that somehow Phillips is not only one of the most gracious losers I've ever encountered, but he is also one of the most gracious winners as well. It's no secret why he is one of the most popular darters around, regardless of talent level. So very casual and approachable…

My favorite Phillips memory? Oh, there are some serious classics, as Phillips is one of the wittiest and humble intellects around… There's the greatest diddle in the history of darts… There are the dozens of walk-by perfect throws with my darts… There are clutch shots, windbreakers, comedy acts with no words, and a Slim Jim. But in the end, I'm going with a quick, subtle one. One night in SCkt, Robbie was playing and I was recording results on the sheet (which is out of the ordinary for us, I realize), and Robbie said "I got a 5m, a 6m, and a 3-bull." I looked at the sheet and replied with "I have the 5 and the 6, but I didn't have the 3-bull." Phillips quickly looked at me and said "I haven't hit it yet" with this awesome smirk. When he flat-out buried the first dart on his next turn, you could almost feel the pressure in the room release…

MIKE SEWARD -- 2023 Inaugural Class

If we recognize anyone in this Inaugural Class for paving his own unique path, it's clearly Mike Seward. While the others in this year's class ended up playing as teammates for large parts of their time here in the RDL, Seward very intentionally chose another avenue. While he did have a stint playing with both Element and Fringe, meaning he has been an RDL teammate of all four others in this group, those were very much not Seward's normal modus operandi. Seward's greatest pleasure in his competitive darting career has been to either... play on what might be an underdog contender who could very well win but isn't an expected favorite, or… to build an entirely new team out of very good players who aren't necessarily thought of as the historically key champion throwers. He has always just loved the challenge of facing the other top talents, but with maybe slightly lesser but hungrier talents as his teammates.

And that path, while obviously expected to be tougher, has for the most part worked out quite gloriously. Seward started his RDL time in 1994 with Excalibur in C division, after a pretty funny intro to darts. He played his first 3 years of darts in his dad's basement "when he wasn't looking," and then one day he went to a friend's house and he and a friend were playing $5 games. Seward hadn't played before, he used some crappy darts, and he took home ~$25. After telling his brother about it at Christmas time, his brother recruited him to Excalibur in C division with him, playing out of Browns Billiards. By his 2nd season, he was 22-2 in singles, which he hilariously attributes to throwing a lot of games with his buddy Jimmy Lloyd (Dangerboy from 106.1 FM or Maverick on 94.7 QDR) on their practice board that was probably 10+ feet from the line to the face of the board.

In his early seasons in the RDL, Seward bounced around a little bit among Excalibur, the Dart Bags, and the X-Men, with this last association being the one that first brought him into the A division fray. After a brief stint with Dart Shadows in 1998, and then a return to Excalibur for a few seasons, it was joining my own team in the Fall 2000 season that ended any minor dalliances with any division outside of A for Seward. After 5 seasons with my pre-Element team, Seward had a cup of coffee with Varina Sports Bar, then one year with Lunatic Fringe, then one year with Element, and then… Seward found his true RDL calling. Starting in the Fall 2006 season, he spent a full decade building and rebuilding team after team (many of those in continued partnership with Kenny Persson) of squads that everyone thought would be one of those "next step down" of good A teams… and team after team was actually fantastic and vying for both the regular season and tournament titles.

While Seward has never been as "marquee" as a couple others in this group, I assure you that from about 2004 through 2016, there was no season when Seward wasn't just about the most feared opponent on any team. He was just a terminator… and that form started to flash back up a bit just this season!

My favorite Seward moment? Oh, again there are so many (due in so small part to the fact that Seward is a major prankster, and is quite a master at the low-risk but high-impact). Fake news-letters, cars wrapped in caution tape, toilet paper with no starting point, and so many others. But I'm going with the night he was on my team, when he hit his beloved 170-In (yes, he throws for that crap) on his first turn, and he got all the way down to 2 before Joe Stevens even got in. And then Stevens plodded all the way down… and then out. And then we gave Mike a High In Award.

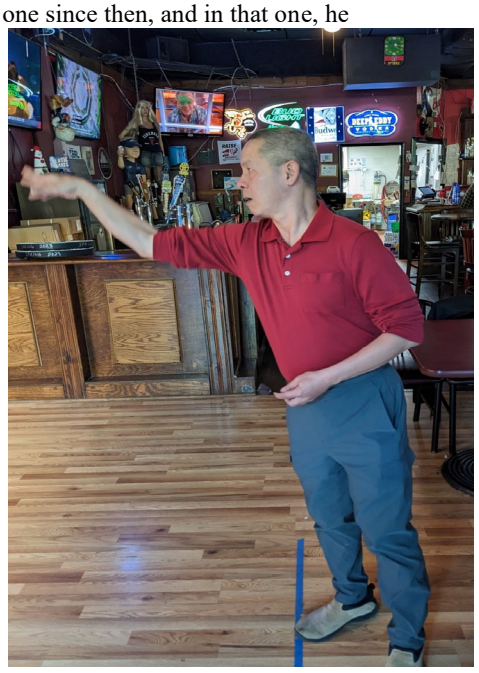
WIL TAN -- 2023 Inaugural Class



Wil Tan is most decidedly here in the Inaugural Class as the unconventionalist of the group. Whereas many of the highest-end darters all play the same strategy in both '01 and cricket, game after game, season after season, we'll just say… Tan has not been one of those players. He is most well-known for his decades-long aversion to the 18 in cricket, despite the fact that he might have the single highest 18s-per-dart average in the league's history. He routinely for years and years has plodded through a cricket board in his own fashion… 20s, then 19s, then 17s, then 15s, then 16s… then an internal struggle to decide whether it's straight to the bulls first, or whether it's to go clean up the 18 first. Mathematically, this entire strategy is indefensible. But maybe the simplest truth is that you should always play what works for you… and for Tan, this is what worked. And it worked a LOT (if you don't believe me, see "SCkt" and "DCkt" on page 16, and then note that nearly all of those stout numbers are in the upper reaches of A division).

Not to be left behind though, '01 strategies also found a home in the unique regions of Tan's brain. I'll never forget the couple years when he just decided that he wasn't going to hit the double-20, so he just threw a single-8 from 40 unless he had only one dart left. And it's probably right about here that you think you're going to be witty and throw in a "can't hit the double-20 because he's short" joke… well, sorry buddy, but Tan took hold of all height jokes and made them at his own expense from day one, so any bite they might have was defused decades later. You're just going to have to accept that the short guy with the seemingly-foot-long darts just thumped you once again. Probably need to get used to it.

Tan joined the league in the early 1990s, although he honestly isn't sure what season. The earliest record I can find of him (the league records from before my time will never be called "complete") is showing up on F division's Sharkey's Slingers in the Fall 1993 season. He must have been noticed at the local blind draws or something, because the very next season he helped push 3 In a Bed right back into A division (where they became a competitive fixture in the title chase). After a season or two away, Tan joined Chris and Ron Wandscher on Top Dead Center, and immediately helped carry that team right up to A also. The real meat of Tan's RDL career took shape next as he joined my pre-Element team and led a band of seeming no-names all the way to 2nd place in A, in a time when some were calling for a 4-team "Super A division" that included the "blatantly obvious 4 best A teams" (which somehow didn't include our 2nd place team, soooo… yeah). After a year away in 1999, Tan joined the very powerful Industrial Strength for a few years before returning to his prior home on my team to be a founding member of Element. He has been an Element for every season but one since then, and in that one, he popped over to help Mike Seward's first effort at making a new competitor in A (see Seward's page for further notes on that), and he quickly helped push that team right past Element in its first season. Then Tan came back to Element, and not coincidentally, Element very quickly returned to its spot at the top of A. Much in the style of all the guys being inducted today, winning just follows everywhere Tan goes.

My favorite Tan memory? Beyond so many dropped dollar bills, so many giddy times that he wrote up a cricket board with no 18 and his opponent didn't notice, I would have to say that my favorite is a hundred little instances of the same thing. Tan just loves to call me minutes before a match and act like he's at the wrong location. Over and over. It almost works sometimes, because he has indeed gone to the wrong place or just forgot to come. But sometimes I'm looking right at him while he calls from outside.

The Fall Session of the Raleigh Dart League for the Banquet, Saturday, December 9, 2023 Issue #JK864

The "Never Had Somebody Fly From Asia To Play Against My Team Before… I Feel So Special" Edition

TOURNAMENT WINNERS

"A" Division - The Bullies (13-7)

The Bullies complete the league's only undefeated run through both the season and tournament this season, and clinch the team's fourth A division season/tourney double since the team formed (to go along with the Fa2019, Fa2021, and Sp2022 seasons).

"B" Division - Darty Minds (14-6)

Darty posts a relative rarity in their tournament run, playing three matches and winning each one progressively more definitively than the one prior, stating with a 14-10 limper over the last place team, and ending with a pretty stout drubbing of #3 Raging.

"C" Division - Double In Stumble Out (14-4)

Well, I did say that the one sure winner across the seven division tournaments was here in C. And here they are, the only Mug winners who didn't need the 501 set in their tournament final.

"D" Division - Hump Day! (14-10)

After racing to the season's biggest margin of victory for their regular season title, Hump Day cruised into the final before finally facing a real finals challenge against suddenly awesome Shooter McGavin, having to pull a big late run to dig out of a 10-6 deficit.

"E" Division - Red-eye Rangers (13-7)

It makes complete sense that this specific E group was the only division to produce a tournament champion from outside the regular season top two. The Rangers were #3 in the season, but this division was so even, whoever was hottest was taking this.

"F" Division - Dart Side of the Moon (13-9)

Dart Side took home these Mugs in very much the same fashion they used to claim the regular season title - with close matches where they end up just being a couple games better. After a first-round forfeit win, they claimed two 13-9 wins for the crown.

"G" Division - The Neighborhood Dart Knights (13-11)

The Dart Knights, after surviving a tiebreaker in the semifinals, survive another nerve burner in the final, ending the Cinderella run by the #5 seed Rock Bottoms in the third leg of the final 501 set, on captain Jared Markham's winner with the Bottoms on 2.

We got a few photos a couple years ago, and… it was kind of great.. So this was a little minor tradition that I certainly wanted to encourage, and I asked the teams going into the tournament finals to consider taking a team photo and sharing it with us. This is one of my favorite items here. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's really about 'team' happiness anyway.)

FALL 2023 PENALTY SUMMARY

Alright, back to season with almost no penalties (or at least it was almost none until the last few weeks of the season, that is). As a group, we had 2 preseason captains' meeting penalties (for 10 points), and 4 late score-sheet penalties (for a total of 64 points, and… that's it. That's a total of just 5 penalties for 74, with 5 teams sharing those penalties. There were no penalties in A, B, or D divisions, while there were 2 (for 32 points) in C, 1 (5 pts.) in E, 1 (16 pts.) in F, and 2 (21 pts.) in G. And this season's biggest penalty club losers? Well, it could have been Double In Stumble Out in C (the only team with 2 penalties, losing the most points with 32); but it's really Rippin Darts, whose penalty took them from 5th to 6th in F.

FALL 2023 TIEBREAKER SUMMARY

A slight resurgence in tiebreakers this season… with 30 (28 during the regular season, 2 in the tournaments). And while F had a couple more than other divisions, they also had a third more matches than most other divisions, so that's not really surprising. There were 7 total in F (with 1 in the postseason), 5 each in B, E and G (with one in the G postseason), 4 each in A and D, and then ZERO in C division.

While 13 teams played two tiebreakers, there were five that had 3 or more. Why So Serious? In A, Dart Attack in B, and both Dart Side of the Moon and Bangin the Wire in F, all had 3 each. But the Cardiac Kids Award goes to Sharky's Machine in E, who had 4 tiebreakers (in only 13 total matches played!). The Heartbreak Award could have gone to Bangin The Wire (who went 1-2 and was eliminated from the tournament in 1001), but instead we're going with the Machine again, as the only team to drop 3 tiebreakers this season (meaning they got both awards!).

HOLIDAY BREAK BLIND DRAWS

UPPER DECK

As in many previous years, throughout the holiday break the Upper Deck will be adding a weekly Wednesday blind draw for all those who just want to keep their regular dart night out rolling through the break. 8 pm start, just like normal Deck nights, and with a double shot added for those so inclined.

AND DON'T FORGET THE REGULAR DRAWS TOO

While it appears that only the Upper Deck will be adding any "extra" draws during the weeks over the holidays, the Deck and four other area establishments will continue hosting their regular draws until the spring season starts (see full list on page 8). Now, will there be draws on Christmas, New Year's, etc.? Not sure, so I recommend calling ahead on the actual holiday dates.

OR MAYBE YOU WANT TO ADD ANOTHER LEAGUE?

Looking to add a second league this coming season? The list of options is growing around here! In addition to the leagues in Durham and Chapel Hill, there is a relatively new option with locations across Wake County. While the BCDL in Durham is still a ways from playing (registration should next occur in Feb.), the TDL will be cranking up sooner (Jan. registration), and the newer ADL is pre-registering over the next two weeks, with play starting in January. Check in on the websites listed below periodically to get the most updated registration information for the upcoming seasons.

Bull City Dart League (BCDL - Durham)

If you happen to be interested in trying out one of the very few handicapped steel-tip leagues anywhere, then the BCDL is for you. The BCDL spring 2024 season will be registering in early to mid-February, as the Fall season rolls on now. Teams in the BCDL consist of 4-8 players, dues are $25 per player per season (some of the host establishments cover half or all of those, so maybe ask around), and the home bars are primarily in RTP and the downtown Durham area. More complete information (and any updates in the coming weeks) can be found at:

www.thebcdl.org That website also includes a wealth of information about the league and its rules, so if you're just interested in seeing how the league applies a handicap system to a steel-tip league, you can find all of that there, including rules, statistics, and scoresheet examples.

Triangle Dart League (TDL - Chapel Hill & Durham)

Always check www.ibiblio.org/ncdarts/tdl/ for the most current information, but the spring TDL dates are already out. Spring 2024 team registration meeting will be on Thursday, 1/11, at 7pm at the Tavern in downtown Durham. Play will begin the following week, on Thursday, 1/18. The teams in TDL consist of 6-10 players per team, and dues are $20/player per season (I think). Recent seasons have used bars in both Chapel Hill and Durham, but I suspect that might vary a bit from season to season based on team preferences and signups.

American Dart League (ADL - many area locations)

The ADL is actually a compilation of many singles and team leagues, hosted on Mondays, Tuesday, Thursdays, and/or Sundays. Leagues are smaller (4-12 individuals or teams per league), and are run at Bud's Tavern, Benny's Billiards, Back Then Bar and Grill, Big Daddy's, and both Cleveland Draft Houses (each league is housed fully within its particular host establishment). Full listings of where and when each league is being played can be found in their post in the RDL Facebook group, and you can send them a Facebook direct message if you are interested in signing up. Pre-registrations for all of their spring leagues are due by December 22nd, so check 'em out soon.

Also, yes, the lack of a Getaway for the New Year Tournament on page 8 is accurate. That tournament will NOT be held in 2024.

"HOT DARTS" LISTING GUIDELINES

Here are the guidelines that will be used for the minimum number of all-star points each week for the "hot darts" page.
"A" Div. = 4.5 or more ASPs; "B" Div. = 4.0 or more ASPs

Extra note: it's also ok to call in "fast games" in each set, even if they don't necessarily meet the maximum dart counts above.

QUICK STAT TIDBITS

-The Quadruple Double Award winners (double-digit wins in all 4 sections): With five divisions playing with a bye, it was unlikely we would get anyone with 10+ wins in every set in any of A, C, D, E or G divisions. And yep, that's how it played out. But there was still something pretty remarkable there that we will note. First, we will acknowledge that there were 8 players who managed to win 9+ games in three of the four sets, and half of those came from C and G (where there were only 12 matches); there were also two throwers (one each in B and F with three 10+ win sets. Which bring us to our one honorable mention (three 10+ win sets in a 12-match season): Chad Massengill of Ring of Elements in A. And then our so-close-and-impressive one that we're including it - Robbie Phillips of Ring of Elements in A with four 9+ win sets in only 10 weeks played. Finally, our lone true quadruple double - Carson Stoy of Dart Attack in B div.!

-IronMan/Woman Award: With only B and F playing 14 weeks this season, it was pretty likely the Iron Thrower would come from those divisions. And that again is exactly what happened. This season's Iron Man is Lee Powell of Show Me Your Tips in B division with 61 games played. The honorable mentions for other division leaders were stunningly consistent: Darren Schmaus of Consistently Inconsistent and Andrew Borgna of Put It on Matt's Tab in A, with 51 each; Tom Winters of Rif Raf in C, with 50; Dave Buckman of Cheap Shots and Jimmy Arnold of Reload in D, with 50 each; Rick Blake of Ton 80 Proof in E, with 50; John White and Andy Bowen of Bangin the Wire and Chase McDonald of Rippin Darts in F, with 58 each; and Ken McNamara of We're Sexy & We Throw It in G, with 50 (yep, yet another leader with 50).

-The Team Attendance Award winners: At first glance, the best candidates here looked like Show Me Your Tips in B division, Menace 2 Sobriety in D, and Nein Mark in G, as each of those teams only ever listed 7 players at any point in the season… but they all used all 7 of those pretty extensively. So instead, the team closest to just sticking to a six-pack roster was Put It on Matt's Tab in A division. While 8 people played, only 6 of them plated at all extensively.

MY PRESEASON, WEEKLY, & TOURNEY PREDICTION RESULTS

As usual, I'm left with the option of trying to bluff my way through this part, or just telling the truth. And since I know some of you squirrel away every last thing I've ever written about your team, I will again give real results… bummer. Sometimes these results can border on embarrassing…

In my preseason picks (usually the toughest every season given imminent roster changes/additions), I had decent success. Almost nailed A, just over-credited Kids and undersold Attack in B, and really got everything in C except not at all seeing those Bandits. My D picks were decent, but Hump Day outdid me, and I overestimated DD. In E, my pick won the tourney while my #2 won the season, and I had too much Death Throw trust. My F picks were mostly in the middle and I way missed Corks. And in G, my top two were just flipped.

My weekly prediction results you can peruse pick-for-pick on the other side of this sheet of paper. As noted on that page, I flat out crushed most of you!! Only two teams fooled me more often than not (both in stupid C div.), and there was one with whom I was even in G. I was over 61% correct in all divisions (that bottom one was, of course, C), while I was at two-thirds or better in all other divisions. To post a final record of 238-82 for a nearly 75% correct rate is pretty rockin'. I would take that every single season.

Last but not least were my tournament predictions… Often when we jump to best-of-3, my picks get stronger, despite the fact that I'm picking semifinals and finals that I conceivably could have wrong before the matches are even played. But this season, I flippin' nailed these!!! I went 21-1 in the quarterfinals (with the missing result being a forfeit) and the only one I got wrong was a win by the last place C team that was winless until week 14. Then I went 10-4 in the semifinals, and even though I got both E semis wrong, I told you up front that those were where the action would be. Cap it off with 4 tournament winners correct, and I ended up 35-8 even though the pairings for the 21 of those aren't known until the earlier rounds finish! And my Sure Things were just that, and even my Dark Horse picks all almost came through with the glory! Oh, yeah.

JK'S TEAM-BY-TEAM, WEEK-BY-WEEK MATCH PREDICTION RESULTS

(I introduced this page thirty-eight seasons ago, and it has become almost expected as a newsletter staple. Feast your eyes on the success...)

For several years, many of you have taken no greater pleasure in your weekly darting endeavors than to email or text me and point out to me just how wrong I was in my prediction of your match result. On a related note, I have noticed that many of you seem to have relatively selective memories saving only the weeks when I was wrong. Further, many others of you regularly embellish your statistics of how often you fool me. It's not so easy to get away with those rambles anymore, however, as you can see below. Each W is a week when I picked your match correctly, and each L is one I picked incorrectly. Division totals are to the right of the team totals, weekly totals are at the bottom, and in the space between the 14 weeks and the team totals, the one 'o' symbol indicate the team for which I was only 0.500, and the two 'x' symbols indicate the teams that fooled me more often than not. [Oh, I soooo owned most of you this season. And by "most of you," I mostly mean everything outside of C division. That infernal C division had two teams that I think make it their life's purpose to go against my picks. Stupid Sanchez and Bandits... - JK]

THIS SEASON'S TRIVIA QUESTIONS… REVISITED

I now run this column during seasons in which I've included trivia questions all season. Each question is listed exactly as it was during the season, so there is potential for a question to now be out of date, but it's usually not too much of a problem. Each question is listed under the week number when it ran, and the answers follow the questions. No peeking…

Week 8 question: We've got 2 divisions that already have a team 2 matches ahead of the pack, so it looks like at least one division might be clinched a little early. In light of that… in the 53 seasons during which I've been the statistician, how many of those seasons had ZERO divisions that were clinched before the week 14 matches?

Week 9 question: Last week, Element came within one SCkt of posting a 48-0 season total against a single opponent. How many times in my 53 seasons as statistician has a team completed the double-shutout against an opponent, and who/when was it?

Week 10 question: This is my 54th season as statistician, and last week we had our first forfeit of the season. In how many of my 54 seasons here have we had 0 regular season forfeits?

Week 11 question: Ok, since it's apparently tough to get teams to show up every week, let's build on that one… What is the greatest number of teams to have at least one regular season forfeit in a single season (at least in my 54 seasons as the statistician, as per usual)?

Week 12 question: The recent NC State Championships saw 4 current RDL members bring home state titles. In total, how many current RDL members have ever won an NC States event (this year's event was the 32nd year with a tournament in the last 34 years, as the Covid-19 pandemic squashed it for two years)?

Week 13 question: With "A" division being the league cap such that top teams don't move up and out like in lower divisions, there sometimes forms a situation where teams that are 'about the 7th best in the league' end up without space to move up and stay, and they can bounce between A and B in consecutive seasons. During my 54-season tenure as the RDL statistician, what it the greatest number of directly consecutive seasons during which a team altered back and forth between A and B divisions?

Week 14 question: As we wind down our singles races for the season, how about a singles win percentage question here… In my 54 seasons as statistician, what is the greatest number of teams in a division that have had a player in the top 8 (for 8-team divs.) or top 7 (for 7-team divisions) in the final divisional singles standings? (note: there have been 398 divisions in those 54 seasons)

Week 8 answer: During my tenure as statistician, there have been 9 instances of no division being clinched prior to completion of the week 13 matches. Those happened in the Spring 2000, Spring 2001, Spring 2005, Spring 2006, Spring 2007, Fall 2013, Spring 2014, Fall 2014 & Spring 2015 seasons (what is it with spring seasons, right?). But it wasn't until just last season that we ever had a set of divisions with ZERO division races clinched prior to the final night of the season. Three of the seven divisions were going to need a couple big scores to change the standings, but the fact remains that it was indeed possible in every division. So in some ways, last season was the most dramatic ever in the RDL's history. [Answer update for the banquet Tons: both teams did clinch by week 13 this season.]

Week 9 answer: In my nearly 28 years as statistician, only one team has ever pulled the double-shutout of an opponent. And not only that, but that one team is the only team to ever win two matches by 24-0 scores in the same season, regardless of opponent. In the Spring 2008 season, Element X in A division (yes, the 10th Element team) got it all to fall just right against Nine Lives. The number of fluky right-side-of-the-wire outcomes you need to make that happen is kinda huge, so it's not that surprising that it has only happened once. Side note: while that Nine Lives squad was one of only three teams to ever get blanked twice in a season, they are NOT tied for the record for the most of those in one season - the Spring 2007 Cheap Shots squad in A division actually got blanked by three different teams (but not twice to any of them). [Answer update for the banquet Tons: we did have one shutout this season, but only one, so no addition to this category.]

Week 10 answer: Geez, I guess it really is difficult to get a regular weeknight squad week after week. In my 54 seasons here, we have had only TWO seasons when we didn't have at least one regular season forfeit. Spring 2001 and Spring 2022 (barely coming out of the pandemic on that one!) are the only two seasons; both were 7-division seasons, and the Spring 2001 season had several full 8-team divisions (meaning that teams in those divisions had no byes for nights off). Almost as stunning is the fact that we've only had five other seasons with as few as one regular season forfeit. [Answer update for the banquet Tons: and yep, we had two teams forfeit a match this season. But it DID take all the way to week 14 to have that second one, so we almost added to this answer.]

Week 11 answer: In the Fall 2013 season, we had TEN teams (out of the 64 we had that season) forfeit one time each. Also, for those who were thinking there was some holiday crossover or some bad weather week, those forfeits were actually sprinkled all through the season; just an odd series of one-time issues up and down the divisions that season.

Week 12 answer: Of this season's 467 league members, 24 have won at least one start shirt. Here they are, with number of events won over the years: 1 each - Allyson Blackwelder (of Off Const.-Reboot), Jimmy Davis (of Double In Stumble Out), Kyle Gaulthier (of Liver Alliance), Pat Gibson (of The Bullies), Simon Healy (of Consistently Inconsistent), Tony Horton (of Darty Minds), Michael Johnson (of The Bullies), and Chad Massengill (of Ring of Elements); 2 each - Deborah Blackwelder (of Trips Are For Kids), Nicole Kubel (of Off Constantly-Reboot), and Samantha Wilson (of Put It on Matt's Tab); 3 each - Craig Elder (of The Bullies), Mike Hall (of Consistently Inconsistent), and Allen Smith (of Ring of Elements); 4 each - Jimmie Jones (of The Bullies) and Michelle Stacy (of Shark Shooters); 5 each - Mike Seward (of Liver Alliance); 6 each - Dan Naylor (of The Bullies), Stevie Phillips (of Ring of Elements), and Wil Tan (of Ring of Elements); 7 titles - Alex Spellman (of The Bullies); 10 titles - Phillip Eastmead (of Double In Stumble Out); 19 titles - Tom Brown (of Ring of Elements); and 31 titles - Robbie Phillips (of Ring of Elements).

Week 13 answers: In looking back, it turns out that there have 11 times during my tenure that a team has been in a BABA or ABAB cycle for at least 4 consecutive seasons. But only four of those streaks have reached FIVE seasons (and none have reached six seasons). The Scott Butters-led drinking name teams (Alcohol Free For All, Absolut Confusion, Pour Boys, Slop and Shots, Lager Heads) went ABABA starting in Fall 2011. And Methodical Madness went BABAB starting in Fall 2014. But the real yoyo king team here is Cheap Shots (including one season as One and Done), who had TWO five-season yoyo strings! The Cheap Shots went ABABA starting in Spring 2003, and then just a year after that string, they also went BABAB starting in the Fall 2006 season. [Answer update for the banquet Tons: we don't have any current five-season strings, but if the team numbers and rosters from this season hold steady next season, both Put It on Matt's Tab and Darty Minds will reach their fourth in the cycle this spring.]

Week 14 answer: Ok, there was a lot more spreading of success across teams than I think I expected. 24 times during my 54 season tenure, the top 7 in singles in a 7-team division featured players from 6 teams. Better than that, 11 times in an 8-team division, the top 8 in singles featured players from 7 teams. And the Mac Daddy season of them all was the Spring 2003 G division, which had 7 teams and a final singles standings with a player from ALL SEVEN TEAMS in the top 7. That's awesome. Side note… of these 36 seasons, 0 were in A div., 4 were in B, 7 were in C, 3 were in D, 9 were in E, 6 were in F, 4 were in G, and 3 were in H.

[Like the last many seasons, we used three-song groups each week and also included a theme each and every week. Added a layer to the game for everybody and has been quite popular. Here are the themes for each week*, including the week 14 fifteen-song set that was super popular in terms of people loving the theme, but that was really hard in terms of picking out a good number of the songs. - JK]*

Week 2 theme: To go back and repeat something. Ya know… like Alex Spellman did when he went back and defended his ESPN Bullshooter championship in South Carolina. Week 3 theme: The amazing 15-minute storm two Tuesdays ago that freakin' half-destroyed Durham. There was nothing, clouds and wind rolled in, a whole bunch of thunder rumbled for 15 minutes, and then trees were laying all over houses and power lines citywide. Just nuts. Luckily for me, my house was spared. Week 4 theme: The only thing unstoppable, that is taking it all, and doing nothing but winning around here, is Alex Spellman. So yeah, this set was about the constant stream of national victories that I continued reporting yet again in last week's Tons. Amazing stuff. Week 5 theme: Well, I was just at a very joyous wedding, and there was a lot of kissing (both the happy couple and a lot of the happy guests!). So, you got a set of kissy songs! Week 6 theme: Completely a tribute to the nearly perfect 20-dart string by Robbie Phillips that I highlighted in last week's Tons. One of the most immediate and obvious theme choices that has come to me in years. Week 7 theme: Believing in yourself and working toward something until you finally reach it. Whatever context you want… the guys making the World Cup and the World Championships, your own promotion at work, going back to school, whatever. Just believing and getting there. Week 8 theme: It's sort of possible that your scoresheet photo confirmations might have been coming from Jamaica. Purely random that I'm way more tan this week than I was last week… Week 9 theme: The only thing these songs have in common is that they contain some of the dumbest lyrics in the history of popular music. Beat's so big, I'm steppin' on leprechauns?? Take your baby by the heel?? Wake up the cake, it's a lake she's kissin' me?? Seriously, what in the ever-lovin' hell is this crap!? Sure, I sing along and all that, but that doesn't make these not stupid. Week 10 theme: It's all about 'behind.' Is it being behind? Is it your backside? Whichever… I don't care. It's just behind. Get behind the idea, dammit. Week 11 theme: All that weird stuff… bizarre, strange, odd. Pretty much most of us around here. Week 12 theme: Well, clearly it's all about that Sunday morning… Yep, even Easy is just… easy like Sunday morning. Week 13 theme: It was all about monsters, in honor of Halloween! Week 14 theme: The main theme songs to James Bond movies! And they're listed in order of movie release date (so we went ahead and listed the year of release with each of the artists in the answers above.

THE NEW STANDARD!!

At one point earlier this season, I ran a few items regarding scorekeeping, handwriting, etc. And in response to one of those, I received the two score-board images I've included here. Look at these things! How friggin' nerdy and perfect are these?!?! The circles, the digits, even the perfect angles of the crossout lines on the '01 turns. This is art. (These would take me so long to write these this neatly. And I'm generally considered a pretty neat writer!) Sooo… who is this uber-neat, uber-nerd chalker that you all not-so-secretly wish was your personal chalker for your games? It's Kenn Gardner of Trips Are For Kids. He said the chalking usually receives more comments than the game, and that it's their "secret weapon to distract opponents' attention from the game. Which… hasn't worked nearly as well as hoped this season."

PDC WORLD DARTS CHAMPIONSHIP

Ok, check ths out… I have had the honor of reporting a lot of very cool stuff that the top RDL throwers have done over the years, but this one ranks right up there with any of the best. Alex Spellman (of The Bullies) earned a spot in the Paddy Power World Darts Championship! He is now stepping out of the Deck and Sharky's and Mackey's, and toeing the oche at the Alexandra Palace. Yes, the Ally Pally!! And yep, he is a single win away from taking on the guys you all watch on PDC TV and in the Premier League. The entire event starts on Dec. 15, but Spellman doesn't play until Wednesday, Dec. 20th, when he takes on Ryan Joyce, with the winner advancing to face Stephen Bunting on Saturday, Dec. 23rd. YEP, I'LL SETTLE THIS - #003

Alright, we started this column for the first time early last season, and it was immediately popular. I guess people like to argue (or to just have somebody on their side, I suppose). Anyway, I will present here something in regular life that seems to engender some debate, and then I will simply tell you which side is obviously correct. Note that this is not a column titled "send me your crazy-ass defenses of you being on the wrong side of these items." I'm telling you which side is right, and that's just the end of it. :o)

Anyway, today's item that I'm settling for us, once and for all: When you're at a restaurant that has a line to place an order, people who come in and send someone from their party to swoop in like a vulture and take the only available table, long before they ever get to the counter to order… those people are the core of all problems and annoyances. If they would simply wait and take a table after they've placed their order like the regular humans in the place, there would be much more flow, much less anxiety, and altogether fewer problems for everybody. But these people aren't the regular humans in the place… they're overly self-important and do not care that they are actually taking a table for absolutely nothing for the next twenty minutes. They want the table, it's theirs, don't question them. And too bad that life is worse for everyone else who just waited in line, placed their order, and only then became actual customers who should take up a place. ... Don't pre-hold tables, you selfish a-holes.

Some matches are just not like other matches. This season's A division quarterfinal against Consistently Inconsistent was one of those for me (and probably most of my team). When I walked in, the opposing fill-in captain Keith Gibbs handed me their scoresheet, with all four sets pre-listed (including their two blockers each set)! (I immediately put it away and didn't use it.) And then, as the night went on, little pictures of my teammate Kenny Persson (who wasn't even there) began appearing everywhere thanks to Gibbs. On the walls, on ceiling fans, on salt shakers (as seen here)... Just literal dozens of them

THIS "A" DIVISION FINAL WAS… DIFFERENT

We pretty often have a bit of a writeup of the A division final here in the banquet Tons, especially since The Bullies and Element began waging the best series of battles in league history. And in a lot of ways, this past Wednesday's final fit that bill.. There were perfect throws, guys popping 120-Ins multiple times in the same set, one of the best diddle sequences I've ever seen, a 160-In, and a league-record-tying game (see right column). And at the end, Pat Gibson clinched it all with a Ton finish of 20/40/40. So there was quite a lot of very impressive stuff. But… there was also, for the first time, a lot of… weird. Guys threw at closed numbers. A guy misread the scoreboard and threw a great shot that didn't actually end the game. A guy touched his dart in the board mid-turn. And heck, I don't know what else… any one of those things would pretty much be a first in this matchup, but to have them all in one match was super odd. Did we all of a sudden all get old at the same time?! No way, man, I'm not accepting that. Just an aberration, and I'm sticking to that. Sadly (for us), when several of The Bullies threw, the aberrations were the darts that didn't land in the triple. Dangit.

And that diddle sequence? In the very first pairing of the night on the right board, Alex Spellman of The Bullies and Stevie Phillips of Element went SEVEN rounds of diddles. 11 single bulls and 3 double bulls, with no misses. Phillips's double in round 7 took it. Whoa, yo.

THE FAMILY YOU CHOOSE…

After seeing all the happy team photos below (and on page 4), I couldn't help but share this photo too. I kinda meant to a while ago, but it just never fit, so instead it lives here now. This is nothing but a great example of why my life is a very lucky one. The folks here are 8 members of my team (Ring of Elements), plus a few of the players' wives (including my own!), who are probably each even better than my actual team-mates here. This goofy ridiculousness was taken at the wedding of Stevie Phillips (middle row, left side, big pimpin' hat), which was just another extremely happy and fun day in what is now more than a couple decades of hanging out with these fabulous people. I can't convey to you how blessed I have been, and I genuinely love these folks. I wish for all of you the opportunity to pick yourself a family as valuable as this one. Many of these people are ridiculously talented dart throwers, but they are even better people. I'm honored and humbled that they would even choose to hang out with me. (Also, yes, these are our regular clothes, and this is how we were all dressed when we arrived at the wedding. Don't just us.)

RDL 301 RECORD TIED AGAIN!!

I teased this item in two ways up above… on the left I told you that there was a record tied in the A final, and on the right I reminded you that many of my teammates are silly good at darts. Well, Chad Massengill (wraparound space shades, no hat, above) of Ring of Elements pitched the league's 14th 7-dart 301 game in the A final (after teammate Robbie Phillips threw the 13th during the season). Massengill did not add to the list of 10 people who have done it though, as he pitched a 7-darter in the tournament last season too!

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK

Nowadays, it's a fact… this column has become a banquet Tons staple. I have no idea why so many are so keen on taking a peek into the oddness that is my head, but you are. So without further ado, let's open up my head again and see what falls out. Some of these observations are dart-related, and some of them clearly are not. As always, this is just about the last thing that I'm writing and this season is certainly no exception… soooo, also as always not even I know what's about to hit the page…

-- For the love of God, people, learn what the hell is supposed to happen when you reach a Free-Flowing Right Turn!! Why do I keep ending up basically parked at these?! Turn. Go. Before I shove your butt into the intersection. Ohmigod, you're killin' me.

-- On a somewhat related note, do any of you know what a solid while line between lanes traveling in the same direction means? Yeah, I didn't think so.

-- It's the holiday season… which is also known as Christmas movie season in some homes. And those would be any home with the Hallmark Channel and a middle-aged woman. Want to guess what I have in my house? But it's ok, I'm completely used to them and their 8-10 repetitive film tropes and their 4-5 dramatic devices. I'm completely ok with watching another big business executive get stranded in a small town. Or another committed but unsure partner return to their small town family home and find true love. Or another regular person who either finds out that they are royalty, or that the person they've been dating for a year is actually royalty. And I'm even ok with the fact that in 93% of the movies (which is roughly 93 per year, given that they make about a damn hundred new ones each year), somebody is going to overhear just the smallest part of a conversation that will give them the most fatalistic expectation for their relationship for the remainder of time, without waiting to hear the rest or even asking the person about it. But the one thing with which I'm not ok? The fact that if you somehow end up with a Lifetime Channel Christmas movie on instead, the sound quality is barely better than a junior high school film project. How does a channel with that much money make movies where the sound doesn't even feel associated with the mouths moving on the screen?

-- Earlier this season, we were at a match at our home bar when a team from a different division came in to get ready for their own match. When two of the ladies on the team arrived, they hurriedly ran into the restroom near our boards, and then emerged in fully different outfits. It was like they had a Superman moment, and that was their magic phone booth. I have no idea if it helped them, but it was pretty funny to see. I won't call out who it was, but if they're reading this, they know who they are. :o)

-- The NBA In-Season Tournament is kind of a good choice for an addition, and I will admit that it actually raised some interest in the sport during a time period of the season that is generally a pretty boring slog. So a big win in that context. But it's also a project in which they are still learning (or at least I hope it is). They loosely based the design on the European Cup play, with a group stage followed by a set of knockout rounds. But they missed an important feature… playing the last set of group stage games at the same time. Some of the teams finished hours or even a day earlier than others, and the teams lucky enough to play in the last game of the group knew exactly what they needed to advance (just a win? a win by a certain number of points?). It was a first pass at this, so it's forgivable, but if they repeat that, it won't be. Heck, even the NFL waits to set the game times for the week 18 games so that equal competitors don't have unequal information as they play.

-- My wife showed me a great meme yesterday. It was something like "You know what you have never heard a guy say? She would be a lot hotter if she had really long eyelashes." And yep, on behalf of men, I can confirm the accuracy of this one.

-- Have you ever seen that ad (well, it's actually a lot of ads that are all similar but not quite the same) for paper plates where they are showing you all the things that could happen if you use cheap ones? My main issue with those ads is 'who the heck is just going around serving lasagna in two-pound portions that they basically throw at your plate from a height so extreme that it isn't even on camera?!'

-- Ok, so here's a language laziness that drives me nuts. I just hate that any time someone describes a person addicted to something, or more likely just a really big fan of something, they describe them as an "insert item"-aholic. A chocolate lover is a chocaholic. A potato chip eater is a chipaholic. Somebody who loves to go throw darts is a dartaholic. Etc. The problem here is that they are basing that lazy suffix on the term for a person with an alcohol addiction… an alcoholic. Look at that word, please. The "ohol" portion in the middle is part of the word alcohol. The word only has "ic" added to describe a portion addicted to that item. So when you add "aholic" (which is actually different than the more accurate "oholic", but that's another issue), you are actually pulling in more than half of the word alcohol into what-ever dumb thing you are saying. Cut it the hell out.

-- Alright, here's one that is likely only for a small handful of you (or maybe for some who are just very curious after I describe it). Do you ever watch any anime? And I don't mean just very mainstream stuff like Pokemon and Dragon Ball Z. I mean actual Japanese anime series. I personally generally don't, but I'll do anything with our boys, and a couple of them just love it, so I'm completely in (at least when I'm hanging out with them). And here is where the second question half comes in. Are you at all interested in seeing what might be the most amazingly non-PC, inappropriate, crude, insulting, racist, sexist, ageist, religiously discriminating series of comments in a show ever? (It's all speech, no bad images or physical abuse or anything, it's a pretty tame cartoon image.) Well, then Ghost Stories - English Dub is for you. The series is just called Ghost Stories, but the important distinction is that you have to see the version dubbed in English to have this remarkable experience. The version with subtitles is just the regular anime story. But for some reason, the company that made the original anime just wanted to very quickly get a version out with English speaking over it, and they somehow told the company there were no rules as long as it was a hit. The dubbing company just tossed out the entire regular script and made up the most offensive script ever instead. And it somehow got released like that. It's soooo offensive. You almost have to hear it to believe it. But you probably have to have Crunchyroll online anime channel to get it, which isn't very standard (HBO Max used to include it). If you hunt it out, I warn you… it is amazing in how endlessly offensive it can be. Which is what has made it a cult classic and a historical marker in anime history.

-- Can someone tell me why Aaron Rodgers is so hell bent on beating the "nobody has ever respected us" and "everybody is always so sure we are out" and "we just need to prove all the naysayers wrong" drums, year after year? When he was in Green Bay, now that he is in New York, it's the same droning. People constantly say he might be the best passer ever, that he is the reason a bad team can have hope for a title, etc. Is the woe-is-me no-respect card what motivates him even after all this time?

TOP W/L RECORDS AND ASP AVERAGES, SP1996 TO FA2023

In light of Robbie Phillips posting one of the single greatest seasons in league history (in almost every category), I've compiled this list of the best statistical outputs from the last 54 seasons (as that is the time during which I have been statistician). The statistical records prior to that (pre-1996) are not quite as complete, at least in the newsletter issues that have been made available to me thus far. Below are the best singles records, overall records, and ASP averages (both in A division, and then also in all non-A-divisions combined). (This season in bold.) (* = Covid-shortened season)

STATE MEETING RESULTS - SPECIFICS FOR 2024 SEASON

For 2024, the captains did indeed decide to keep going with our standard switch back to an East/West season. There will be the same 12 teams in both the NCCDL and the NCLC, but the Wilmington NCCDL team is moving to Fayetteville. (Also, Wake Forest has joined the NCDO with plans of playing in the NCCDL in 2025.) The NCCDL West division will have Asheville, Boone, Pineville, Lake Norman, Piedmont, and Capital Area. The NCCDL East division will have Chapel Hill, Durham, Raleigh, Jacksonville, Wilmington, and Port City. Teams will play a single round-robin within the division, and will also face three inter-division opponents, for a total of eight matches per team. The NCLC will have similar divisions and match numbers, with the Charlotte NCLC team paired with the Boone NCCDL team, and the Fuquay-Varina NCLC team paired with the Chapel Hill NCCDL team. (And the Fayetteville NCCDL team will remain paired with the Wilmington NCLC team.)

Additional important scheduling note: In a slight change from the 2023 precedent, the 2024 end-of-season tournament will be moved back to an open weekend in mid-October, with exact dates based around other event conflicts each year.

HISTORY OF THE NCCDL…

It was back in 1995 that Tim Lane (then the captain of the Raleigh NCCDL team) first introduced the idea of the statewide year-long season style of play to replace the old "one team holds the cup against a string of challengers" sytem. It's still possibly the most popular and successful idea ever for anything larger than a local league. Here are the 28 tournament final results so far:

1996: Raleigh over Charlotte
1997: Piedmont over Durham
1998: Piedmont over Raleigh/Charlotte(?)
1999: Wilmington over Raleigh/Charlotte(?)
2000: Durham over Charlotte
2001: Durham over Wilmington
2002: Wilmington over Durham
2003: Wilmington over Durham
2004: Wilmington over Durham
2005: Durham over Wilmington
2006: Durham over Charlotte
2007: Durham over Charlotte
2008: Durham over Charlotte
2009: Wilmington over Charlotte
2010: Wilmington over Durham
2011: Durham over Lake Norman
2012: Durham over Wilmington
2013: Wilmington over Lake Norman
2014: Durham over Wilmington
2015: Wilmington over Piedmont
2016: Wilmington over Durham
2017: Wilmington over Durham
2018: Wilmington over Durham
2019: Durham over Wilmington
2020: (no tournament - pandemic)
2021: Wilmington over Durham
2022: Durham over Wilmington
2023: Wilmington over Durham

My annual request to the NCLC Ladies: if any of you have a history of the results like the one above for the NCCDL, I would love to have a copy of those so I can periodically run an NCLC history as well. Drop me a line please if you're willing to share.

The Spring Session of the Raleigh Dart League for the Banquet, Saturday, May 18, 2024 Issue #JK880

The "Thirteen Total Points To A Set of Mugs" Edition

TOURNAMENT WINNERS

"A" Division - Element XL (13-7)

Element completes the season/tournament double by playing only ONE tournament match, after earning a first-round bye and then receiving only the fourth semifinals forfeit (and first in A division) in the twenty-eight and a half years since I became RDL statistician.

"B" Division - Dart Attack (13-11)

After posting the league's most dominant margin of victory in the season, Dart Attack somehow got pushed much more heavily in the tournament, winning by scores of 13-9, 13-9 and 13-11. But in the end, they were one of only two undefeated teams this season.

"C" Division - The Outlaws (14-4)

In the division I predicted could be a hot mess, The Outlaws roll to the biggest finals margin of victory, in one of the only two divisions that didn't have either of its top two seeds in the final.

"D" Division - DD-214 (13-9)

The division that produced one of the two craziest regular season races continued to bring the drama in the tournament, with the #4 seed DD-214 being the lowest seed in any division to take the Mugs, taking out the top two seeds without seeing the last 501.

"E" Division - Death Throw (14-10)

Death Throw's tournament run extends their win streak to seven matches (with a 10-1 record since week 6, after starting out 2-4). E joined C division as the only other one without either of the top two regular season finishers playing in the tournament final.

"F" Division - Rippin Darts (13-5)

Rippin thanks Nein Mark for taking out the undefeated Zero Dart in the semifinals by smoking them in the finals, in one of only two finals that ended in DCkt. Which was mostly surprising because their regular season matchups were tight barnburners.

"G" Division - Bottoms Up (14-10)

The very aptly named Bottoms Up has metamorphosed from a many-season cellar dweller to a top two regular season finish and now a tournament title. Up does indeed seem to be the right direction for the Bottoms, who end the Spring on a 10-1 match run.

REGULAR SEASON WINNERS

"A" Division - Element XL (12 wins, 0 losses)
2nd place - The Bullies

"B" Division - Dart Attack (14 wins, 0 losses)

We got a few photos a couple years ago, and… it was kind of great.. So this was a little minor tradition that I certainly wanted to encourage, and I asked the teams going into the tournament finals to consider taking a team photo and sharing it with us. This is one of my favorite items here. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's really about 'team' happiness anyway.)

SPRING 2024 PENALTY SUMMARY

Another season will almost no penalties! To be fair, we had no election ballots and no fifth week captains' meeting, so two of the most global sources were off the table this time around, but this is still a tiny penalty list even in light of that. Leaguewide, we had only THREE penalties for the entire season, and they were garnered by only two teams. All of A, B, C, D and F divisions were penalty-free, and the three penalties we did have were all for late scoresheets (for a total loss of 48 points). Dart Side in E got one, with no effect on the E standings, so it's Killer Dee's in G who were this season's biggest penalty losers. The Dee's got two penalties for a total of 32 points, and dropped from 3rd to 4th. The Dee's actually would have been only 4 points out of 2nd, which they could've erased with just one more doubles against Bottoms Up in week 12. Eek.

SPRING 2024 TIEBREAKER SUMMARY

A lot more tiebreaker drama this season! 42 (40 during the season, 2 in in the tournaments)! B, C and E were particularly extra leg drama heavy. B and E each had 10, C had 9 (with 1 in the postseason), D had 6 (with 1 in the postseason), G had 4, F had only 2, and A had only 1 (which was, of course, between Element and The Bullies, yet again).

While 6 teams played three tiebreakers, there were also 6 that had four each, all in B, C and E divisions (Inconsistently Consistent, Trips Are For Kids, Double In Stumble Out, Hump Day!, Shooter McGavin, and Bangin The Wire). So they can all share the Cardiac Kids award, I guess. The Heartbreak Award certainly goes to Hump Day!, as not only were they the only team to lose three, but one of those was a tourney loss.

HIT A NEWLY ADDED SUMMER BLIND DRAW?

UPPER DECK

As in many previous years, throughout the summer break the Upper Deck will be adding a weekly Wednesday blind draw for all those who just want to keep their regular dart night out rolling through the break. 8 pm start, just like normal Deck Fridays.. And they'll be adding a double shot as well, so head on over!

OR MAYBE YOU WANT TO ADD ANOTHER LEAGUE?

Looking to add a second league this coming season? Not all of them are perfectly aligned for immediate signups, but some are! And they're all pretty cool, so give them a look. Check in on the websites listed below periodically to get the most updated information for this and other upcoming seasons.

Brass Tap & Billiards Summer League!!

Taylor Caldwell, RDL's own League Treasurer, will once again be hosting a summer league at Brass Tap & Billiards (3316 Capital Boulevard, in the Starmount Shopping Center). $20 per person, and the "draft" will be held May 22nd (probably with a blind draw following). Play will start May 29th and run through July 24th. There's a cap of 48 regular players, with 8 players per team, but they've now added a "substitute player" system as well. Email Taylor (info on page 8) to sign up and arrange payment (also send her your current RDL division).

Triangle Dart League (TDL - Chapel Hill & Durham)

You have a bit more time to jump over to the TDL. Registration for their Fall season will be held on Thursday, July 18th at 7pm, at The Tavern in downtown Durham. Play will begin on August 1st. The teams in TDL consist of 6-10 players per team, and dues are $20/player per season (I think). Recent seasons have used bars in both Chapel Hill and Durham, but I suspect that might vary a bit each season, based on team preferences and signups. Check www.ibiblio.org/ncdarts/tdl/ for updates.

Bull City Dart League (BCDL - Durham)

You also have quite a bit of time if you happen to be interested in trying out one of the very few handicapped steel-tip leagues anywhere, maybe the BCDL is in your future. The next season will not register until August, but that just means you have lots of time to set up your new roster. Teams in the BCDL have 4-8 players, dues are $25 per player per season (some of the host establishments cover half or all of those, so maybe ask around), and the home bars are primarily in RTP and the downtown Durham area. The best information (and any updates in the coming weeks) can be found at:

www.thebcdl.org That website also includes a wealth of information about the league and its rules, so if you're just interested in seeing how the league applies a handicap system to a steel-tip league, you can find all of that there, including rules, statistics, and scoresheet examples.

American Dart League (ADL - many area locations)

The ADL is actually a compilation of many singles and team leagues, hosted on Mondays, Tuesday, Thursdays, and/or Sundays. Leagues are smaller (4-12 individuals or teams per league), and are run at Bud's Tavern, Benny's Billiards, Back Then Bar and Grill, Big Daddy's, both Cleveland Draft Houses, among others (each league is housed fully within its particular host establishment). Full listings of where and when each league is being played can be found in their multiple posts in the RDL Facebook group, and you can send them a Facebook direct message if you are interested in signing up.

Will Bennett	Trips Are For Kids	This guy is an A thrower every day.
Matt Byrne	Inconsistently Consi	What a pickup for Mug runners up.
Kent Butters	Double In, Stumble	Bit of a slow 301 start, but then great.
Keith Gibbs	Inconsistently Consi	Was dominant up until the 501 slide.
Mike Jones	Dart Attack	Top shot for undefeated B champs.
Zeek Lea	Dart Attack	The other big reason for perfect season.
Trey Rodgers	Double In, Stumble	Two-thirds+ winner in all four sets.
John Suan	Dart Attack	Incredible that he was third wheel here.

"C" Division

Austin Bell	Darty Sanchez	Could really use more doubles wins.
Tim Bunn	Hump Day!	Huge singles run, and good in doubles.
Kevin Olson	Off Constantly-Reb	Too bad big gun missed four matches.
Mike Robinson	Darty Sanchez	Cricket specialist just got by in the '01s.
Brian Smith	The Outlaws	Mug captain maybe just sits in 501.
Kevin Stewart	Shooter McGavin	Nothing flashy, just solid all across.
J.J. Tant	The Outlaws	Yet another great season across all sets.
Eric Trefzger	Darty Sanchez	Started hot, slips a bit from 301 to 501.

"D" Division

Tommy Beaird	DD-214	Mug captain led his team in everything.
Bryan Hartley	Village Idiots	Some really big spikes with a few lulls.
Dustin Jones	Reload	Just a beast with a huge singles record.
Brian Oullette	DD-214	Undefeated SCkt covers for 301 slips.
Zach Powell	Red-eye Rangers	Three 8-1 sets to start the night out?
Jeromie Raper	Red-eye Rangers	Ok, so we just play him in the crickets.
Branden Roper	Reload	Newcomer to this page was excellent.
Josh Vivod	Village Idiots	Top winner for regular season champs.

"E" Division

Adam Barnes	Liquor Possee	When 9-5 is a bad set… uh, yes, please.
Silver Blanes	Liquor Possee	After a slow 301 start, won like a fiend.
Sean Bosier	Death Throw	The moderate SCkt is tough to explain.
Tyler Bradshaw	Death Throw	Got better and better with every set.
Matt Furdon	Dart Side of the Mo	Started hot, still decent in doubles sets.
Mike Millius	Dart Side of the Mo	32-10 in the first three sets cover for 501.
Chris Moody	Runs with Corks	Ummmm…. What the heck is that 501?
Phyllis Sweet	Runs with Corks	Torched to an 85% cricket win rate.

"F" Division (oh, there were so many options here)

Chad Clark	Zero Dart Ton 80	Welcome to the league, new bad ass #1.
Rick DeMattos	Zero Dart Ton 80	Welcome to the league, new bad ass #2.
Thorbjorn Gylfaso	Rippin Darts	13-0 (not 14) in SCkt is tough to beat.
Guy Howes	Zero Dart Ton 80	Welcome to the league, new bad ass #3.
Roger Keim	Sofa Kings	Top reason the Kings finished top-four.
Chase McDonald	Rippin Darts	Super solid winner with ok 501, part 1.
Kevin Turner	Zero Dart Ton 80	This badass has already been up in A.
Gerald Updyke	Nein Mark	Super solid winner with ok 501, part 2.

"G" Division (dang, I needed about 11 for this set)

Matthew Bailey	21 Dart Salute	This team just couldn't buy some DCkt.
Rob Ehrmann	Killer Dee's	The league's only all-sets 10+ winner.
Mike Kelly	Killer Dee's	No more than 2 losses in any set. Nice.
John Kline	Darts and Crafts	Wow. Superb record for a newbie team.
Mike Lamb	Dart Vader's	11+ wins in each of the first three sets!
Evan McMillan	Bottoms Up	12-0 301 is stunning. Rest is also great.
Mike Raquet	That's What She Sai	Pretty obvious he usually plays higher.
Jerrell Swepson	Neighborhood Dart	Just needs to find a few more DCkt Ws.

QUICK STAT TIDBITS

-The Quadruple Double Award winners (double-digit wins in all 4 sections): With only three divisions playing with a bye, I thought we might get a handful with 10+ wins in every set in any of B, E, F or G divisions. But nope, this was still a pretty dang exclusive club this season. In the end, there were five players earning Honorable Mention with not just 9+ wins in every set, but also 10+ in three of them. Will Bennett of Trips Are For Kids did it in B division, Chad Clark and Guy Howes of Zero Dart Ton 80 did it in F division, and Mike Raquet of That's What She Said did it in G division. And outdoing those four and taking the top Honorable Mention spot is Pat Gibson of The Bullies, who did it in A division in only a 12-match season. Which brings us to our lone true member of the Quadruple Double Club this season: Rob Ehrmann of Killer Dee's in G division! And while Ehrmann's team did have 14 matches, he himself missed week 13 (and then sat a set in week 14), so he only had 12-13 shots in each set!
-IronMan/Woman Award: Three divisions (A, C, D) only played 12 matches, so obviously they're going to lag behind in this category unless something crazy happens. And things held to form... This season's IronMan is Donald Marler of The Dartifacts in F division with 66 games played. The honorable mentions for other division leaders included: Pat Gibson of The Bullies in A, with 49; Will Bennett of Trips Are For Kids in B, with 59; Ronnie Knott of Shooter McGavin in C, with 52; Dustin Jones of Reload in D, with 49; Gary Burney of Cheap Shots in E, with a stout 63; and Mark Boudreaux of 21 Dart Salute in G, with 57. Dang, some pretty top end throwers in that group - pretty often "guys playing every set" are passed by "guys on shorthanded teams."
-The Team Attendance Award winners: Alright, really nobody came close to the six-thrower ironman standard this season. The closest we had was four teams who relied solely on seven throwers throughout the season. There were two in C (The Outlaws, Shooter McGavin) and two in F (Rippin Darts, Nein Mark). All four teams used everyone pretty extensively (or dropped to short-handed sometimes), so these are all just kinda Honorable Mentions this time.

MY PRESEASON, WEEKLY, & TOURNEY PREDICTION RESULTS

As usual, I'm left with the option of trying to bluff my way through this part, or just telling the truth. And since I know some of you squirrel away every last thing I've ever written about your team, I will again give real results… bummer. Sometimes these results can border on embarrassing…

In my preseason picks (usually the toughest every season given imminent roster changes/additions), I had quite a bit of success. Almost nailed A fully, with just the bottom two flipped. Also almost nailed B, but I had Consistent on top of the heap instead of in 3rd. In C division, I overestimated Sanchez, and I had McGavin down in 3rd. As for D, I definitely had the Village Idiots and Red-eye Rangers too low. Then E was one of my worst divisions, as I had Possee down in 3rd, I oversold the Cheapies, and I undersold the Corkers. In F, I was close with all but two teams - I way oversold Triple Shot, and I didn't know the new Zero Dart team had such good shots. And then G was decent, with Vader being better than I expected and the Knights being quite a bit worse.

My weekly prediction results you can peruse pick-for-pick on the other side of this sheet of paper. As noted on that page, I owned most of you again this season!! Only three teams fooled me more often than not (and not by much), and only C and E fell down toward the 60% correct rate (while I rocked a 70-90% win rate in all the others). In the end, I posted a 255-93 final record for over a 73% correct hit rate. Been living beyond that 70% line for a while now…

Last but not least were my tournament predictions… Often when we jump to best-of-3, my picks get stronger, despite the fact that I'm picking semifinals and finals that I conceivably could have wrong before the matches are even played. This season, I started out strong, but kinda limped to the finish. After starting 21-4 in the quarterfinals (with the other three semifinalists advancing via byes), I posted a decent 9-5 record in the semifinals. But then I only got 2 of the 7 Mug winners correct. Ugh! That still leaves me at 32-14 (which is about 70% correct, even with having to pick rounds in advance), but I've done better in several recent seasons. Decent, just not super crushing here.

JK'S TEAM-BY-TEAM, WEEK-BY-WEEK MATCH PREDICTION RESULTS

(I introduced this page thirty-nine seasons ago, and it has become almost expected as a newsletter staple. Feast your eyes on the success...)

For several years, many of you have taken no greater pleasure in your weekly darting endeavors than to email or text me and point out to me just how wrong I was in my prediction of your match result. On a related note, I have noticed that many of you seem to have relatively selective memories saving only the weeks when I was wrong. Further, many others of you regularly embellish your statistics of how often you fool me. It's not so easy to get away with those rambles anymore, however, as you can see below. Each W is a week when I picked your match correctly, and each L is one I picked incorrectly. Division totals are to the right of the team totals, weekly totals are at the bottom, and in the space between the 14 weeks and the team totals, the one 'o' symbol indicate the team for which I was only 0.500, and the three 'x' symbols indicate the teams that fooled me more often than not. [Ok, nobody really got away from me by the end of the season. I started out pretty badly with a couple, but I fought back to nearly respectable with those. And I owned a bunch of teams. So very nearly more, as I lost soooo many 12-12 and 13-11 outcomes. - JK]

THIS SEASON'S TRIVIA QUESTIONS… REVISITED

I now run this column during seasons in which I've included trivia questions all season. Each question is listed exactly as it was during the season, so there is potential for a question to now be out of date, but it's usually not too much of a problem. Each question is listed under the week number when it ran, and the answers follow the questions. No peeking…

Week 7 question(s): This is our 6th season since the league play resumed after the Covid-19 pandemic. And not everything is the same in terms of teams that are here, or the consistency that some teams have. In light of that, how many teams have played all six post-Covid seasons with their same team name? How many of those continued as the same from before the pandemic break?

Week 8 question(s): Let's keep with the Covid break for one more here… In the 12 months before Covid kicked us to the curb in March 2020, 31 different establishments hosted RDL matches. How many of those 31 were not used in our return season of Fall 2021? How many of those missing in Fall 2021 have returned in the time since? And how many others are completely new to the league since Fall 2021? Can you name any in each category?

Week 9 question(s): Let's build on the home establishment front… In my 55 seasons as the statistician, how many different establishments have hosted RDL matches? What is the average number of seasons each has been part of the league? [I will run a page listing the most recent season of participation for each in next week's issue. I think most of you will be a little amazed…]

Week 10 question: (This is one requested by league member Robbie Phillips a handful of seasons ago, and I just never used it until now) What is the fewest number of darts that you can throw in a game of 501, with every turn totaling a prime number, and without hitting any single target (e.g., single-19) more than once? (and both single beds for any number count as just one target) [Yes, Robbie is a math nerd like me. He's just cooler about it.]

Week 11 question: In light of the stunning NCAA tournament run by the ACC champion North Carolina State Wolfpack (and I mean the men here, because the women reaching the same point has been way less "stunning"... and also, they weren't actually the ACC champs)… In my 54 seasons as the RDL statistician [Spring 1996 through Fall 2023], what team was the lowest seed to win a divisional tournament, and in what division? (And by "low seed," I of course mean lower-ranked team, not the lower seed number.)

Week 12 question: (Even though we have run versions of this one in Sp2023, and before that in Sp2011, I had a reader request for this one again) What is the worst single-season correct pick record I've had for a team (since Fa2003, the first season when we started keeping full team-by-team week-by-week pick records)?

Week 13 question: (another one by request, this time from Kevin Scott, who is one of our big fans of the math-style or puzzle-style trivia questions) How many distinct ways are there to take out 50, including one-dart, two-dart, and three-dart options? (and changed dart order does not count as different - e.g., s10/s8/d16 is the same as s8/s10/d16)

Week 14 question: (Let's update a question that we have run a few times over the years… well, decades now… that we last ran in the Fall 2016 season, I think) What is the greatest number of 1001s a team has played in a season (plus tournament)? (And as per usual, I can only answer this from Spring 1996 forward, as that is the amount of time I have been the statistician. League records before that point in time were, shall we say, a bit less granular.)

Week 7 answers: Of our 53 current teams, only 21 have played with the same team name in all six post-Covid seasons (The Bullies, Lunatic Fringe, and Why So Serious? in A division; One Armed Bandits and Nine Lives in B division; Darty Sanchez, Hump Day!, Off Constantly-Reboot, Menace 2 Sobriety, and Rif Raf in C div.; DD-214, Sharky's Machine, and Red-eye Rangers in D division; Cheap Shots, Death Throw, Dart Side of the Moon, and Bangin(g) the Wire in E division; Sofa Kings and Shark Shooters in F division; and The Neighborhood Dart Knights and We're Sexy & We Throw It in G division). All but three of those (The Bullies, Off Constantly-Reboot, and Dart Side of the Moon) also played under the same name before the Covid-19 pandemic as well.

Week 8 answers: Oops, first thing… there were 33 establishments in the prior 12 months, not 31. 21 were in all of Sp19, Fa19, and Sp20; 5 were in two of those three seasons; 7 were in only one of the three. And the actual answers... only 21 of those 33 were used in Fa21, with only 2 of the lost 12 returning at all since (The Big Easy; and Triple Barrel Tavern Fuquay, which came back for only one season). And we've had five brand new ones since: Benny's Billiards, D's Bottle Shop, London Bridge, Lonerider, & Oaklyn Springs Brewery.

Week 9 answers: Alright, you ready for this crazy answer? And before you ask, yes, I've already combined the data for bars that were a progression of places (e.g., Playtime Billiards / Harrison's / Train Station / Neighborhood), treating progressions like that as a single establishment (doing that for 13 different places). And even with those all collapsed into single entries, in my 55 seasons, there have been… ONE HUNDRED THIRTY-FOUR host establishments! Yes, 134. That is an astonishing number, no? And the average for those 134 is 10.2 seasons in the league. Only four have been in the league in all my 55 seasons: High Park Bar & Grille, Sharky's Place, Snooker's-Ridgewood, and The Upper Deck. [On page 6 of the week 10 Tons during this Spring 2024 season, I included a table of all 134 establishments, indicating the most recent season of participation for each, listed most recent to oldest. Due to its size, we will not recreate that here in the banquet issue, so look back to that issue if you are interested in seeing it.]

Week 10 answer: Well, we all know that it isn't possible to throw 501 in fewer than 9 darts, without restrictions. But 9 requires multiple hits of the high-value targets. Beyond that, we also know that the answer can't be 10, because a one-dart finish turn would mean that you didn't throw a prime value for that turn (for that same reason, the answer could never be 13 darts, 16 darts, or any number that ends with a one-dart turn). We also know that the answer can't be any value in an even-numbered turn, as an odd number of prime number turns will always leave an even number (and taking out an even number would mean that turn wasn't a prime number, so it could never be 10/11/12 or 16/17/18 darts, etc.). So at this point we are already left with only 14, 15, 20, 21 as candidates. And it turns out the answer is… 14 darts. There are several ways to do it, but one example would be: t20/t19/d25 = 167 leaving 334; t17/t16/d20 = 139 leaving 195; t18/t15/d16 = 131 leaving 64; t13/s7/s1 = 47 leaving 17; s13/d2 = 17 leaving 0 (so, turns of 167, 139, 131, 47, 17). [Congrats to Matt Heimbach & Gerald Updyke on nailing this one!]

Week 11 answer: Of the 391 divisional tournaments in that span (which of course does not include 7 Sp20 divisions that were cut off before reaching the tournaments), 362 were won by teams that were #1 to #4 seeds. Which means that 29 teams came through as pretty big upset winners. 14 times a #5 seed brought home Mugs, 11 times a #6 seed brought home Mugs, and FOUR times a #7 seed was the tournament champ. (A #8 seed has not won during my tenure, but 168 of those 391 divisions didn't even have an 8th team.) The four #7 seed tournament champions were: Excalibur of Fa13's B division, Dublin Dublout of Sp13's C division, Flying Aces of Sp99's D division, and the Mac Daddy upsetter of all time, the Bad News Beers of Sp06's G division (the only #7 seed champ from a 7-team division, meaning they are the only last-place regular season team to claim Mugs - but to be fair, they had "forfeited & penaltied" themselves from 6th place down to 7th; so, only kinda "last-ish").

Sidebar extra answer tidbit: Of those 29 #5-to-#7-seed winners, 7 were in B division, 6 were in C, 5 were in D, 1 was in E, 4 were in F,

Week 14, song #11 lyric: "Goddess on the mountain top, Burning like a silver flame, The summit of beauty and love"

Week 14, song #12: "Tell me, did you fall for a shooting star, One without a permanent scar?, And did you miss me while you were looking for yourself out there?"

Week 14, song #13 lyric: "...in my eyes, Like a diamond in the sky, How I wonder, Satellite strung from the moon, And the world your balloon"

Week 14, song #14 lyric: "Slowly walkin' down the hall, Faster than a cannonball, Where were you while we were getting high?"

Wk 14, #15: "If you want to battle you're in denial, Comin' from Uranus to check my style, Go ahead, put my rhymes on trial, Cast you off into exile"

YET ANOTHER AMAZING ACHIEVEMENT BY ONE OF OUR OWN

Nope, he's not an active member this season, but that's only because he has decided to devote even MORE time to top-end dart competition… but we still absolutely claim Alex Spellman (most recently of The Bullies just last season) among our RDL family. And he just went up to the Championship Darts Circuit "Cross Border Challenge" and friggin' went off!! The Challenge is an annual event pitting eight of the top American throwers (this year featuring Doug Boehm, Jason Brandon, Stowe Buntz, Larry Butler, Leonard Gates, Danny Lauby, Alex Spellman, and Jules Van Dongen) against eight of the top Canadian throwers (this year featuring Sylvain Bourdeau, David Cameron, Jim Long, Jake MacMillan, John Part, Jacob Taylor, Steve Warnock, and Keith Way). The event was held on April 12th and 13th in Indiana, and very quickly became a bit of a Spellman Invitational this year. Spellman played in what I believe was the very first match of the event against Sylvain Bourdeau, and after building a modest 3-legs-to-2 lead, Spellman added his name to a very illustrious list. Spellman led off the sixth leg with a pretty little 180. Then he followed that with… another 180. And then… triple-20… triple-19… double-12!!! A live broadcast 9-darter in one of the CDC's showcase events!! (see top right photo for the moment he buried it; and look how interested Bourdeau was… he celebrated more than Alex did!) The crowd went absolutely nuts, as would be expected (see lower right photo, including a running round of high fives). Want to watch it yourself? Well, you're in luck. Here are two links to it (the first is the more "official" angle, and the second is one featuring fan/crowd cheering/footage):
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=wuJScD9mYaY
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=sDMgWP07Yb4

And how did the rest of the tournament go, you ask? Well, Spellman completed the 5-2 win over Bourdeau, then he took out Keith Way with another 5-2 score in the quarterfinals, followed by a 6-5 win over Jake MacMillan in the semifinals. And in the finals, Spellman just kept on rolling, eking out a 7-6 win over David Cameron for the title!! Spellman posted a 93.44 scoring average for the event that was at least 2.78 higher than all other players except one who dropped his match in the opening round. A win for the US side, a win for Spellman, and another little step into the American darting history books.

4 were in G, and 2 were in H. None were in A division. Actually, in A, there have only been three #3s and one #4 during my tenure.

Week 12 answer: (much of which was pulled from the Sp2023 answer because it is still accurate) In the 39 seasons contained within this question, there were 2227 teams, with 2 of them having never played (leaving 2225 teams). And my average correct pick rate is about 72% per team. But there have been 9 teams (sort of) that fooled me at such an alarming rate that I actually got at least 72% wrong for those teams (Double In, Uber Out almost became the 10th last season). I say "sort of" because 4 of those 9 teams did not play complete seasons. One team, The Groupers from Sp19's H div., folded after one match, so I was 0-1. Then three teams from the abbreviated Sp20 Covid season (C div.'s Projectile Dysfunction, D div.'s Sharky's Machine, and D div.'s Hump Day!) fooled me in 6, 7 and 6 matches, respectively, but we all know I would've figured that trio out! Which leaves the 4 real kings of confusing me... The first 3 here all fooled me 9 of 12 weeks: Modena of Fa03's E div., Bennington Brawlers of Sp06's F div., and Sharky's Machine (again!) of Sp15's C div. And then there was the Fa13 B division version of Overtime Outlaws, who fooled me a huge 10 of 13 times (thankfully, they forfeited in wk13, after I had endured a 9-match wrong streak!). [Answer update for the banquet Tons: Nobody this season even came close to making this list… Shooter McGavin's 5-7 record was alone as the season's lowest.]

Week 13 answer: When Kevin asked me for this question, I knew the answer would be kind of a lot, but I had NO idea how big the answer actually was. Once I figured out how to solve it well, and then did the calculations, I was flat-out stunned by how many ways there actually are to take out 50. In the end, there are… (are you ready for this?)… 468 ways to take out 50. That's FOUR HUNDRED SIXTY-EIGHT! Not a typo. (For those who don't believe me, or who just want to see, I created a full one-page table of the answers. Just email me if you're a nerd like me and you want a copy.)

Week 14 answer: In the nearly eight years since we last visited this category, we have had five teams (only one of them since the Sp19 season) find themselves in five 1001s during a single season+ tournament span. And those five join the prior thirteen teams over the years that played five tiebreakers, with all eighteen of them tied for second place. That one team sitting above them is Constantly Corked from Spring 2012's B division, who lived through a stunning SIX tiebreaker legs (going 3-3, including a 1001 loss in the B tourn. semifinal). Related side note… that same team also posted one of the eighteen 2nd place totals just 4 seasons later. Drama city with those guys. [Answer update for the banquet Tons: Inconsistently Consistent could have joined this record if they had won one more doubles in the B final. But in the end, they finished with the same four-tiebreaker total as five other teams this season.]

THANK YOU, MARK MILLIUS OF DART SIDE OF THE MOON

Sometimes it's the little things that are what I notice as awesome. Entering week 14, the E division Fast 301 lead was shared by SIX people (Adam Barnes, Olivia Mathews, Chris Moody, Ryan Bathurst, Steve Witz and Sean Bosier) with 15 darters. Then Millius waltzes in with a slick little 14-darter. You know how much money Millius saved the league in award costs by not missing for just one more dart?! Gotta love that.

SOME BAR INFO FOR FUTURE SEASONS

Quick note to captains / bar reps / team members / anyone with information about your establishment. If there is anything at all noteworthy that should be considered when the Board is scheduling tournament matches, PLEASE let the Board know. Unable to open/ staff by 7 pm? Closing by midnight or earlier? Closing your kitchen (or drinks, gasp!) early on Wednesdays? Let the Board know and let's save us all some headaches later. // We actually received a couple helpful notes from captains this season during the tourneys. Please know the Board takes those very seriously, and your input might help shape future match assignments. [Please also note that "we don't like driving over there" or "that's too far from where I live" does not carry the same weight as actual commentaries on the dart area, etc. Only fully eligible establishments are considered, and that includes the ones that don't happen to be near you personally.]

LOOKING FOR SUMMER DARTS?

Did you happen to see the listings of summer offerings on page 7? There are leagues and blind draws there (and also in the page 8 calendar listings), but there are also a lot of tournaments within driving distance. Most importantly, the Wreck at the Deck returns this year, right here in Cary! But there are also several additional options in NC/SC/TN that aren't too far out of reach. Check out the Central Virginia Classic, the Firecracker Open, the Charlotte Open, the Music City Classic, or the Semper Fi Classic. Fliers for all six of those can be found on pages 20-22 of this newsletter, and definitely note that the Charlotte Open (July 7th-9th) also hosts the 2024 ADO Masters Nationals starting on Friday morning!

Also note that one of the summer dart leagues is registering pretty imminently, so you should act quickly if you are interested in joining them this time around (see "Brass Tap" on page 7).

[Like the last many seasons, we used three-song groups each week and also included a theme each and every week. Added a layer to the game for everybody and has been quite popular. Here are the themes for each week*, including the week 14 fifteen-song set that actually brought in three nearly complete (Pete Rutten, Matt Heimbach) to fully complete (Jerry Shengulette) answer sets! - JK]*

Week 2 theme: The entire week 2 update/reminder/story about what a scorekeeper can and can not say when asked a question by the thrower. Week 3 theme: This one was all about Reload moving from Good Times Arcade, which is closing, to… roughly the same bar, with the same owners, just across the street in their brand new establishment. Week 4 theme: That week's matches fell on February 14th. You know… Valentine's Day. So some silly, sappy love songs were obviously the order of the day. Week 5 theme: What was supposed to be my day as a pirate with my post-cataract surgery eye patch last Wednesday (turned out to be a little less pirate-y, sigh). Week 6 theme: Clearly, this set is about therapists (doctors) interpreting dreams. Right? Right? Of course it was actually my cataract surgery… Duh. Week 7 theme: Doing nothing, having nothing, emptiness… this set is about… nothing. Yep, this week nothing is everything. Week 8 theme: On the surface, it's obviously boy bands from the (mostly) '90s. But really, this is a set of bands that people think are somewhat silly, but are popular anyway. And the most remarkable part? I've included 1181 lyric quiz entries over the years [at this point in time], with 36 of them being used a second time, so there had been 1145 unique songs. And not one of them had ever been from any of these bands. Week 9 theme: It's all about this being the time. They basically gave me two new eyes, and it feels like the time that is on my side has certainly come today, and I am even more committed to having the time of my life than I was before now. And I was already pretty committed. Week 10 theme: This one was a tribute to the trivia question about the history of our league's home bars. That question was all bars, and thus, so was this lyric set. Week 11 theme: The NC State Wolfpack's extended basketball tournament run. They just kept staying alive, lingering around as one of the teams still in, continuing that climb. Week 12 theme: This was all about those feline artists. Yeah, yeah, Leppard is their own special spelling. Week 13 theme: After a week with artists named in some fashion for cats, I kinda just HAD to go with this set so I didn't offend the other half of the pet folks, didn't I? Week 14 theme: Songs with celestial bodies or things in space in them (ordered loosely from the Sun outward).

WHAT DOES YOUR TEAM THINK OF YOU?

Is it something kind of awesome, or do they just kind of accept you? In the case of Evan McMillan of Bottoms Up, I guess it turns out they think he's something kind of awesome. Awesome enough that I had a direct request to include an item here to let him know how much they appreciate him. From the sounds of it, real life has been a bit of a rough go lately for McMillan and his family, and despite that it appears it was his own personal dedication to the team and their night out that kept everything together. And after seasons of sort of floundering around in G, they are now looking at a climb to F to go with their recently earned Mugs! So, Mr. McMillan… just know that your team appreciates whatever the heck you have been doing for them. (Or maybe they're just enjoying the team's new leadership style?! Might not be quite as cute, but I'm guessing it has been a little more organized and possibly a touch less goofy…)

ONE OF MY PERSONAL DARTCONNECT CONCERNS…

… came to life in the A div. final. The technology of DartConnect and its utility are undeniable, but there are little differences between it and regular scoreboard chalking that just necessitate a different type of attention at times. And one of those for me personally is the lack of names at the top of the board unless you stop and enter them individually. You just have to kinda 'know' which side you're on (because the switch of the white background behind the current thrower's running total is a bit subtle at times). And quick confusion on that had one of my teammates thinking he was down 502-500 instead of ahead, with game shot in hand. Worked out ok, but that brief little lack of recognition (which likely wouldn't have happened on a board with team names jotted at the top) is still a hurdle with the tech for me (and seemingly for others too - even if they use it often.)

Yes, pg. 7 is correct. The Neighborhood is no more. Contentious battle with the city over land. Sad for the dart league, for sure.

DOES YOUR TEAM HAVE A MASCOT?

And no, I don't mean your buddy who you like to make fun of… (and is likely the same guy that you report to me at the preseason captains' meeting every season when I ask if you have females on your roster). I mean a non-team member (be it live, or stuffed… or some dorky guy who follows you guys around like a groupie). Well, before this season, Element has never had one in its 21-year existence. But now we do!! On the day of one of my eye cataract surgeries (when I obviously wasn't at our match), some of the Element guys found their way over to a claw game machine. A few minutes and just a few bucks later, Allen Smith had reeled in what immediately became the Element Dart Duck! Then Kenny Persson took him home and decked him out in a time-marking shirt and an eye patch to match my post-surgery pirate look! Persson even tagged the eye patch with an XL for this season's Element name. The Dart Duck has been joining us at matches ever since (see team tourney photo below). And just now it hit me… aside from "Dart Duck" our guy doesn't have a true name yet. Hmmm….

PEOPLE ASK ME WHAT IT'S LIKE…

… to be part of the fantastic (and historic) Element-Bullies matchup. And this past Wednesday one of my teammates inadvertently summed it up pretty perfectly. He said "dang, I didn't play badly at all, man… I just didn't win." Yep, that's how it is, over and over and over for 'somebody from either team' in most sets, and with that line coming from multi-time state (or even national) champions.

As noted on page 4, we've continued our recent little tradition of encouraging tournament-winning teams to submit team photos from their victorious evening. Great to share in the moment and save that memory. (No player name legends for these, but I'm sure the people in the photos know who they are. Plus, it's about 'team' happiness anyway.)

A division regular season and tournament champions - Element XL!! (complete with Dart Duck)

D division tournament champions - DD-214!!

C division tournament champions - The Outlaws!!
(complete with the Incredible Missing Murray…)

F division tournament champions - Rippin Darts!!

THE HISTORY OF "ELEMENT", THE RDL'S LONGEST-STANDING DOMINANT TEAM

Ok, so… people ask me pretty often about my team, how we ended up together, how we stay together, how many wins we have… just whatever. Because the simple fact is that my team's success has made us very visible in the newsletter for a very long time. It's weird to write about my own team, but if this was anybody else's team that had put together this history, I would have written about it a long time ago.

Also, it has been very interesting over the years to hear people tell me things about my own team, how we do things, what we have and haven't done, etc. A lot of times they are either passing on an ever-less-accurate story that has come down the grapevine, or they are purely fabricating for their own reasons. Either way, the stories make me chuckle, and I often just nod and smile.

This being Element's 40th season (covering 21 years due to the loss of a year to the Covid-19 pandemic), it seemed like a decent time to tell the full story (and also set the record straight in some cases, I bet). So here's the story, from before Element even came together, to today.

At the start of 1995, Tom Brown and I were recruited to our first season in RDL with Pig Tour 95. Keith Wall played his first season with Pigs that spring as well, and things went great (an A divison season/tournament double in our first season here, with really only six of us on the team!). Then in the second season of 1995, we added a few people and that went 'mostly' well. We won more Mugs, but there was a guy (I'm not opposed to calling him out, Dan Bass) who our captain refused to get rid of before the Sp96 season. I fully admit that I've called him Basshole for nearly three decades now, and Brown and I decided to leave Pig Tour solely because of him being there.

Brown, being an absolute dart monster, was welcomed to Lunatic Fringe with open arms, where he was one of the primary forces behind a 15-season run that included 13 regular season and 10 tournament titles. I, meanwhile, quickly put together a team of very nice people from Durham that could fairly be described as a wild hodgepodge of old and young, talented and terrible, dedicated and slack, all at the same time. They put us in D division, and… we rolled. They moved us to C, we lost one of our two best players when he moved away, and… we still rolled. So we moved up to B in the spring of '97, and at that time several of our lesser players decided they wanted no more part of it. We didn't win B, but we still moved up as the 2nd place team, and thus the only three-season foray outside of A in my RDL career was over.

My lovable band of misfits was then able to keep our spot in A with, wait for it… yep, still me as the best player. No, really. Turns out I used to be pretty decent at this when I played a lot more. The very next season in Sp98 was the first move toward what would eventually become Element, as we added Dale Hyler and Wil Tan, and we finished 2nd(!) in A, ahead of the historic Dart Shadows and So What (often playing as Industrial Strength). The additions of Hyler and Tan had made us relevant! Tan played one more season with us before flipping over to Industrial Strength, but Dale Hyler and I employed a rotating cast of buddies to keep ourselves in the middle of A for many seasons, even adding Mike Seward for quite a while starting in Fall 2000.

Lisa Shpritz (many-time state champion now living in Charlotte) joined Hyler and me in Sp2001, and then in Fa2002, Allen Smith, Robb Beeson, and a very young Robbie Phillips signed on with us for a season each (Smith and Phillips didn't play at all the next season, and Beeson played with Industrial and Wil Tan in Sp2003). We were, however, able to replace them with Mark Knight and Wade Moricle for that Sp2003 season though.

Then, in the summer of 2003 is when everything changed… Hyler, Knight, Shpritz, Moricle and I knew that we were sticking together. But that was only five of us. In conversations with some others who had been playing with us on the Durham City Cup team, we all sorta decided that it would be great to just make a league team that mirrored our City team in a pretty heavy fashion. My old Pig Tour 95 teammates Tom Brown and Keith Wall, along with Joe Gaglione, all decided that they wanted something different after playing with Fringe together. Wil Tan decided to return to us from Industrial's roster, and Robbie Phillips decided to rejoin us after a season away from RDL. And since we were picking up players off two other top teams, we called ourselves The Subversive Element. We thought it would be fun and we would be pretty decent. Turns out, it went WAY better than even we expected! Regular season and tournament champions in A! Holy crap, how did that happen? The next season, Phillips went away to school and Hyler had to start a year off for work, and all we added was John Riner as a pure sub. And… it somehow still worked!! What the heck was going on? Were we really on to something?

So the roster slowly evolves from here forward, and I'm not going through the very boring season-by-season detailing of each separate change. But I will highlight who did join and how they came to us, because one of my favorite comments from division opponents is when another player gets good and they say "well, you guys will just pick him up anyway." Which is… mostly exactly NOT what we have done for any part of Element's history. Our roster has been a group of our friends, who often do lots of other stuff together outside of darts, and I've made a pointed effort to not recruit from our opposition. This despite the fact that for years I've watched and heard many opposing captains recruit our players, at our matches, right in front of us. Ha!

29 total people have ever thrown a dart for Element - the original 10, and 19 who joined us somewhere over the next 39 seasons. The first 10 you already saw above… John Riner joined us for 7 seasons, as he was our teammate in Durham. Jerry Oakley and Randy Umstead each were out of the league and had a friend on the team, playing 4 and 3 seasons, respectively. Our old teammate Mike Seward came back for 2 seasons when he wanted a break from Fringe. Jeremiah Millar was on the team for 3 seasons after playing one season with Brian Blake's team that left him unhappy with the other teams' impressions of him and his teammates. Jeremy Dziczkowski played one season in E when he joined the RDL, but he immediately wanted a jump to A and he was playing with us in Durham at the time. Jon Kenney's team was falling back to B after one season in A, and he really didn't want to go down, at exactly the time that Dale Hyler was finally really moving away for work, so Kenney played with us for 10 seasons before moving away himself. Allen Smith came back to us as a part-time sub for three years before really joining us in a fuller capacity. Robb Beeson came back to my teams after being out of RDL for a while, and has played two couple-year-long stints with us. Chad Massengill joined us when a 'super-team' that invited him to play fell apart the day of registration leaving him with no team at a time when we needed a player. John Kramer joined when a Brian Blake-led team of which he was supposed to be a part never materialized (without notice, and giving us our 3rd post-Blake-issue player, which is kinda nuts). Paul Jacobi wanted to stop being a captain and he was our teammate in two other leagues, so he was an obvious add. Alberto Sandoval was another guy who joined because his team was falling out of A and he wanted to stay. Joe Work was on a team in C and B but wanted to test himself in A, so he asked if we had a spot, and we did (although he did leave after 1 season). John Carroll was the closest thing we've ever had to a guy we recruited off another team, as some conversations just led to him switching over to our team. Randy Massengill is Chad's dad, so, duh. Stevie Phillips is Robbie's brother, so, duh again. Kenny Persson is our longtime teammate in other leagues, golfing and football buddy, and his team didn't list him much for some reason, so he was super stoked to join a team that would. And then our most recent addition, Ross Minty, is Stevie's best darting friend, and they both needed a home when Brown's closed. And… that's all of us. Geez, that's a lot of nefarious and dirty recruiting, right? :o)

In the end, Tom Brown and I have played all 40 seasons. Wil Tan has played 39, Robbie Phillips has played 38, Allen Smith has played 35, Chad Massengill is up to 17, Paul Jacobi is up to 12, Kenny Persson and Stevie Phillips are up to 6, and Ross Minty is up to 4. Among past teammates, Mark Knight and Keith Wall played 27 and 23 before health issues got in the way.

The most amazing part of Element's history? That in the team's 40 seasons, we have finished 1st or 2nd in both the A season and the A tournament in every season except the one straight after Covid (when we had a mad pile of player losses/attendance issues, finishing 3rd in the season and losing in the tournament semifinals).

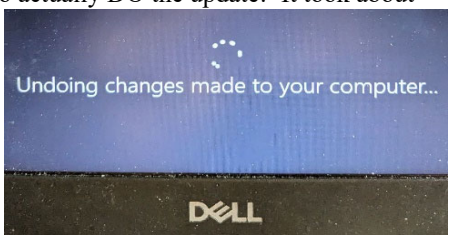
Element's total records after 40 seasons (all of them obviously in A div.)…
-- Regular season = 30 firsts, 9 seconds, 1 third; 474 wins, 38 losses (and 42 byes that would have pretty certainly been wins if an 8th A team had been there); and yes, that's less than 1 loss per season…
-- Tournament = 24 firsts, 14 seconds, 1 semifinal loss (and no tournament in Sp20); 82 wins, 14 losses (and also 10 first-round byes that would have pretty certainly been wins if an 8th team had been there)
-- League record 64 match win streak (that also included three byes, making for a 67-week unbeaten streak) from Fall 2015 to Fall 2017
-- Team totals of 331 9-marks, 139 T80s, 9 6Bs, 29 High Ins, 16 High Outs, 29 Fast 301s, 23 Fast SCkts, 24 Fast DCkts, 31 Fast 501s, 23 singles titles, and 28 ASP titles. (Robbie Phillips leads most of these, but that ASP one is the award that could really just be renamed for him. 24 of those 28 are his.)

[-- Funny side note: before anybody thinks that we just recruited Robbie because he was already a terminator... in his first season on the roster, he had the 7th best singles win %-age and 6th best ASP average on the team. He didn't start crushing until about our 7th season. :o)]

How long will Element's run last? No idea, but selfishly I hope it's a long time. Will there ever be another Element? Again, no idea. But I can say this: if I could only wish one feature of Element for you, it wouldn't be the wins… it would be the very deep sense of family that we genuinely have. I have been incredibly fortunate to call this group of people my dear friends for decades.

RANDOM THOUGHTS FROM JK

Nowadays, it's a fact… this column has become a banquet Tons staple. I have no idea why so many are so keen on taking a peek into the oddness that is my head, but you are. So without further ado, let's open up my head again and see what falls out. Some of these observations are dart-related, and some of them clearly are not. As always, this is just about the last thing that I'm writing and this season is certainly no exception… soooo, also as always not even I know what's about to hit the page…



-- You ever see license plate letter trios and they immediately represent something for you? Your initials, or some acronym from work or something, or stuff like that? Well, one of these for me is TBB. I don't know that I will ever see that letter trio and not think Traveling Beer Bellies. Collected those scoresheets for 15 years, and every time I see one of those plates, I instantly see Oakie and JJ and Jim Blinco, etc.

-- What an absolute asshat Harrison Butker of the Kansas City Chiefs is. I don't think I probably need to say anymore than that. But we all know me, so we know I will… I hope his hateful, misogynistic, close-minded, holier-than-thou, lost-in-his-own-ignorance ass gets heckled and has crap thrown at him until the team just decides he is no longer worth the horrible hassle. Then he can retire… and go work in the kitchen where he belongs.

-- So I'm sitting at the ophthalmologist for one of my follow-up appointments after my cataract surgery, and the technician comes through the waiting area calling out for the next patient to be seen, as is the norm. And what name is the tech calling out? Insomnia. No joke. Somebody there was named (or at least goes by) Insomnia. She answered, and didn't correct the tech at all.

-- I see this other places sometimes too, but for some reason there is a phenomenon I see at a far higher rate in the parking deck at the Durham VA (where our lab is and where I most often work). Employees go out to their cars in the parking deck and sit in them for extended periods of time, with the car running and the headlights on. For like, a long time… As in an expensive-to-burn-this-much-gas kind of long time. And what happens over and over and over and over? Cars coming in to the parking deck pull up and wait for a little bit, because surely a car sitting like this is about to leave, right? But the people in these running cars don't leave. And they don't turn off their lights. And they don't acknowledge the cars that repeatedly wait for them to pull out. Is this just some sort of weird power play in their otherwise sad little days? So exhausting, I just don't get it.

-- A couple months ago, my computer started trying to force Windows updates that it turns out it was supposed to have put in place a full two years earlier. I kept telling it 'fine, just run the update,' and it would start for a few minutes, then decide to give up. But after giving the update the ok for about a dozen days in a row, it finally decided to actually DO the update! It took about two full hours to fully get through the update, and then, when it was supposed to say the update was complete, instead this inexplicable screen showed up!!

How is this a thing they put in the program?! Why do all that updating and then just "undo" it?! Their word, not mine! Ugh. [Yes, I have everything updated now, but it took a full rebuild.]

-- So several days ago my wife was watching the morning show with Kelly Ripa on it (the one that used to have Regis Philbin, I'm not sure what the name is, but it's unimportant). They had on a woman who was there to do some little kids craft projects for some reason (and that reason was NOT to do them with your kids, it was for adults), and when she got to what she wanted us to recognize as the big finisher, she informed us it was time for the coup d'etat! Ummm… it's time for a sudden and violent overthrow of the government?? Doesn't seem to fit with the whole crafting vibe… Guessing she probably meant coup de grace. If you're going on national TV, don't toss around French phrases unless you have some idea of what you're saying…

-- You know those super loud Emergency Broadcast System interruptions that cover up any show/channel you have on? They warn us of Amber Alerts, flash floods, hurricanes, etc. And they often have a message spoken by some police officer with specifics (especially for Amber Alerts), telling you what county has issued the warning. But somehow, despite the fact that your cable or streaming show can be paused, played at five different speeds, shown in split screen of up to four shows at a time, cast over to another device, watched on portable stuff from almost anywhere, or broadcast in three languages or with sub-titles… that recorded message from the emergency system is almost unintelligible. Static, broken signal, background hum… how is the emergency notice the part that barely works at all?

-- Ever watch a pro golf event on TV? If so, you've seen the standard sportsmanship tradition of the players taking off their hats and shaking hands after finishing on the 18th green. And my favorite part of that? Those guys all play golf all the time, and they're all very very tan. Except for the part of their heads that are inside the hats. Which means that when they take those hats off for those handshakes, they all look like Q-Tips shaking hands! A perfect circle halfway up their foreheads, all tan on the low sides, all pale as ghosts on the high sides. Hilarious.

-- Want to know what bothers me? The fact this is the correct spelling of "bouillon." How the heck is that word pronounced as bool-yaan? That 'i' is just in the wrong damn place. Grrr.

-- What else bothers me far more? How often people say they need time "to process" something. What a crutch that is for people. They have to proooooocessss whatever the very normal situation is. Why? Does your brain work way slower than a normal one? Are your feelings so complex that you somehow need to actively think about each one individually? That's not how people work. Such a Gen Z load of crap. (And yes, I am on faculty in the Department of Psychiatry. And I still think the constant need "to process" is a load of crap.)

-- On a similar note, don't ever bother telling me that "you're going through something." If it doesn't have enough details to be an actual issue rather than "something," then I don't want to hear you whine about going through it. Because the odds are strong that you're using that phrase to generate general pity from others for you having to "go through" something that is very common and every-day normal. Don't play that pathetic crap with me, I have no time for it. And even if I did, still don't.

-- Ever go to Broadway plays? Musicals? Non-musicals? Any at all? I personally love live theater. But there is one play that has one of the dumbest story-selling points I've ever heard. Beauty & the Beast. They describe it as "the greatest love story ever told." Ummmm… excuse me? Kidnapping, imprisonment, extortion, bestiality, witchcraft… Think about it, that's what this Disney story/play/movie actually includes. Greatest love story every told? That is one creepy-ass notion.

-- Anyway, if it's raining while I'm handing this out, I'm likely sad. I've got a bunch of outdoor plans this afternoon/evening.
